BUILD PLAYGROUNDS FIRST

THE TENEMENT COMMISSION URGES ACTION BY THE PARK BOARD.

No Money Should Be Expended on Park Luxuries, It Says, Until North End Conditions Are Improved—Suggests a Hospital, Too.

No more money should be expended for park luxuries in the more favored parts of the city until something is done for the health and pleasure of the children of the North end; no more pergolas or colonnades until free baths and children's playgrounds are provided in the tenement district.

That was the keynote sounded by the tenement commission yesterday in a discussion on the subject of improving the condition of living in the crowded parts of the city. Resolutions were adopted suggesting to Mayor Crittenden that he ask the council and the park board for early action on the proposition for a North end playground and free baths, which have been pending for several months.

WHILE THE NORTH END LACKS WATER.

The members of the commission present were J. V. C. Karnes, Frank Walsh, Dr. O. H. Dove, W. C. Root, Mrs. Lee Lyons, Mrs. Kate Pierson and Mrs. Henry N. Ess.

"We lay out golf courses and build shelter houses and swimming pools in the more favored parts of the city," Mr. Karnes said, "while the children of the North end can't get water to wash unless they go to the Missouri river and take the chances of getting drowned."

"We are getting a fine shelter building on Gladstone boulevard to cost $35,000, when half that amount would build a fine bathhouse," Mrs. Ess said.

A HOSPITAL URGED, TOO.

Another resolution was adopted urging the early construction of a hospital for contagious diseases. Mrs. Kate Pierson and Dr. C. B. Irwin, the special investigator for the commission, reported finding several such cases in crowded dwellings. These are cases other than smallpox, and there is no provision for isolating them. Dr. Irwin said the health department was co-operating in remedying sanitary conditions in places where the commission reported them to be bad.

Mrs. Pierson reported one tenement in which five persons are afflicted with tuberculosis. This led to a discussion of the proposed municipal tuberculosis sanitarium at Leeds, where the city has a 115 acre tract for the new house of correction and the sanitarium. Mr. Root told the commission the plans for the bungalows for free fresh air treatment were approved by the former board of public works and the workhouse prisoners are now taking out the stone and cleaning the grounds.

MORE "FACTORY FACTS" ISSUED.

A Second Edition of the Booklet Has Been Published.

The first edition of 5,000 "Factory Facts," a booklet giving the advantages of Kansas City as a manufacturing center, has been exhausted. A second edition of 5,000 has been published and is being distributed by the Manufacturers' and Merchants' association. The demand for the booklet has been greater than the association expected.

DEATH IN A CAR ACCIDENT.

The Air Brake Didn't Work and S. H. Sears Was Fatally Injured.

Half an hour after he was struck by a southbound Troost avenue car at Twenty-first street and Troost avenue, last night, S. H. Sears, a laborer, died at the general hospital of his injuries. He had been knocked twenty-five feet by the car and received a compressed fracture of the skull, a fractured arm a compound fracture of the right leg and a four-inch cut on one side of his head. The car crew was not arrested. An inspector for the street railway company said that the air brake on the car that struck Sears did not work.

G. F. Stanhope of 2027 Troost avenue, who was a witness of the accident, said that the motorman could not stop the car until it had gone about 100 yards beyond the place where the accident occurred.

"The car was going fast—between fifteen and twenty miles an hour, I think," he said.

Sears was 50 years old and lived at 3137 California street in St. Louis. He was attended by Dr. Carl V. Bates, an ambulance surgeon.

MAYOR TO SEND IN NAMES.

A Large Number of Nominations for City Jobs To-Morrow Night.

Mayor Crittenden said yesterday that he would have a large number of appointments ready to submit to the council for confirmation Monday night.

"I was not the candidate of any special element or faction of my party," he said, "and I am trying to be fair to them all in filling the places that become vacant."

Edward Winstanly, chief clerk of the board of public works; R. U. Goodnow, secretary of the board, and Meyer Wechsler, market master, qualified yesterday and will take charge of their positions tomorrow. Winstanly and Wechsler gave surety company bonds for $10,000.

A DINNER FOR BEARDSLEY.

Friends of the Ex-Mayor Will Commend His Administration Thursday Night.

A dinner will be given in honor of Henry M. Beardsley Thursday night at the Coates house by several of his friends. Talks will be made commending Mr. Beardsley's administration as mayor.

An Accident to Carl Dehoney.

Carl Dehoney, secretary of the Mercantile club in Kansas City, Kas., was struck on the face yesterday afternoon by a piece of coal thrown by a boy. Mr. Dehoney was returning to this city from Bonner Springs in a Union Pacific railway passenger train. As the train passed under the Seventh street viaduct in Kansas City, Kas., a boy on the bridge threw the missile. It crashed through a window, the glass falling on Mr. Dehoney and several passengers. The boy ran. Mr. Dehoney's injury is slight.

The Temple of Health, at Twelfth and Washington, is one of the most notable institutions of healing in the world to-day, and Kansas City has good reason to be proud of it. Since its beginning more than 100,000 persons have been treated there for the various ailments and deformities that come to human beings. The place is a veritable treasure house of life histories, the records of those who came wrecked in body and almost hopeless, but who went away again whole and happy. Write for illustrated magazine. FOR QUICKER MAIL TO LONDON.

The Orient May Be Used for Service Between Australia and England.

E. F. Wright, member of the Royal institute, London, is in Kansas City. Mr. Wright is investigating the mail service between Australia and New Zealand and London for the British government.

"I am convinced that a better mail service can be had by way of the United States than by the routes by which the mail is carried now," Mr. Wright said last night. "The bulk of the mail now goes 'round the Horn or by way of the Suez canal. It takes from thirty-five to forty days for the mail to travel between London and Sydney by way of the Suez canal, and it requires sixteen boats to do the work. If three twenty-five knot steamships carried the mail from Sydney to Topolobampo, the terminus of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad, thence by rail to New York and from New York to London by fast steamers the time would be reduced materially.

"The distance from Sydney to San Francisco is 4,160 miles. It is less to Topolobampo, which is 800 miles nearer New York than San Francisco. Allow five days for the rail journey. Added to sixteen days from Sydney to Topolobampo, that makes twenty-one days. The fastest mail service will always be between New York and London. Mail is now carried between these ports in seven days. This makes the journey from Sydney to London twenty-eight days instead of from thirty-five to forty days, the time it now takes to make the journey. Rail service is always faster than steamship service. I shall recommend the establishment of new mail routes which will bring the mail by way of the United States."

MARTIN REGAN INJURED.

A Police Horse Ran Away and Threw Him From the Wagon.

A horse hitched to the police supply wagon was frightened by a motorcycle at Thirty-first street and Woodland avenue yesterday afternoon and ran away. Martin Regan, jailor at the Woodland avenue police station, was thrown from the vehicle. A rib on his left side was broken and he received several scalp wounds. At the general hospital it was said his injuries were not dangerous. Later he was removed to his home, 1721 Benton boulevard.

At midnight last night Mrs. Regan said she feared her husband would not recover from his injuries. "He is getting pretty old and feeble," she said, "and we are afraid this shock will be too much for him."

Dr. W. L. Gist is attending the injured man. He said last night Mr. Regan was in grave danger.

Martin Regan was at one time influential in local politics. For twelve years he represented the Sixth ward in the lower house of the city council. Later he owned a theater that was popular in the North end. He has been a jailor several years.

TO VOTE ON ITS FRANCHISE.

In Sioux City the Street Railway Ordinance Was Referred to the People.

A practical demonstration of a referendum vote on a street railway franchise will be given in Sioux City, Ia., May 28, when the voters will pass on the ordinance granting renewals and extensions for twenty-five years on the franchise of the various lines comprising the Sioux City Traction company. The council committee first held public hearings on the proposed grant, to which considerable opposition developed. The ordinance was then reported to the council, where the final arguments in opposition to it were made. Because of the opposition, the council ordered the special election.

Sioux City is a town of probably 50,000 inhabitants and yet the company agrees to practically everything usually expected of traction companies in larger cities. It agrees to carry children between 6 and 12 years at half fare. It agrees to pay a fair share of the cost of all viaducts. In addition to the regular city, county and state taxes the company offers to pay to the city an annual tax of $25 for each car in service.

TO ERECT A 5-STORY BUILDING.

Property Adjoining the Shubert Theater Leased by Leon Leslie.

George W. Tourtellot, former general manager of the Armour Packing company, bought from the Sunny Slope Realty company yesterday twenty-eight feet of vacant ground adjoining the Shubert theater on the west, on Tenth street. The price was $40,000. Mr. Tourtellot immediately leased the ground to Leon Leslie for ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $2,000 without revaluation. Mr. Leslie and others are to erect a five-story office building, of fireproof construction, the work to begin within a few weeks. The plans are now being prepared by Jarvis Hunt, architect of the Commerce building and the proposed new Union station.

Mr. Tourtellot sold his home at 3510 Summit street, Roanoke, yesterday to the Homestead Realty company for $40,000. The Blachert-Kipp Real Estate company handled both transactions.

TO GIVE LABOR A HEARING.

Suggestions From Industrial Organizations Invited by the Charter Board.

Representatives of the labor organizations are to be given a special hearing by the new charter board to-morrow afternoon. It is desired to hear any suggestions they have to make for the new charter. Special consideration is to be given to the initiative, the referendum and the recall. It was announced that the invitation is general. The meeting will be at 2 o'clock in the directors' room of the Fidelity Trust company.

KNEW DUKE WAS DOOMED

RELATIVES OF DE CHAULNES KEPT HIS CONDITION A SECRET.

It Was Hoped That His Marriage to the Rich American Girl Would Prolong the Nobleman's Life—Shonts Family Kept in Ignorance.

PARIS, April 25.—The Duke de Luynes told correspondents to-day that the Duke de Chaulnes's family had long known that the duke was threatened with sudden death from heart disease, and made the astounding confession that the duke's relatives had concealed this fact from the Shonts family, permitting the young American girl to sacrifice herself in ignorance of the awful fate overhanging her young husband.

"Of course," said the Duke de Luynes, "we hoped that marriage with a good and rich woman would be excellent for his health, that freedom from monetary cares and a quiet home life would prolong his life. Unfortunately, all was in vain."

NO THOUGHT OF THE WIFE.

The Duke de Luynes, who is a tall, handsome appearing young man, spoke with great tenderness of the dead duke, but seemed to have no realization of any cruelty in sacrificing a young girl in the hope of preserving the life of an outworn aristocratic debauchee. He continued:

"I would like you to say that the Shonts family never made any objection to the marriage at any time. The only delay in the negotiations was caused by our concern for the duke's health."

When asked how the Duchess de Chaulnes was bearing the shock, he replied:

"None of us understand how greatly she loved him. Her grief has been terrible, but she is quieter to-day."

The duke insisted with great emphasis that the Duke de Chaulnes had not died from an overdose of morphine or other narcotic drug and repeated that since the marriage of the young couple was finally decided upon the duke had broken wholly with the drug habit, though he knew that total abstinence was dangerous in his condition.

A STRUGGLE TO REDEEM HIMSELF.

De Luynes laid great stress upon de Chaulnes's heroic struggle to redeem himself and be worthy of his young American bride.

The Duke de Chaulnes was once in a sanitarium in Auteuil for the cure of the drug habit, but this fact was carefully concealed from the Shonts family.

Her new aristocratic kinsfolk have rallied round the stricken young girl just made a widow. This afternoon the Duchess de Luynes took her to the family seat in Dampierre.

MRS. SHONTS DEFENDS THE DUKE.

Stories That de Chaulnes Used Opiates Declared to Be False.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, in her stateroom on the American line steamship St. Louis, before it sailed to-day, declared that the cable reports that the Duke de Chaulnes had been addicted to morphine were false. Weeping bitterly, Mrs. Shonts said:

"My poor daughter, my poor daughter, it is too bad that you must bear this, too."

Her daughter, Marguerite, tried to soothe her, reminding her that the Duke de Chaulnes had many jealous enemies.

"I am glad that my daughter was with the duke when he died," Mrs. Shonts said, "for it must have been a comfort to her to have been at his side. The duke was ever just what he was while in this country—a gentleman. He was, of course, a stranger, and for that reason many did not come to know his good points. Before we get to Paris these cruel stories in circulation, I believe, will be found to be groundless. If they are not I will do my best to prove their falsity.

"It breaks my heart to think of our poor girl over there all alone and surrounded by such hostile criticism. But French people are kind, I know, and perhaps the stories printed here are exaggerated. I believed in the duke, and I believe in him still. He was in the best of health when he was here, and I am at a loss to account for his sudden death."

Theodore Shonts accompanied his wife and daughter across the Atlantic for the duke's funeral. Mr. Shonts said:

"There is one thing I wish you would correct in the papers and that is the absurd report that the Duke de Chaulnes was addicted to opiates. I will admit that I was at first opposed to the duke, but I was won over when I came to know him better. He was in the best of health when he was here, and during the somewhat extended time I knew him well he deported himself like a man.

"As to the future plans of my daughter, I cannot say now. If she takes my advice she will go to some secluded place on the continent and rest. We will accompany her, and I may leave my wife and other daughter on the continent while I return."

BULLETS IN A RAILROAD YARD.

A Special Watchman Fought With Trespassers Last Night.

L. F. Crew, a special officer patrolling the Missouri Pacific yards in Kansas City, Kas., stepped between two freight cars at 11:30 o'clock last night. A bullet whizzed by him. Crew then fired eight shots and his opponent fired four. When it was over there were two bullet holes in Crew's hat and one in his waistcoat. One bullet struck a notebook in his pocket.

By the light of a railroad lantern a hat was found later. There were bloody finger prints on it. The owner could not be found.

Crew, the night of November 25, was fired upon by two negroes. He returned the fire. One negro, James Williams, died in Bethany hospital. The other, name unknown, died in Atchison.

BROKERS TO PRISON FOR FRAUD.

An Appeal Taken From the Sentence of Federal Judge Morris.

ST. PAUL, MINN., April 25.—Fines of $5,000 each and sentences of two years in the penitentiary at Stillwater were imposed by Judge Morris in the federal district court to-day on Frank F. Holliday, Henry F. Robinson and John L. Layne, formerly associated with Edward A. Vaughan in the commission and brokerage business in Minneapolis, who were convicted of conspiracy to defraud. The maximum penalty was imposed.

Their attorneys have applied for writ of error for an appeal to the United States circuit court. The hearing is set for next Monday and, in the meantime, the prisoners will remain in the county jail unless each files a $10,000 bond.

STATE OFFICIALS SEIZE WHISKY.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 25.—Five barrels of whisky, which were consigned to local merchants for their own use, were received here to-day and immediately seized by the sheriff. The state dispensary commission announces that it will make a test case of the question as to whether a person can buy a barrel of liquor for his own use, and if not, how much should be allowed.

WENT HUNGRY TO SEE FLEET

And Thousands Camped Out at Night Near Santa Monica, Cal.

SANTA MONICA, April 25.—Sailing away into a summer haze that hung over the bay of Santa Monica, the sixteen battle ships of the Atlantic fleet slowly passed Point Duma shortly after 9 o'clock this morning with 100,000 persons assembled along the shores to extend them a reluctant farewell. No spectacle so superb has ever been witnessed off the coast of Southern California unless it was the arrival of the same ships a week ago to-day.

Never before such a multitude gathered along the shores of Santa Monica bay and rarely, if ever, have so many persons submitted to discomfort and inconvenience to witness a spectacle, however thrilling and unusual. Since noon yesterday every available car of the Los Angeles Pacific system was operated without obstruction and for eighteen hours a stream of people had poured to Venice, Ocean Park and Santa Monica—the three beach cities that commanded a view of the theater where the warships would make their last appearance.

Days ago the quest for accommodations for last night had been abandoned as hopeless and with every source exhausted, with hotels and lodging houses and private residences crowded far beyond their normal capacity, men, women and children slept last night on the beach or in the canyons just outside Santa Monica. Others passed the night on the floor of offices in the city hall and hundreds who had gathered at Venice whiled away the hours before daylight by dancing to music furnished by a band that gave a concert last night.

As a final test many of the sleepless but eager sightseers, finding that the restaurants were unable to provide breakfast for half the people who waited in lines before their doors, cheerfully sacrificed the meal for an early chance of a view anywhere along the shore.

TULSA STOPS WORLD'S TRADE.

CHICAGO, April 25.—The Tulsa, Ok., boomers, 130 strong, captured the Chicago board of trade to-day, and for five minutes paralyzed the grain and provision business of all the markets in the United States as well as abroad. The boomers, with their brass band, appeared at the portals of the board of trade building. The policeman who attempted to bar their progress was picked up bodily and carried into the lobby. Then, with band playing, the boomers invaded the floor of the exchange.

Before the brokers were aware what was happening the band had formed in a circle and was giving vent to some Indian music that made more noise in a minute than the Chicago traders could make in an hour.

Then it was that the buying stopped, selling stopped. All the telegraph instruments on the floor were drowned out. For five minutes the market stood still. Over the whole mechanism of the board a wave of sudden rest set in.

New York felt the break in the usual tension. So did London and Paris.

"What's the matter?" New York wired. "Oklahoma arrived," went flying back over the wire. "Busines will be resumed when Oklahoma goes away."

Inquiries from St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, New Orleans and Winnipeg poured in by telegraph. In five minutes the boomers retired and the board of trade resumed business.

THE PLUNGER IDENTIFIED.

A Visitor Says She's Mrs. Hunt and She Lived in Hutchinson, Kas.

Mrs. John Cooper of 1301 McGee street went to the general hospital yesterday and identified the woman financier as Mrs. Hunt, who formerly lived in Hutchinson, Kas., and later in Galena, Kas. Mrs. Cooper was accompanied by Colonel J. C. Greenman.

"It's Mrs. Hunt," Mrs. Cooper declared as soon as she saw the patient. "I used to live in Hutchinson next door to Mrs. Hunt and we used to be very well acquainted. Mrs. Hunt later moved to Galena, Kas."

Although Mrs. Hunt appeared to recognized Mrs. Cooper, she would not admit her identity.

"Why, if I'm Mrs. Hunt, why isn't my son here?" she asked.

The whereabouts of F. C. Hunt, the son who left Galena for Kansas City Tuesday night, is still a mystery. Several persons called at the hospital yesterday to see Mrs. Hunt.

MEN TO SEE ACROSS THE SEA.

A French Scientist Foretells of a Day When the Feat Will Be Possible.

PARIS, April 25.—M. Armengand, an engineer and scientist, who has for many years been experimenting with the telespectroscope or telephoto, which is intended to extend the range of the human vision to extraordinary distances, says he has so far perfected his apparatus that he can now foretell that the time is not far distant when a man sitting in Paris or London will be able to see what is going on in New York. He says he has made remarkable headway in his experiments during the last three months. The apparatus is simialr to that used for the telegraphic transmission of photographs. He utilizes the properties of selenium. His method was inspired by the development of the cinemetograph.

WAS A NATURAL GAS DRUNKARD.

The Strange Death of an Oklahoma Well Driller.

BARTLESVILLE, OK., April 25.—John Douglas, a driller, whose home was near Harrisville, W. Va., was found dead near here this morning. He was lying on a platform of a derrick of a gas well with his mouth close to a gas pipe. He had been addicted to inhaling natural gas as a stimulant and probably had taken too large a dose. He had been dead about two days, but had not been discovered because of being on the side of the belt house which was shielded from the road. He was about 38 years old.

500 DIED IN STORMS

The Number of Those Injured in the South Will Run Into the Thousands.

SWEPT OVER FIVE STATES

Mississippi, the Worst Sufferer, Has an Estimated Death List of Nearly 200.

Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee and Georgia Were in the Path of the Deadly Winds.

TOWNS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Looting Has Followed the Storm in Some Places—Calls Made for Assistance.

NEW ORLEANS, April 25.—A death list estimated at from half a thousand to 650, a hundred or more persons fatally injured and many times this number painfully hurt, together with a property loss running up in the millions, is the record so far of a tornado that originated in the West two days ago.

Sweeping Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, it has left a path of death, desolation and want in its wake, seriously interrupted all communication between cities in the South and brought about chaotic conditions in many smaller towns.

MISSISSIPPI THE WORST SUFFERER.

Mississippi, already a sufferer from more than one tornado this year, has again borne the brunt of the winds and rains.

Up to midnight to-night the known dead there were 183, the seriously injured 650, while counting minor injuries, in Mississippi Friday morning and afternoon they numbered fully 1,000. Of the injured in Mississippi possibly 200 are in hospitals to-night, while the remainder are cared for by friends.

In a few places some of the injured suffered for nearly twenty-four hours with only the scantiest medical assistance and meanwhile were exposed to a cold rain followed by a scorching sun.

The white persons killed in Mississippi numbered about twenty-five. Nothing on which to base a general property loss for the state had been received to-night, but it is known that about twenty-five towns were badly damaged, that several hundred plantations suffered heavy losses and that railroad property sustained widespread damage.

HAS NINETY-NINE KNOWN DEAD.

Second in the list of sufferers stood Louisiana, closely pressing Mississippi's heels in the matter of property loss.

The death list in Louisiana, which up to dark to-night had been estimated as small, has since mounted up with frightful rapidity, until at midnight it stood at ninety-nine. These deaths, mostly negroes, occurred in an area of about 100 square miles in the eastern portion of the state along the Mississippi. River packets and other slow means of communication began bringing stories of some ruin and frequently of from one to a dozen deaths from all over this section.

It appeared as if instead of a few isolated tornadoes striking a few towns as was supposed yesterday, the entire region was buffeted by a wind resembling a hurricane which did damage, and in a few places developed into tornadoes. Washington, Tangipahoa, Concordia and Rapides parishes each reported incomplete lists of losses which total close to 2 million dollars. These losses do not include much plantation stock which was strewn dead over the face of the country.

MANY APPEALS FOR HELP.

The most accurate index of the losses were appeals for the necessities of life sent by several communities to neighboring towns. The story of how death struck its victims in this region is all largely the same recitals of terrible masses of inanimate objects driven by the wind and miraculously passing some persons, mutilating others, and some times killing an entire family.

Alabama and Georgia come third in loss of life with the dead estimated about the same in each state. Georgia reporting about twenty-five dead and Alabama thirty-one.

In Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee, also, loss of life and property damage is reported.

LOOTING IN SOME TOWNS.

In half a dozen communities martial law has been declared, so terrible was the destruction and so helpless were the stricken people left by the disaster. Serious disorders have occurred in some places including Amite, La. Looting and other crimes have been reported, but these instances have been on the whole rare.

Several places have issued appeals for aid, and in Mississippi Governor Noel has been asked to provide tents for the homeless in sections left desolate.

The tornadoes lasted in all a period of nearly two days. It was Thursday night that damage by tornadoes traveling eastward was first reported from points in Texas. This was followed in the next twenty-four hours by similar reports from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee. Last night Alabama came within the flight of the storm and to-day reports of serious damage by the winds in Georgia have been recorded.

GREAT MISERY IN PURVIS.

Utter misery of every sort was found to-day at Purvis, Miss., by relief parties. Despite the fact that of the 2,500 inhabitants which this little town boasted yesterday morning, there were only 900 to-day, still there were not sufficient accommodations in the wrecked village for even the wounded. Negro mammies and little black children lay wounded and helpless under the broiling Southern sun. Some had broken bones, some were partly crushed and others had been wounded by sticks and splinters. These unfortunates were lucky if they had a blanket or a storm wrecked couch upon which to rest.

There was not enough shelter in the town to protect them from the sun, and many of the walls which remained standing had no roofs, and, by a queer freak of the tornado, many of the trees which had not been uprooted had been snatched off a few feet above the ground. The grove of pines was mutilated in this manner so that it appeared as if a giant scythe had swept through the grove about twenty-five feet above the ground.

Many hurried funerals were held to-day and a count of the visible dead revealed only thirty-four, about half of them negroes. Many negroes were reported killed in the vicinity of Purvis.

PRANKS OF THE STORM.

The manner in which the tornado acted at this village puzzled those who witnessed it. Instead of entering the town at one side and passing out at the other, the storm whirled and see-sawed about. Once or twice, judging from the lay of the debris to-day, the wind veered so much as nearly to double on its trail. The result was terrible for the inhabitants, many of whom were caught and either injured or killed after they had apparently escaped.

The usual freaks were played by the wind. Twenty-seven prisoners were in the little town jail. The roof was lifted off but so terror stricken were they that not one gained his freedom. None of the prisoners was dangerously injured. The wreckage which remained on the site of a lumber mill near town, consisted largely of splinters from the size of toothpicks up to small sticks.

The total money loss at Purvis was to-day estimated at $200,000. These figures were obtained from dozens of business men, each of whom calculated his individual loss. The state to-night is furnishing tents, the neighboring towns are sending supplies and martial law affords practical safety from looting.

"THE EVER MEMORABLE GALE."

A Terrible Storm That Swept Over New England in 1815.

The disastrous storm which spread death and desolation over the South Friday and yesterday probably has eclipsed in its severity the memorable gale and flood of 1815, a disaster which is set down in the records of New England, where it raged, as certainly the worst those states have ever experienced and possibly the worst the country has ever known. The difference in the number of lives sacrificed probably is the difference between New England in 1815 and the South to-day.

Following a perfect deluge of rain over all of New England and contiguous regions, September 23, 1815, high winds sprang out of the east, veered to the south and set in as a tornado of remarkable force. Between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30 o'clock on that morning a wind blew, which unroofed houses, uprooted trees, demolished buildings, stripped the land of vegetation, drove the sea in over the coast cities and farms, killed and maimed a very large number of persons and did millions of dollars' worth of property damage.

During the progress of this terrific storm the sky was often clear and the air, except in the path of the storm, comparatively still. It seems that the storm was the whirling of air in a vortex which moved about over an area sixty miles wide and as long as the coast from New York northward into Canada. After an hour, or slightly longer, the storm abated and worse rains set in. In less than forty-eight hours 8.05 inches of rain fell.

Many strange phenomena attended the storm. In harbors the tide rose seventeen to twenty feet beyond its usual highest level, tore ships and all manner of craft from their moorings and washed them into the very streets of the cities where they were left wrecks when the flood flowed off. The sea invaded many wells of the states and they were salty for many months afterward, causing a water famine in many districts. All vegetation was killed where the water stood, and the grasses that grew afterward were of a different kind than the original. Salt marshes were created, and the entire face of the country altered. Gulls and other sea birds were blown inland twenty-five miles and were seen several days later getting back to their water haunts.

Other gales of great severity have passed over the country since, but for fifty years the tempest on the New England coast in 1815 was spoken of with dread as the "ever memorable September gale."

THE STORM FELT IN OKLAHOMA.

A White Haze Was Seen Instead of the Usual Red Dust.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 25.—The tornado in the Gulf states is believed to have been the cause of an unusual atmospheric condition in Oklahoma yesterday. Heavy winds prevailed Thursday night and Friday forenoon. Such winds usually lift vast quantities of the red dust of Oklahoma into the sky, giving it a reddish tinge. Yesterday, however, the sky and landscape were white, as if a dense cottony fog had overspread them, and at night the peculiar haze shimmered in the electric lights. Whether the condition was due to a lighter colored dust brought from outside states or to certain density of the atmosphere is unknown.

THE STORM IN ARKANSAS.

Half the Town of Hector Was Blown Away.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., April 25.—Reports from Hector, Pope county, a town of 200 inhabitants, say one-half of the town was blown away by a tornado, eighteen houses, four stores and a gin being destroyed. Melville Story, John Heinchie and Sam Austin, all farmers, were killed. George Prior and wife, A. M. Bailey and four children are all believed to be fatally injured.

CRUISER WAS CUT IN TWO

THIRTY LIVES PROBABLY LOST IN YESTERDAY'S SEA DISASTER.

The Big Liner St. Paul, Going at Full Speed, Struck the Gladiator and the Latter Sank in a Few Minutes.

SOUTHAMPTON, April 25.—The cruiser Gladiator is a wreck as a result of its collision in a dense snow storm this morning with the big liner St. Paul off the Isle of Wight.

It is reported that thirty lives were lost on the Gladiator, but this has not been confirmed. The exact number of casualties will not be known until to-morrow.

No one on the St. Paul was killed or injured, but the bodies of Steward Widgery, Writer Cowdrey and a Maltese steward named Diebras, all attached to the cruiser, have been brought ashore; one officer, Lieutenant William G. P. Graves, an Irishman, who attempted to swim to land, is missing, and eight injured have been taken to the military hospital at Golden Hill for treatment.

WAS LATE IN STARTING.

The St. Paul left Southampton at 12:30 o'clock. She was an hour behind her usual time of sailing, the delay being due to the belated arrival of the passenger train, which was blocked by snowdrifts on the trip from London. The weather was comparatively clear in Southampton waters, but immediately the St. Paul turned into the Solent, which runs parallel to the Isle of Wight, she encountered a terrific snow blizzard. Captain Passow and his chief officer, with the American liner's regular pilot, were on the bridge, and a lookout man was posted in the bows.

Suddenly a ship appeared immediately in front of them. It was the Gladiator at anchor. Orders were given on the instant for full speed astern in an endeavor to clear the cruiser, but it was too late.

The St. Paul's sharp stem rammed the anchored vessel amidships. The liner quivered and reeled, and the passengers rushed on deck in great alarm, the women on the verge of a panic. The officers and crew acted with the greatest coolness and allayed the terror with as fine a show of discipline as though she was the best trained man of war.

CRUISER BEGAN TO SINK AT ONCE.

Five boats were lowered within a few minutes to rescue the crew of the Gladiator. The cruiser began to sink almost at once. At the captain's command the men formed in line on the deck and stood in ranks while the cruiser settled down. In obedience to orders successive batches marched to the gangways and entered the St. Paul's boats until practically the whole crew had been taken off and landed at Yarmouth on the Isle of Wight.

The Gladiator's crew numbered 450 men and Captain Walter Lumsden was the last to leave his ship. Only a few men then were missing, and it was believed that most of them had been saved by a boat which had put out from Yarmouth. Captain Lumsden on landing at once sent a message to Captain Passow, thanking him for his promptitude in lowering the boats and speaking in the most complimentary terms of the conduct of the American seamen.

The Gladiator soon settled down. Only her upper works are now visible. The St. Paul returned to Southampton and her passengers were put ashore, seeking accommodations at the various hotels. They will sail by the Teutonic Wednesday, special arrangements having been made by the American company.

LITTLE DAMAGE TO THE ST. PAUL.

The fact that the St. Paul sustained no worse damages than a badly buckled bow and a comparatively small hole on her port side is the most remarkable feature of the whole occurrence. Her injuries were temporarily repaired before putting back to Southampton. On the other hand the Gladiator was a protected cruiser, especially designed for ramming. Unfortunately for her she received the full force of the St. Paul's momentum amidships, and she was cut almost in half.

The storm which was responsible for the collision extends along the whole southeast coast of England and is described as the worst since the blizzard of 1881. All the landmarks were hidden by the driving snow as the St. Paul proceeded on her outward course, and it was exceedingly difficult to locate any sounds of warning that came through the storm.

Several of the men who were rescued from the Gladiator declare that it was marvelous that the ship was not lost with all hands.

CAPTAIN THE LAST TO LEAVE.

All the men speak in terms of highest praise of Captain Lumsden, who, living up to naval tradition, refused to leave the ship until the last.

The Gladiator was a twin screw protected cruiser of the second class. She was of 5,750 tons and was 320 feet in length. She was built at Portsmouth in 1896.

THE MOST UNLUCKY OF SHIPS.

A Series of Mishaps Has Marked the Career of the St. Paul.

The St. Paul is the most unlucky of ships and yesterday's collision with the British cruiser is only another addition to the ill-fortune of the liner. The vessel has had a string of accidents extending over the twelve years she has been in existence, but the hard luck story has not been the sole distinguishing trait of the vessel. Once it held the trans-Atlantic record, and it served in the Spanish-American war with distinction as an auxiliary cruiser.

The St. Paul is a vessel of 16,800 tons, is 554 feet long, has a high running speed of in excess of twenty-one knots and has full accommodation for 1,400 passengers. While not comparable with some of the great liners commissioned in the last few years, the St. Paul is still a vessel of high class and not a mean sort of an ocean greyhound.

As for the hard luck story, it began before the vessel left the ways. The first time an attempt to launch was made the hull refused to move, was wrenched and damaged and caused delay and expense. Just as she set out from New York on her first trip, December 18, 1895, the St. Paul's starboard steam main blew up. Five men were killed and four others mortally injured, dying the same day.

At the end of the second round trip, or a little more than a month later, January 25, 1896, the St. Paul was racing into New York harbor to defeat the Cunarder Campania, when she ran aground off Long Beach. Both the Campania and the St. Paul were crowded to the very guards with passengers from Europe when the test of speed between the rival liners was under way. With the Campania two miles astern, the St. Paul was racing with every ounce of steam she could command, to beat the English record holder and one of the most exciting sea races in history was on. For a whole day the two crack liners raced along and night alone obscured a view of the struggle. Midnight settled down on the ships with the St. Paul still ahead and the probable winner. Sunrise saw her beached in a high sea. After weeks, the ship was finally floated.

In 1898, after the St. Paul had been converted into a cruiser, a fire happened while she was lying off the coast of Florida. With 1,300 tons of ammunition aboard the situation was desperate. After an all day's fight the blaze was extinguished.

July 2 of that year the Spanish torpedo gunboat Terror and other warships came out of the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico, and made for the St. Paul, which guarded the harbor. Three shots from the cruiser put the Terror out of commission and the other ships retreated. Captain Sigsbee, the commander of the unfortunate Maine, was in charge.

While in mid-ocean, in November, 1900, the St. Paul broke her rear propeller, and the accident damaged the ship to the extent of ½ million dollars. A heavy sea lifted the stem of the vessel out of the water, the propeller raced, and when it struck the sea again was revolving with such terrific speed that it was crushed to pieces, tearing up much costly machinery in the interior of the ship at the same time.

RICHARDS ENJOINED IN PART.

Judge Powell Modifies the Injunction in the Divorce Suit.

In the divorce case of Emma N. against E. J. Richards, in Independence yesterday, Judge Walter A. Powell dissolved a restraining order, which had been granted a few days before in so far as it prevented Richards from selling the furniture or seeing their 10-year-old son. That feature of the restraining order forbidding him from molesting Mrs. Richards was allowed to stand. Mrs. Richards is to have leave to ask for the re-issuance of the restraining order in full as formerly if the circumstances of the case should hereafter appear to justify such action on her part.

Mr. Richards has sued John C. Humes for $100,000 damages, alleging that he alienated the affections of Mrs. Richards.

MEXICAN EXHIBIT TO COME.

The Consul to Ask His Government to Send a Display.

Jose V. Dosal, Mexican consul, said yesterday that he would request his government to establish a permanent exhibit of Mexican products in Kansas City. Similar displays have been established in St. Louis, San Antonio, Tex., Philadelphia and in other large cities.

The exhibit would include these products: "Pito," a Mexican fiber for manufacturing rope and twine; tropical fruits, coffee, tobacco, cocoa, India rubber and minerals.

"When I was in Mexico recently," Mr. Dosal said, "I suggested that a comprehensive exhibit be established in Kansas City and received encouragement from the government. I believe that all that is necessary now is to file a formal request.

"The Mexican government bears the expense of assembling the exhibit from the different parts of the republic and pays the transportation charges to the American city where it is to be established. All Kansas City would have to do would be to provide a place for the exhibit and take care of it.

"No finer oranges, figs, pomegranates and pears are raised anywhere than in Mexico. Tropical fruit there has the advantage of maturing a month earlier than the fruit in California and Florida. Few of the dealers here have learned the fact it seems.

"What is the use of buying figs in France and then having to sell them at 10 cents each, when figs just as good can be bought in Mexico and sold here at 20 cents a dozen? The finest tropical fruit can be shipped from Mexico to Kansas City in two days."

THE WEATHER FOR THIS WEEK.

Some Rainy and Some Fair Days in All Sections Are Promised.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—After referring to the breaking of the drought in the wheat belt during the past week and to the temperature as a whole being above the seasonable average, in contrast to wintry conditions in the British isles and Middle and Northern Europe, the weather bureau's weekly forecast to-day says:

The first half of the week, beginning Sunday, April 26, will be cool generally over the United States east of the Rocky mountains and frost will occur in the Northern tier of states and probably as far south as the Ohio river and the Middle Atlantic states.

A rain area that will appear on the Pacific coast the beginning of the week will advance over the central valleys and the lake region by the middle of the week and reach the Atlantic coast states about the close of the week. Preceding the rain area there will be a period of fair weather and rising temperature. The rains in each section will be of one to two days' duration and will, in turn, be followed by a two or three days' period of fair weather.

ASKS $20,000 OF METROPOLITAN.

The Loss of Her Husband's Society the Basis of Mrs. Bernard's Suit.

Mrs. Rebecca Bernard of 4705 Bellview avenue, brought suit in the circuit court yesterday for $20,000 damages against the Metropolitan Street Railway company. She and her husband, Ira Bernard, a teamster, were riding in a wagon on Westport aveune between Summit and Mill streets last September when a car struck the wagon and threw them to the pavement. Bernard received severe injuries and a circuit court jury gave him $7,000 damages. The suit was appealed by the Metropolitan. Mrs. Bernard was not injured. Her suit is for the loss of her husband's society while he was in a hospital.

AN INNOCENT MAN FREED.

The President Aids One Imprisoned Nine Years for Fictitious Crime.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., April 25.—Albert L. Worrell, a life prisoner in the federal penitentiary, will learn in the morinng that President Roosevelt has granted him a full pardon, being satisfied that the crime for which he was sentenced was never committed.

Worrell was sent from Ardmore, Ok., at the age of 17 years to serve a life sentence for an attack on a little girl. He has served nine years.

Pardon Attorney Finch of the Department of Justice at Washington made an investigation and reported that he was satisfied that Worrell was innocent. Worrell had been convicted as the result of a family feud.

An Anarchist Editor Arrested.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25.—Ludovic Caminita, the Italian Anarchist, who edited the paper at Paterson, N. J., which the federal government suppressed, is under arrest here, held on an open charge. Caminita delivered a lecture here on Wednesday evening and was arrested as he was about to leave the city. A sachel filled with printed matter, mostly books and pamphlets in Italian, was seized with him.

MANY DELEGATES THIS WEEK

REPUBLICANS MUST MAKE THEIR SELECTIONS BY MAY 16.

Secretary Taft Now Has 261 Votes of Which He Is Sure Out of the 596 Delegates So Far Elected.

Instructed for Taft	245
Preference expressed for Taft	16
Instructed for Hughes	44
Instructed for Knox	64
Instructed for Cannon	44
Instructed for Fairbanks	30
Instructed for LaFollette	25
Uninstructed	80
Contested	48
Total delegates elected	596
Total in convention	980
Necessary to choice	491

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Since the publication in The Star last Sunday morning of the summary of the Republican Presidential situation, fifty-two delegates have been elected to the Chicago convention. Of these four were instructed for Governor Hughes, fourteen for Secretary Taft, twenty-four were uninstructed and four are contested. The other four were chosen by conventions which adopted resolutions declaring a preference for Taft, but not instructing.

In the table showing the net result of conventions held to date, delegates elected by conventions which adopted "preference resolutions" for Taft are indicated as "preference expressed for Taft." These delegates can be counted upon by the Secretary of War with just as much confidence as if instructed to vote first, last and all the time for him.

The innovation of adopting preference resolutions was established in Massachusetts because of the unwillingness to give Senator Murray Crane, who had publicly said Massachusetts would not instruct, a slap in the face. Since the Massachusetts conventions have been held Senator Crane has practically quit fighting, and it need occasion no surprise if he "comes across" and makes Massachusetts unanimous.

THE SOUTH BEING HEARD FROM.

The delegates pledged to Taft this week are from the Fourth and Twelfth Massachusetts districts, the First and Second West Virginia, Twelfth Michigan, Eighth Alabama, Fourth and Eighth North Carolina and Eighth Tennessee.

The contests are in Arizona and the Third Florida. The uninstructed delegates are from the Twenty-first and Twenty-sixth New York. Nevada's six delegates-at-large, New Hampshire's four delegates-at-large, the First and Second New Hampshire and the First and Thirteenth Massachusetts. The Twenty-seventh and Thirty-first New York districts instructed for Hughes.

Ten state conventions are scheduled for next week—those of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Arkansas, Maine, Colorado, Vermont, Maryland, Mississippi and South Carolina. One of the Alabama state conventions will also be held, two having been announced. The Alaska convention and the primaries in the District of Columbia are among the political events of the coming week and district conventions to the number of forty.

FIGURES ARE NOT PARTISAN.

Of the 596 delegates chosen up to date Secretary Taft has 261, the combined allies have 207, and there are 128 uninstructed and contested. These figures are prepared from records kept independently of any headquarters and after a comparison of the statements submitted by the Taft managers and the allies. The Republican national committee is not keeping a record of the results of the delegate conventions.

The election of delegates to Chicago will cease, under the call of the national committee, May 16. In the three weeks remaining of the campaign 384 delegates must be chosen. The states which have held their conventions are almost all in the East and Middle West. The South has hardly been heard from as yet, and almost the entire Pacific coast. The Taft men assert that they will sweep everything on the coast, but the South will send a long list of contested delegations. The Taft men are declaring with renewed emphasis that the nomination of the Secretary on the first ballot is more than assured.

The allies count as opposed to Taft all delegates not instructed for him, including the contested delegates. It is possible to show by this means that Taft has not secured one-half of the delegates elected to date, but the contention on its face is preposterous. The very latest in the way of anti-Taft literature is an article alleging that the Secretary of War is the candidate of Wall street.

TAFT WON IN KENTUCKY.

The Fairbanks Men Plan to Bring Many Contests, However.

LOUISVILLE, April 25.—Republican county and ward mass conventions were held throughout the state to-day for the purpose of nominating delegates to the following conventions:

To district conventions in ten of Kentucky's eleven congressional districts at which two delegates each to the national convention will be selected and congressmen nominated. These district conventions will be held May 5. The First district has already held its convention.

Reports thus far received show that delegates favorable to Secretary Taft have been chosen in a majority of counties. There will be many contests, however, as the adherents of Vice President Fairbanks held separate conventions in a number of counties. In most of these cases the reports show that the Taft men held the regular party machinery.

COLE COUNTY IS FOR TAFT.

Resolutions Favoring the Secretary Adopted by the Republican Convention.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 25.—The Republicans of Cole county, in convention here this afternoon, elected ten delegates to the Eighth congressional district convention to be held here May 6, to elect two delegates to the national convention in Chicago to nominate a candidate for President.

The convention instructed for William H. Taft for President, J. H. Conrath of this city for one of the two delegates to the Chicago convention and indorsed President Roosevelt, Senator Warner and the Republican state officials.

Three Men Attacked a Conductor.

Three men boarded a Fifth street car at Eighteenth street and Minnesota avenue, Kansas City, Kas., last night and annoyed Adolph Lanz, the conductor, by ringing the bell. When Lanz protested the men attacked him at Eleventh street and Minnesota avenue. The car was stopped and as the men ran one of them threw a stone and struck the conductor under the right ear. The wound is not dangerous.

K. OF P.'S IN ROLLA YESTERDAY.

The Corner Stone for the New Temple Laid—A Big Parade Given.

ROLLA, MO., April 25.—The Knights of Pythias of Rolla laid the corner stone for their new Pythian temple here to-day. Pythians from St. Louis, Salem, Cuba, St. James, Newburg, Dixon and Lebanon assisted in the ceremonies. There was a big parade, headed by a large company of the Uniform Rank. The Rolla band and the Newburg band furnished music for the occasion. J. J. Crites, grand outer guard, delivered the address of welcome, and Thomas L. Ruby of Lebanon, grand chancellor, assisted by Mr. Holmes, grand keeper of records and seal, Charles J. Kostuba, grand prelate; J. Thomas, past grand chancellor, and J. J. Crites, grand outer guard, officiated at the ceremonies.

FOLK TALKS TO CROWDS.

A Busy Day for the Governor—Was in Kansas City Last Night.

Governor Joseph W. Folk addressed four meetings yesterday in North Missouri, reached Kansas City in time for dinner last night and left for Jefferson City on a night train.

The governor left St. Joseph at 8:15 o'clock yesterday morning. When the train reached Stewartsville most of the people of the little town and a great many country people were at the station calling for a speech. The governor talked until the train started, the train crew giving him an extra five minutes.

At Cameron there were 500 people waiting for a speech. The governor climbed on a pine box and talked fifteen minutes. The train waits at Cameron for a Kansas City connection and this gives a good chance for a talk. At Hamilton there was another crowd, but the time for talking was short. Many of the crowd climbing on the train and went to Chillicothe.

By the time his train reached Chillicothe it was crowded with delegations picked up at the small stations. The governor was met at the station by a brass band and a large delegation of Livingston county Democrats. A procession formed and marched to the Leeper house, where the governor held an informal reception, after which he drove to the industrial home for girls for luncheon. He returned to the theater where he was greeted by a big crowd. The crowd was composed largely of farmers from this and adjoining counties.

The Chillicothe crowd indicated what was plainly shown at St. Joseph that the governor's popularity in the country will stand comparison with what it was four years ago. In the last year of a governor's term the rule in Missouri has been that the governor was not particularly strong, but the rule does not apply to Folk. Four years ago as a candiate for governor he spoke to a good sized crowd in Chillicothe, but not a large one. Two years ago he opened the campaign at Chillicothe with a crowded house. Yesterday there were more people who tried to hear him than attended both the former meetings. Livingston county is "dry" now and the governor's defiance to the liquor men who are fighting him made a decided hit. He made practically the same speech as at St. Joseph, but he added this rather signficant statement:

"There are men in the Democratic party who sneer at reform and say let's go back to the old days. They would have the Democratic party sound a charge. The Democratic party must continue its fight for reform."

The governor was loubly cheered. The meeting was presided over by L. A. Martin, chairman of the Democratic city central committee. The speech introducing the governor was made by ex-Representative F. K. Thompson, a farmer, who delared that the people did not want a politician in the Senate, but a man who would represent the entire state.

"MEDICS" GO ON AN OUTING.

Dr. F. B. Tiffany Entertained Twenty on His Farm Near Parkville.

In a valley half a mile north of Dr. Flavel B. Tiffany's farm near Parkville, Mo., yesterday afternoon twenty young men raced across a broad meadow and stopped suddenly before a little stream. Then in a free-for-all struggle they threw each other off the bank into the muddy water. An hour before they had been dignified young medical students. They were having a "day with nature," at the invitation of Dr. Tiffany.

Every year Dr. Tiffany invites the senior and junior classes and the senior nurses of the University Medical college to spend a day on his farm. In addition to the students a number of Dr. Tiffany's friends were present. Carl Busch, Miss Mabel Hamm, Karl Smith, Franklyn Hunt, Miss May McDonald, Miss Fannie Irwin and Hans Peterson furnished music for the party.

The picnickers returned to Kansas City at 9 o'clock last night.

WALLACE IN CLINTON COUNTY.

An Anti-Saloon and Sunday Law Address by the Criminal Judge.

PLATTSBURG, MO., April 25.—Clinton county farmers and townspeople filled the courthouse here to-day and listened to Judge William H. Wallace's speech in his canvass for the Democratic nomination of governor. The judge of the Jackson county criminal court spoke against the saloon and advocated the prohibition of the sale of beer and liquors as a beverage. He also advocated the enforcement of the Sunday laws.

A NAP ON A BEER KEG.

The Sleeper, a Kansan, Fell Off and Was Injured.

C. A. Berggren, 28 years old, of Lindsborg, Kas., went to sleep sitting on a beer keg near Second and Wyandotte streets about 8 o'clock last night. He fell off the keg and his head struck a rail, making a two-inch cut over his left eye. He was treated at the emergency hospital.

GAVE UP $200,000 TO WED

A MILLIONAIRE'S BRIBE PUT ASIDE BY HIS DAUGHTER.

William Penn Cambios, a Philadelphia Banker, Offered a Fortune in an Effort to Prevent or Postpone a Wedding.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Incidental to a happy honeymoon at the Plaza hotel the secret came out this afternoon of how, rejecting her father's offer of $200,000 to give up the man of her choice, Miss Helen K. Camblos, 19 years old, daughter of William Penn Camblos, a millionaire banker and broker of Philadelphia, brought to an end her pretty romance last Monday evening by becoming the bride of William J. Ryan, proprietor of a number of theatrical ticket offices in Philadelphia hotels.

The wedding took place in the church house of St. Patrick's church, Philadelphia, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. William Kiernan. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, happy at the successful termination of their plans, came to this city in a motor car and registered at the Plaza.

MADE UP THEIR MINDS QUICKLY.

The determination of the young couple to have the marriage performed was reached suddenly and was carried out with astonishing promptitude. Last week they both spent several days at Atlantic City, where they met and discussed their future plans for their happiness together. All at once, as he laughingly admitted, Mr. Ryan suggested that they get married without further delay. They had long known each other and had been engaged for some time, although no date had been set for their marriage.

Miss Camblos was favorable to the idea and together they journeyed in a motor car to Philadelphia, where they suddenly appeared at Mr. Camblos's office, much to that man's astonishment.

"We have decided to get married—and right away," Miss Camblos told her father. Mr. Camblos said nothing, but quickly drew from a private drawer his check book and proceeded to write out a check to his daughter's order for $200,000.

OFFERED HER THE CHECK.

"That check is for you," he said, turning about from his desk abruptly, "if you will agree to call this thing off—for a while, anyway."

Miss Camblos looked from her father to her suitor and then back at her father. Mr. Ryan said nothing. He awaited the girl's decision without offering a word in his own favor.

"I guess we'll get married," the girl said.

Leaving behind them the $200,000 check, the young couple started out at once to find a minister. They went to St. Patrick's Catholic church, and the Rev. Father Kiernan performed the ceremony.

LOST $36,000 AT BACCARAT?

One Night's Play in Paris Disastrous to Winfield Hoyt of New York.

PARIS, April 25.—There was an epic baccarat battle in the Circle des Capucines last night. This is the well known gaming club where John W. Gates, Captain William H. Wheeler, Charles Singer, Charles M. Schwab and other daring players are trying their luck in Paris. There is usually a $2,000 limit, but they took the limit off last night when Winfield Hoyt of New York, known to his friends as "Winnie," called for "an open bank."

Mr. Hoyt, who is secretary, friend and adviser of William K. Vanderbilt, is not known as an uncautious player. Usually he gets up when luck runs against him, but last night he seemed to be spiked to his chair.

Earlier in the week he had won some big bets on Vanderbilt's horses and had a large roll in the beginning. It lasted well on until towards daylight, by which time, it is said, he had lost precisely $36,000. Hoyt looked a trifle dazed when he finally left the table and his friends believed it best to walk home with him.

A WARRANT FOR E. C. MILES.

The Brother of Mrs. Louis Nachman Charged With Assaulting Her Husband.

A warrant was issued yesterday afternoon from the office of the prosecuting attorney for the arrest of E. C. Miles, charging him with assaulting Louis Nachman, a traveling salesman for the Cudahy Packing company. The trouble occurred when Nachman and Mrs. Nachman, who formerly was Mrs. Grace Miles and a sister-in-law of E. C. Miles, were on the way to her mother's home, 320 West Thirteenth street. It is said that Nachman received a fracture of the bone in his nose and several bruises. Miles had not been arrested late last night.

Nachman was arested last December, three days after his wedding, charged with forging his father's name to a check for $50. He was released at the request of his father, who came here from Sioux City, Ia.

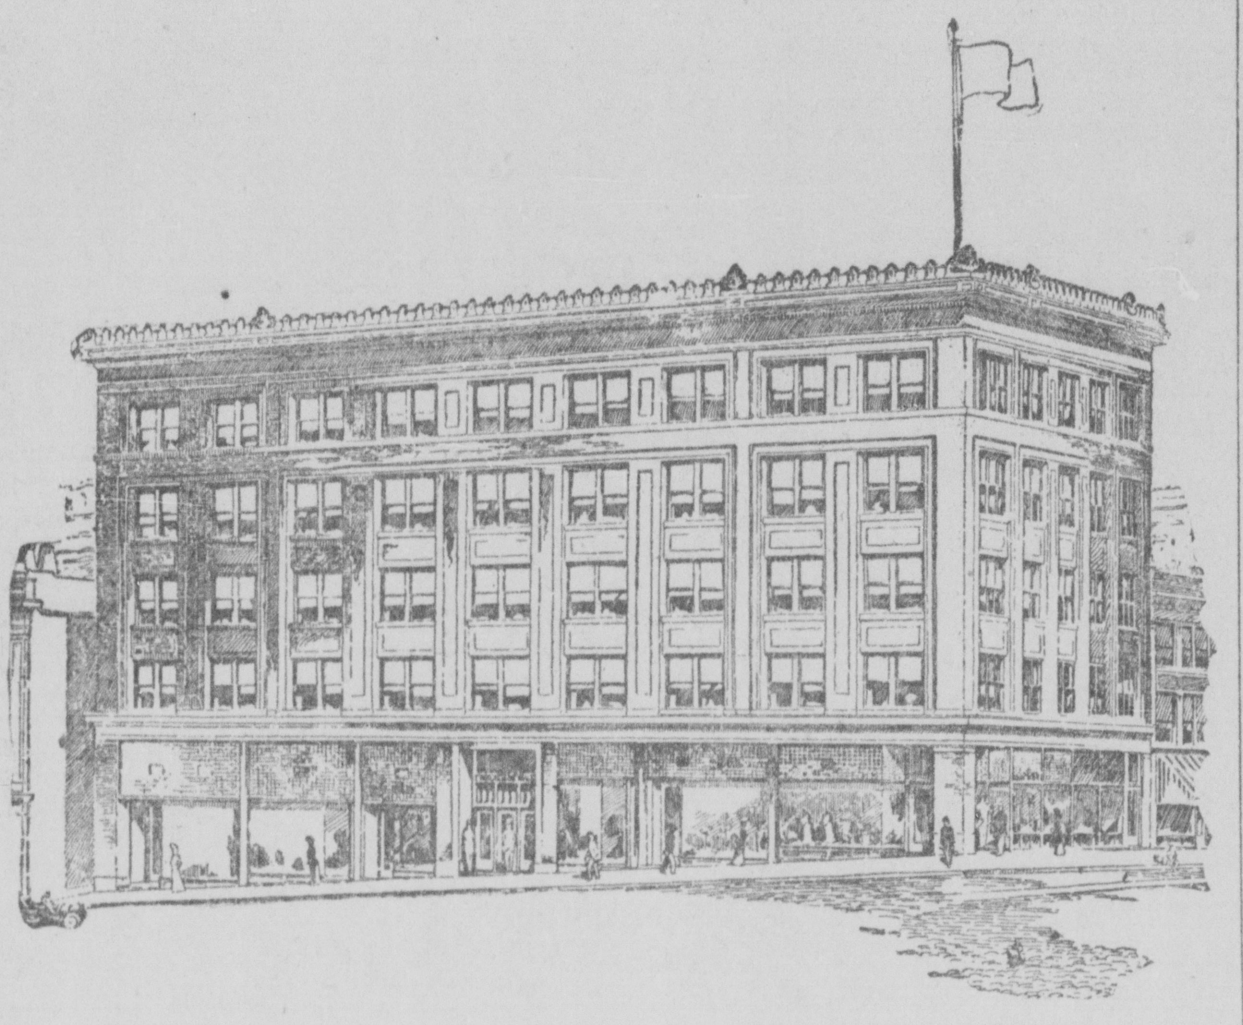
CONCRETE FOR OFFICES NOW

THE PLANS CHANGED FOR THE RELIANCE BUILLING.

A Contract Let for a Five-Story Structure at Tenth and McGee Streets—Several Warehouses of Concrete Already Here.

Kansas City is to have its first office building built of reinforced concrete. Recently Howe & Hoit, the architects, prepared plans for a five story office building to be erected at the northwest corner of Tenth and McGee streets. The original plans provided for steel columns, wood joists, and the usual interior construction. The outside walls were to be of gray brick with terra cotta trimmings.



THE RELIANCE OFFICE BUILDING TO BE ERECTED OF REINFORCED CONCRETE AT TENTH AND M'GEE STREETS.

The plans have been changed as far as the material for the interior construction is concerned. Reinforced concrete will be used for the girders, supports, columns, floor panels, lintels and floors. Even the pent houses are to be of reinforced concrete. No other material is to be used in the interior. The floors will have reinforced concrete base covered with wood. The contract has been let for the construction of the building.

Howe & Hoit are changing the plans of the school now being built for the Sisters of St. Mary at Twenty-eighth and Main streets. The exterior plans are not changed, but the interior will be built of reinforced concrete.

There are a number of warehouses and two or three factory buildings in Kansas City built of reinforced concrete, but the building at Tenth and McGee streets is the first office building in which reinforced concrete is used exclusively for the interior construction. Perhaps the largest business building built of reinforced concrete is the nine story building at Nineteenth and Campbell streets occupied by Montgomery, Ward & Co.

HOLMES HOMESTEAD LEASED.

Ira J. Hedrick Will Build Apartments at Twelfth and Prospect.

Three leases from James T. Holmes to Ira J. Hedrick were placed on record yesterday covering the Holmes homestead, northeast corner of Twelfth street and Prospect avenue. The property is 257 feet by 205 feet and is leased for the term of ninety-nine years on a valuation of $40,000. Mr. Hedrick will begin immediately the erection of eight detached buildings each containing four separate modern apartments. On the Twelfth street front there will be erected a row of eight stores. James Goodwin was the agent for both parties in the negotiation of the lease.

NOT TO FIGHT WITH CASTRO

A Severing of Diplomatic Relations the Club to Be Used.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Discontinuance of all diplomatic relations between the two countries is apparently the method that will be taken by this country to discipline President Castro of Venezuela.

Minister Russell will come home for an apparent furlough of sixty days, but no secret is made of the fact at the State department that he will not return until a settlement is reached. The gunboat Paducah has been placed at his disposal for the trip, owing to the quarantine regulations in the South American republic.

The administration is thoroughly worried at the independent attitude of Castro. Some time ago it was announced from the White house—but at the same time with the reservation characteristic of the President when he does not want to be forced into an issue—that a great army was assembling and that a fleet would visit Venezuelan waters for purposes of a demonstration of power. This apparently did not bother Castro and that plan was abandoned.

The next step was a plan to have Congress authorize a commission, which should be backed up by the navy, to visit Venezuela, make a report, that report to be an ultimatum. Still Castro showed no sign of being perturbed and that plan was rejected.

It is said that the administration does not feel that it could secure any popular support for a move against the minor South American state in a plan to collect the claims of the Asphalt trust.

The plan of severing diplomatic relations and leaving Castro alone has been evolved. It is believed he will not long survive this isolation and will be clamoring for terms. That remains to be seen.

A Kansas Democrat Out for Congress.

FREDONIA, KAS., April 25.—T. J. Hudson announced himself here to-day as a candidate for Congress in the Third district, subject to the primary August 4. It will be remembered Mr. Hudson is the Kansas Democrat who served in the Fifty-third Congress. The Rev. J. D. Botkin, who served as congressman-at-large in the Fifty-fifth Congress, visited here several days this week. He is a candidate for the nomination of governor at the Democratic primary.

A BUSY CAMPAIGN BY BRISTOW

The Opponent of Long Is Finding Many Friends.

SALINA, KAS., April 25.—Joseph L. Bristow, who is making an aggressive campaign for the United States Senate against Senator Long, will spend the next ten days in the northwestern part of the state. Next Monday and Tuesday will be spent in Republic county, Wednesday he will be in Smith county, Thursday in Phillips county, Friday in Norton county, Saturday in Decatur county, Monday, May 4, in Rawlins county, Tuesday in Cheyenne county and Wednesday in Sherman county. On this trip Mr. Bristow will speak or visit with the people as his friends in the various counties prefer.

Mr. Bristow returned a few days ago from Southern Kansas, where he spent ten days. He is greatly encouraged over the outlook in that part of the state and says that he found more friends there than he had expected. Since his return to Salina he has spent the two days in answering his accumulated mail, which was very heavy. He has two stenographers employed and their time is fully occupied taking care of the correspondence. The letters Mr. Bristow is receiving are very flattering and show that he is making friends daily in various parts of the state. His time will be occupied from now until the primaries are held in August looking after his interests as a candidate for the Senate, and he will visit as many counties as it is possible to make.

WOULD REINSTATE MISS O'BRIEN

The Court of Appeals Refuses to Mandamus M. S. U. Curators.

The Kansas City court of appeals has denied an alternative writ of mandamus directed against the board of curators of Missouri university, ordering them to reinstate Miss Agnes O'Brien in the university or appear in court and show cause why this should not be done.

Miss O'Brien is the senior co-ed. of Independence who was suspended several weeks ago for championing the cause of a fellow co-ed., Miss Mary Craig of Knobnoster, Mo., because she refused to take a cold shower bath after a basket-ball game.

The attorneys probably will ask the supreme court for an alternative writ directing the board of curators either to reinstate Miss O'Brien or appear and show cause why they should not.

IN POLITICS FOR THE FUN

GRANT VICTOR'S AMUSEMENT TURNED OUT A SERIOUS THING.

Now He's Marshal of Eastern Oklahoma and Has Given Up a Profitable Business for a Job That Pays $4,000 a Year.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 25.—"I got into politics as a sort of a joke twelve years ago, and now here I am leaving my farm and my home and moving my family to Muskogee to hold down a job that will not suit me half so well as farming, and one that will cost me money every day I hold it. Politics is a funny business." That is the way that Grant Victor, the new marshal of the Eastern district of Oklahoma, sizes up his appointment the first week after he has taken his office.

Victor is a native of Illinois. He was born at Ullian forty years ago and his parents died when he was an infant. He is of Irish and French descent and a typical Westerner. He has made good in every undertaking and is now holding one of the best federal jobs in the state.

ALL HIS TIME TO HIS OFFICE.

Victor says he intends to make good in this job, no matter what it costs him, and, following out that policy, he will devote all his time to the office, will resign as chairman of the Republican Congressional committee and carry out the idea that he has long held, that no federal official should be a member of the party organization. This is supposed to be an object lesson to C. E. Hunter, who is chairman of the state committee and also clerk of the federal court of the Western district.

When Victor was a boy he served an apprenticeship as a brickmason. He went to Kansas City and there worked at his trade. He laid brick in the New York Life building, the Midland hotel, the New England building, the Board of Trade building and the club at Twelfth and Wyandotte streets in Kansas City. In 1891 he came to Indian territory, and soon afterward, married Delilah C. Hastings, a Cherokee girl, and settled at Afton, where he now lives. Mrs. Victor and six children all have allotments.

HE OWNS 2,200 ACRES.

In addition to this Victor has acquired enough land to make his present farm cover 2,200 acres. On this land there are now twenty-four families working either directly or indirectly for the owner. Last year Victor fed and marketed $9,000 worth of cattle and the year before $21,500 worth. He bought and sold lots of live stock at Afton and his annual business amounts to more than $100,000. His country home at Afton is one of the finest in the state, thoroughly modern in every respect, and it cost more than $10,000. He is leaving all this to take a political job that pays him $4,000 a year, all "because it is a part of the game."

Victor got into politics twelve years ago. He was made a member of the state committee the year McKinley made his first campaign, and has been on the committee ever since, being chairman at the time the two territories were made a state.

The land owned by Victor is easily worth $50,000. He bought nearly all of it from freedmen Cherokees, with the exception of the seven allotments made to his wife and children. He has turned the management of all his business over to his nephew who will have charge of it as long as Victor holds his job as marshal.

K.C.A.C.'S NEW FIELD OPENS

FOUR ACRES TO BE USED FOR TENNIS, BASEBAL AND OTHER SPORTS.

A Running Track Six Laps to the Mile a Feature—A Suggestion That Boys Be Allowed to Use the Field Saturday Mornings.

Several hundred members with their families and friends attended the formal opening yesterday afternoon of the Kansas City Athletic club's new field at Thirty-fourth and Locust streets. The property, a little more than four acres, was bought more than a year ago with a fund subscribed by a holding company made up of members. It was then a rough, ungraded field.

The directors of the club gave M. A. Delaney, physical director, control of the work of grading and laying out the grounds. The hill at the southeast corner of the square was cut down and the dirt used to fill the hollows. A retaining wall seven feet high was built between the field and the property of the Little Sisters of the Poor. A close fence was erected around the four acres. Seven tennis courts and a handball court were built and a comfortable clubhouse was erected with cafe, grill, shower baths with hot and cold water, and lockers for 200 members.

A GRANDSTAND TO BE BUILT ALSO.

A grandstand is soon to be built in the southwest corner back of the sunken ball field, with seating capacity for 1,000 persons. The ball field is surrounded with a running track, six laps to the mile. Space is reserved in the southeast corner for shot putting and in the southwest corner for field sports, such as pole vaulting and high jumping. On the terrace between the tennis court and the ball field a landscape gardener is arranging the club letters, "K. C. A. C.," in flowers. On the lawn at one side of the entrance to the clubhouse the gardener is to reproduce the club's familiar emblem, the log cabin and the letters "K. C."

The club's field opening emphasized strongly the need of playgrounds in Kansas City. Probably 200 boys, and not a "tough" in the crowd, to judge by their conduct, entered the field and lounged about for hours enviously watching the men at play. They ran themselves tired on the excellent straightaway course and they chased balls and carried bats and did all the labor that boys always are glad to do in such circumstances.

SATURDAY MORNINGS FOR THE BOYS.

It needed only the suggestion. Before the afternoon was ended V. J. O'Flaherty, chairman of the athletic committee, announced that the board of directors would be asked to set aside Saturday morning until noon for boys who might care to use the Kansas City Athletic club's field as a playground. No doubt the board will gladly grant the request. Martin Delaney, the physical director, will be on the grounds every Saturday.

"The directors are well pleased with the work that Mr. Delaney has done out here," President Reynolds said. "He has labored long and faithfully and has done more, with less money, than anyone believed could be done. This end of the club's activities, the athletic field and club house, will be made attractive for the members. The service will be kept up to its accustomed standard."

TENNIS TOURNAMENTS LATER.

Everything is in readiness for the summer's games with particular reference to tennis. The Missouri Valley tournament will begin on this field August 24, the handicap for singles and doubles, members only, June 1, and the city tournament, open to greater Kansas City, singles and doubles, July 20. Chairman Tritle expects more than eighty entries. "Members and their wives or families," Mr. Tritle said, "may play in the morning any day except Saturday, Sunday and holidays."

The club will have four baseball teams this summer with Herbert Woods, Albert Welhener, George and W. E. Lyons as captains. Every member of the club will have a chance to play ball this summer regardless of ability or previous condition or experience.

At 1 o'clock the athletic committee entertained members and special guests at luncheon in the field clubhouse. These were present: Thomas Reynolds, president Kansas City Athletic club; V. J. O'Flaherty, chairman athletic committee; William Cheek, former president Kansas City Athletic club; Edward J. Dillon, secretary; Edward Shaw, treasurer; Martin A. Delaney, physical instructor; Dr. William E. Lyons, L. E. Riddle, George Creel, George Stith, club manager; W. C. Miller, Howard Lea, J. C. Masker, Day K. Smith, J. S. Tritle, Herbert Wood, Paul Solschied, Douglas Wallace. Speeches of felicitation were made by Howard Lea, George Creel and V. J. O'Flaherty.

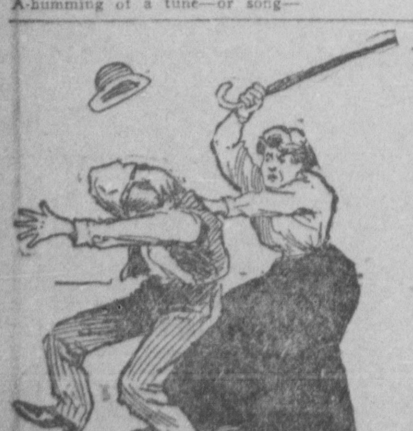
The Editor Chastised.

It was that hour when gentle cows
Come home from pastures where they browse;
It was that hour when cheerful quails
Call out "Bob White" from the fence rails;
That tender hour when soft desires
Are stirred by smoke of kitchen fires:
(Oh! who with rude, unseemly jower
Could mar that holy, tender hour!)

Yes; 'twas the twilight hour; alone
Walt Walters of the Megaphone
All in his shirt-sleeves walked along,
A-humming of a tune—or song—



SHE LAMMED HIM WITH HER UMBRELL.

And summer zephyrs gently kissed
The curls of that great journalist,
Whose steps were bent—so runs the tale—
To the postoffice for his mail.

Then, all at once, he did descry
A woman with a demon eye:
Without a word, as I hear tell,
She lammed him with her umbrell;
And then, not caring for his pain,
She lammed, and lammed, and lammed again:
But he, too much a gentleman
To hit her back, then up and ran.

It sure is very sad, the way
Some folks act up this present day
And age! And woman, too,
In spite of all we say or do,
Is getting so we cannot count
On her, to any great amount,
To act as gentle woman should:
Timid, tender, cam and good.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR BRAKEMAN

A. N. Howlett of Slater, Mo., Fell in Front of a Moving Train.

MEXICO, Mo., April 25.—A. N. Howlett of Slater, Mo., a Chicago & Alton brakeman, had a narrow escape from death in the yards here early this morning. While attempting to cross in front of his freight train, which was moving slowly, Howlett stumbled and fell in front of the engine. He seized the point of the pilot and was dragged several yards before the train was stopped. His leg was broken and he was badly bruised up. His injuries are not considered dangerous.

EMALINE'S MOTHER COMES.

Hot Water Fell on the Cat and Considerable Confusion Resulted.

"Saw an old pal of yours last night," the office boy began.

No answer.

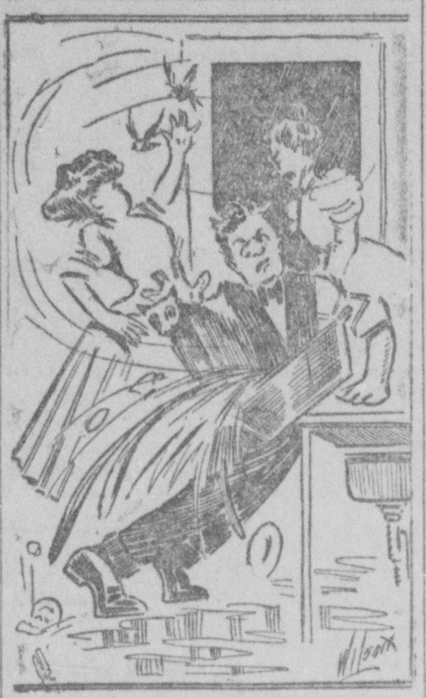
"Name's Louis Faris."

Silence.

"Well, what do you know about war?" the office boy inquired. "Ain't gettin' henpecked, are you? Seems like you'd talk a little while you're away from home. If I had to listen to——"

"Shut up, will you?" the junior clerk growled.

"That's good, keep it up," the office boy bantered. "You'll get rid of a whole sentence pretty soon."



"I TRIED TO RESCUE THE FREAK AN' KNOCKED THE WHOLE BLOOMIN' BUNCH ON THE FLOOR."

"I wonder if you'll quit talkin' when you're dead?" the junior clerk asked testily. "Honest, kid, if you did as much work with your hands as you do with your tongue, you'd be th' boss of this ranch."

"Ain't got it on you any. But what's th' use of scrappin'? You're going to tell me about it anyway. Come on, loosen up, don't be tight."

"Well, you see, it was this way. You know Emaline's mother's come to live with us. No, she didn't come alone, either. Brought a parrot, couple of canaries, a pet coon an' a black cat with her. Didn't have any other place to put 'em, so we stored th' whole bunch in th' kitchen. Had a reg'lar menagerie out there. First three nights I made 'bout $2.75, lettin' in th' kids to see me feed th' animals. Great.

"Well, th' other night all the animals was in th' kitchen an' maw was in there doin' some knittin'. Emaline was gettin' ready to wash th' dishes.

"'Goin' to help me, maw?' she asks.

"'I'm tired,' maw says, kinda peevish like. 'Let your husband do 'em. What'd you marry him for, anyway?' an' she went on knittin'.

"'Sure, I'll help you,' says I, gettin' out a towel an' fixin' to wipe th' dishes. Well, Emaline washes up a bunch an' puts 'em in a big pan. I grabs a plate an' starts wipin'.

"'Ya-ah-h-h!' Emaline says, 'don't wipe those dishes without rinsin' em. Pour hot water on 'em.' I reaches over to th' gas stove an' gets a kettle of boilin' water an' starts to pour it on th' dishes. Just then that cat of maw's gets in my road an' I dropped th' kettle. There was a kinda sloshin' sound an' then a whole room full of squalls. Th' bloomin' water'd scalded th' whole hide offen th' derned cat. Lordy, th' fool thing squealed like a calliope an' jumps straight up in th' air. Hit th' canary cage an' knocked th' bottom out. Then th' fool thing jumped up on Emaline's shoulders, bit its initials there an' then started in to see how much of th' room it could tear up. Emaline an' maw got to yellin' an' tried to run 'round the room. Cat let out some more squalls an' jumped at th' coon. It got scared, tried to jump out of th' way an' landed right in th' dishpan. I tried to rescue th' freak an' knocked th' whole bloomin bunch of junk on th' floor.

"Then th' canaries an' th' parrot got started. While th' canaries were a-tryin' to peck Emaline's nose off, th' idiotic parrot got his feet tangled up in maw's hair an' tried to fly off with it. Excitement? Oh, no. It was quiet as a boiler shop. I was a-layin' behind th' gas stove, tryin' to hold th' coon, Emaline was up on th' table with a dish towel fightin' th' canaries, maw was waltzin' all over th' kitchen, tryin' to get a toe hold on th' parrot an th' cat was in th' dish pan, playin' pool with th' busted dishes. Looked like I wasn't goin' to have any more home than a rabbit when th' fire department busted in an' put th' whole bunch out."

"Tough luck," the office boy said softly.

"Tough luck—nothin'! Don't you ever think it."

"Why?"

"Maw's goin' home."

COLLEGE CONFERENCE HERE

PRESBYTERIAN SCHOOL HEADS WILL DISCUSS COURSES OF STUDY.

Representatives of Sixty Institutions Expected to Attend—The Meeting Will Precede the General Assembly of the Church May 21.

The day before the meeting of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which will convene here May 21, the college conference is to meet at the Second Presbyterian church at Broadway and Fifteenth street. The conference is to be attended by the presidents of all the Presbyterian colleges and universities in the country, of which there are sixty.

The subjects to come before the conference for discussion include college Bible teaching, college evangelism, ministerial candidates in college and additional college courses. Among those who will take part in the discussions will be Dr. J. C. Baer, president of the Synodical college of the state of California; Dr. S. T. Wilson, president of the Synodical college of Tennessee at Maryville, Tenn.; Dr. L. E. Holden, president of Wooster university of Ohio, which has received within the year an additional endowment of ½ million dollars, and Dr. H. C. Culberson, president of the Synodical college of Kansas at Emporia.

The conference probably will be presided over by Dr. L. M. McAfee, president of Park college at Parkville. The delegates probably will visit the school at Parkville. The board of education of the Presbyterian church is to be represented at the conference and its report is to show an increase in the members of theological students over last year of about 25 per cent. Last year the report estimated that there was one student for the ministry to every 1,432 members. This year's report will show one student to every 1,228 members.

The general conference of the Presbyterian church is to meet in Convention hall. Presbyteries all over the United States are now electing commissioners, who will be delegates to this conference. Eight hundred will be entitled to take part in the proceedings and vote. One-half of this number are to be laymen.

CHURCH AND LABOR TO MEET.

A Discussion of Their Relations to Be Held in Convention Hall.

Plans for a big mass meeting in Convention hall Sunday afternoon, May 24, to discuss the relation of the churches and labor were talked over Friday night at a joint meeting of representatives of the Presbyterian churches and organized labor of Kansas City. Among the distinguished speakers for the mass meeting will be the Rev. Charles O. Stetzle, head of the department of labor of the Presbyterian church in the United States, and John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor.

It is planned to have a great orchestra composed of members of the Musicians' union of Kansas City. There will also be a chorus of 400 voices under the Oratorio society, and the Central High School Glee club.

The mass meeting is the result of the new movement in the Presbyterian denomination, under its labor department, to establish a closer relationship of the church to the great mass of labor. It is to be one of the foremost questions to be considered in the coming general assembly of the Presbyterian church.

A NEW HOSPITAL FOR TOPEKA.

The Sisters of Charity to Spend $100,000 on a Building.

Bishop Thomas F. Lillis of the Leavenworth diocese will administer confirmation in the Church of the Assumption in Topeka to-day. Before returning to Kansas City, Kas., the bishop will make final arrangements for the erection of a new Catholic hospital in Topeka. The plans for the hospital are all ready and call for a total expenditure of $100,000. The hospital will be conducted by the Sisters of Charity of Leavenworth. It will be the first Catholic institution in Topeka aside from the churches, and the largest in the diocese except St. Margaret's hospital in Kansas City, Kas.

IS A CHALLENGE TO STUBBS

LELAND FORMALLY OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP.

The Doniphan County Man Says That if He Is Defeated He Will Give Loyal Support to the Nominee of the Party.

BELLEVILLE, KAS., April 25.—Cyrus Leland opened his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor in Belleville this afternoon. The large court room was filled. In the audience were about twenty-five old soldiers. In fact the entire day was much on the order of a veterans' reunion, for the members of the local G. A. R. post took "Comrade" Leland under their wing almost from the moment of his arrival in town.

Before the meeting a reception was held in the post headquarters, after which the "old boys" escorted Mr. Leland in a body to the hall. In addition to Mr. Leland's "keynote" address, ex-Governor W. F. Bailey furnished the real fireworks. Bailey made it clear that he is for Leland and not for Stubbs. He spoke with great stress, coupled with feeling, when he referred to his long friendship for Leland, and he was vigorously cheered as he told of his personal knowledge of Leland's business and political integrity.

STUBBS'S NAME NOT MENTIONED.

The meeting was full of enthusiasm. Mr. Leland, who made no pretense at oratorical ability, read his address from manuscript. At no time did he mention Mr. Stubbs's name directly or by inference. One feature of his speech that appeared to strike a popular chord was his declaration to be loyal to the nominee and not sulk provided he is not nominated. This was looked upon as something in the nature of a challenge to Mr. Stubbs, for it has been charged that he shirked in the Harris-Hoch campaign, and it has also been charged that he and his followers will permit the Leland forces alone to make the fight provided that Stubbs is not victorious in the August primary.

Ex-Governor Bailey's address was sensational. He openly accused Stubbs of bolting the ticket at the last gubernatorial election.

"I'm for Cy Leland and against W. R. Stubbs," said Mr Bailey, "because Leland has always stood up for Kansas, while Stubbs is an alarmist. He has an apology for every law. In his bills announcing his meetings Mr. Stubbs has printed 'the people's candidate for governor.' I believe that a man who is running for the Republican nomination for governor should be proud to list himself as the Republican candidate for governor.

"Some time ago I heard Mr. Stubbs make a speech to the old soldiers. Not one complimentary thing did he say of the party from which he now asks the nomination for governor. In every word he attempted to sow discord and discontent. He was a candidate for senator then. He said 'everything will go to ruin unless you elect honest men to the Senate, and I am a candidate for the Senate.'

BAILEY DOES A LITTLE "SPREAD EAGLE."

"I followed Mr. Stubbs on that occasion. I said then, as I say now, I am not the kind of an American citizen who will sit by and hear his state and country ridiculed. If what Mr. Stubbs has said is true, you old soldiers fought in vain. If what he says is true you might as well tear that flag from the mast.

"The man who bids for the Republican nomination for governor should be a Republican. I openly charge on this platform that W. R. Stubbs tried to defeat the party nominee in the last Republican state campaign, and now he comes forward and asks that party for the highest honor in the state. Mr. Stubbs, because he couldn't dictate to the governor of our state, entered into a collusion with the Democrats of his own county. Mr. Stubbs had sore eyes and a sorer heart during that campaign."

Mr. Bailey told of the Wichita convention and the statement issued by Stubbs as chairman of the Repulican state convention that the amount of all funds subscribed should be made public.

"Calling from the housetops that the old method of raising and disbursing campaign funds was wrong, Mr. Stubbs secretly did the same thing. The man who condemns a thing as wrong and at the same time does that thing himself is a hypocrite. In all his speeches Stubbs tries to tear down the record of the Republican party. The welfare of our party isn't paramount to Stubbs's ambition.

HIS TRIBUTE TO LELAND.

"Now, as to Cy Leland," said Mr. Bailey, "I have known him for twenty-five years. All times he hasn't done as I wanted him to, but he is a Republican always. He has always been loyal to Kansas and has played an important and honorable part in her history, and I challenge any man to successfully charge him with grafting.

"To you old soldiers I want to say that this is probably the last chance for you to vote for one of your number for governor."

The meeting was presided over by B. T. Stansfield, an old soldier and a delegate to the Chicago national convention.

THE "KEYNOTE" SPEECH.

Mr. Leland said, in part:

Having decided to become a candidate for the nomination to the office of governor of the state of Kansas, subject to the decision of the Republican voters at the primary election to be held August 4, I desire to state, briefly, some of the reasons why I have concluded to aspire to this high honor at the hands of the Republican party of Kansas.

First of all, I desire to say that being profoundly convinced that the material welfare of the state and nation depends absolutely upon the supremacy of Republican principles and policies, it is my earnest hope that this preliminary campaign for the selection of party candidates will be conducted in such a spirit of tolerance as between opposing candidates for party nominations that the result of this preliminary contest, however enthusiasticly and aggressively the same may be carried on by the voters in support of their favorite candidate, that the party as a whole may be stronger and better prepared in the end to wage a successful fight against our common opponent, the Democratic party. I for one shall keep this object constantly in mind throughout the entire campaign.

This is a struggle between Republicans. Some will be successful, others are bound to be disappointed. The successful candidates at the August primaries will be the party candidates at the November election. It seems to me that at this time every Republican ought to resolve to abide by the party's choice, and whether his favorite candidate be chosen to bear the standard of Republicanism or not, to be ready to join with all other good Republicans in presenting a solid front in the final campaign that will precede the November election.

For more than fifty years I have been a resident of Kansas, during all of which time I have been identified with the Republican party. I have participated in many hardly contested struggles for my choice for the party honors, but, whether successful or otherwise, have uniformly supported the party candidates when chosen as against the candidates of other parties.

A LONG PERIOD OF SERVICE.

Since my first election to the state legislature in 1865 I have taken a deep interest in political affairs of our state and of the nation, and I believe that I may be permitted to say without boasting that I have always been found on the firing line when there was any fighting to do on behalf of the Republican party. Of course, no one could be engaged, as I have been for so many years, actively in the political struggles that have been waged within and without the party, without being obliged at times to incur the temporary ill will of some excellent Republicans whose personal ambitions happened to conflict with the aspirations of other excellent Republicans whom I was at the time supporting. It is inevitable that one should, in fighting for friends, incur the temporary displeasures of those against whom his own friend is waging a contest for party honors.

I want to say that I have always accorded the same privileges to others that I have claimed for myself in supporting actively and aggressively their personal choice among Republicans for advancement in the party councils. I respect a good fighter, and I would like to have it distinctly understood that for all such I entertain a wholesome respect and no feeling of animosity whatever; and if it should be my good fortune to become the choice of the Republican party as its candidate for governor, I shall expect the loyal support of all the Republicans of the state, and I can assure you that upon my part I shall endeavor to be a candidate of the whole Republican party.

During the long period of my active participation in Kansas politics, the great educational, charitable and penal institutions of the state have been founded and developed into their present high state of efficiency, and in that development, I am pleased to say, I have performed an active and I believe not an unimportant part. No state in the Union has done more along these lines nor reached a higher state of development than we have. And every Kansan should be proud of these great institutions and do everything in his power to increase their efficiency. I believe that my experience and knowledge of the practical administration of these great state institutions will enable me to do the part a governor has to perform with reference to their administration in a wise, conservative and businesslike manner.

NO TAINT OF CORRUPTION.

No taint of scandal or corruption has ever attached to the administration under the Republican party of these great benevolent enterprises of our state, and none should ever be permitted to attach. I believe the state has just cause to congratulate itself on the wisdom, patriotism and honesty of the illustrious men upon whom the Republican party has conferred the distinguished honor of the governorship. While I recollect that at times much factional discord has arisen and much fierce criticism indulged in, nevertheless, as time goes by and personal interests and disappointments are forgotten, and we look back upon the administration of state affairs by these men, we find that upon the whole their administrations have been characterized by the highest principles of patriotism and honesty.

The Republican party is a party of progress and each succeeding administration of state affairs finds something to be done which was not so apparent to those which went before and which the progressive spirit of the age discovers, and which the intelligent healthy public opinion demands should be done.

The splendid administrations of all the Republican governors of Kansas show what the party has to its credit since the admission of the state. It is a good record of officials, pledges kept and the interests of the people served faithfully and well.

It has been my good fortune to be a member of the legislature during the last six years, and in the enactment of new and wise legislation of the state I have had my part. Among the new and, to my mind, highly valuable laws recently passed I might mention the law abolishing the fee system in the state printer's office and putting that office upon a salary basis; the law providing for the lending of surplus money of the state to the banks upon first class security, the interest accruing to the state treasury; the anti-pass law, the railroad rate regulation law and the primary election law.

These measures and many others have had my earnest support and vote, and I believe that by reason of my extensive acquaintance with the members of the legislature I was able to do as much as any other single member in the passing of these wise and salutary laws.

NOT SURE OF THE TAX LAW.

Of the wisdom of the new tax law I am not so well convinced. I am of the opinion that the new law needs to be amended in many material respects to avoid an unjust burden upon the owners of farms and other real estate, as well as upon that large body of taxpayers who can least afford to bear the public burden. If, after a trial, that law does not prove effective and just to all, which I hope it may, I shall not hesitate to advocate its repeal.

In the general administration of the business affairs of the state I believe that economy should be the watchword. I do not mean by this that we should be illiberal in appropriations, but that wise, economical, conservative business principles should prevail in every department of state government.

AN EXHIBIT OF JAPANESE ART.

A collection of Japanese colored wood prints, many of which are 150 years old, will be on exhibition all this week at the Fine Arts institute, 1113 Wyandotte street. The collection is owned by E. I. Shima, a Japanese, and is being exhibited by the Keramic club. There are 500 prints in the collection.

A lecture on "Japanese Art" will be given at 2:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon by Mr. Shima in the lecture room of the institute. Tea will be served after the lecture.

OUTINGS FOR 500 CITY BOYS

AN ALL-SUMMER CAMP ON INDIAN CREEK NEAR KANSAS CITY.

The Equipment Furnished by the Juvenile Improvement Association—George M. Holt Will Look After the Youngsters.

The Juvenile Improvement association is preparing to give a two weeks' outing to 500 boys this summer at the Lightbearers' camp grounds on Indian creek, twelve miles south of the city, near Dallas. It will cost $1,500 to equip and maintain the camp for three months. The first lot of boys will leave the city June 15. The fun will continue until school opens in September.

Boys between the ages of 11 and 17 years will be sent by the Institutional church, the United Jewish charities, the Helping Hand institute and the Franklin institute. Cards of admission to camp will be issued by Dr. E. L. Mathias, chief probation officer. George M. Holt, a probation officer and organizer of the Lightbearers' club, will be the director of the camp. Mr. Holt knows how to manage boys. He has conducted boys' summer outings for five years, always with success.

"For the parents' ease of mind," Mr. Holt said, "I will announce that the boys will sleep in sanitary tents with wooden floors. Fifteen of the tents, 12x14 feet in size, are to be erected. There will be a hospital tent and an assembly tent for Sunday meetings.

"For the boys I will say that we will have plenty of cooks. The kids will have a chance to enjoy the sports they like best of all—swimming, fishing, boating and field athletics. We will have a magic lantern and a phonograph and there will be books and magazines for those who desire to read."

A PLOT AGAINST THE INDIANS.

Land Speculators Marrying Off the Children to Secure Land Alienation.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 25.—Residents of the Indian territory portion of the state have informed Governor Haskell of a conspiracy to deprive Indian minors of their allotted property. It is alleged that, in the oil and gas region, where land is of great value, minors of both sexes are being induced to marry, upon the theory that under the laws of Oklahoma marriage gives such minors their majority, and that, having reached their majority, they may alienate their lands. The complaints to Governor Haskell assert that there is an organized attempt to loot the property of Indian minors.

Governor Haskell has caused inquiry to be made to ascertain if the laws of Oklahoma establish the majority by marriage. He has found that such marriages discharge the guardians of minors, but that marriage does not confer upon minors the right to dispose of their property until they have reached their majority, which, under the laws of Oklahoma, is 21 years for men and 18 years for women.

An Oklahoman acquainted with conditions in the oil region said to-day that, notwithstanding the law, many of these commercial marriages were brought about by land speculators in the belief that these married minors could dispose of their property, either by lease or sale.

HE DESERVES THE OFFICE.

A Leavenworth Man's Unique Indorsement of a China Missionary.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., April 25.—Congressman D. R. Anthony writes home that he is in receipt of some artistic compositions in the form of indorsements for candidates for federal positions. A returned missionary, who was visiting relatives in this city recently, wishes a position as a Chinese interpreter, and learning of E. B. Baker's strong influence with his home representative had him send in the following unique recommendation:

> He was a misssionary in China a dozen years, and can speak, read and write the language like a native or better. Whether he learned to eat rats, I don't know. The government needs him for an interpreter somewhere, but does not know it, so it becomes your duty as a federal office holder to impart the information. You might mention to the President the next time you are taking a drink with him that the applicant has nine children. By arranging this matter you will make it unnecessary for me to have a new congressman sent from this district for two years more, at least.

TOURISTS ARE COMING TO TOWN.

The Hotels Are Beginning to Fill Up, the Clerks Say.

The tourists are beginning to come in. At every down town hotel during the last few days there has been a big increase in the number of names which wear after them the addition "and wife" or "and family." The hotel clerks don't know whether to be glad about it or not.

"The traveling men are the worst kickers, but the tourists use up more valuable time," one clerk said. "Some of them demand half-hour lectures on all the 'points of interest,' as if the clerk's desk were the place from which the rubberneck car started."

BRYAN HAS A BIG LEAD

THERE IS LITTLE OPPORTUNITY OF THE NEBRASKAN'S BEING BEATEN.

The Results in Illinois and Pennsylvania Were a Disappointment to the Opponents of the Leader—How He Might Be Defeated.

For Bryan	217
For Gray	6
Doubtful	128
Total delegates elected	351
Total delegates in convention	1,003
Necessary to choice (two-thirds)	672

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Instructions for Bryan in the Illinois state convention and the totally unexpected result of the Pennsylvania primaries have made it more probable than before that the Nebraskan will capture the Democratic Presidential nomination for a third time. None of the Southern states has held its convention, and the possibility of defeating Bryan depends entirely upon what these Democratic states will do.

There is a determined movement among Democrat politicians to send uninstructed delegations to Denver, but wherever the rank and file of the voters have had an opportunity to express themselves they have declared for Bryan. Pennsylvania had always been counted by those who had hoped to defeat Bryan under the two-thirds rule as hostile to the Nebraskan.

WHAT A PRIMARY DID.

If the old system had prevailed the sixty-eight delegates from Pennsylvania would, as usual, have been controlled by James M. Guffey. But under a new law Pennsylvania delegates were chosen in a primary, and the two delegates who ran on a Bryan ticket in Mr. Guffey's own district were elected. The Bryan lieutenants assert that fifty-one out of the sixty-four delegates chosen are for the Nebraskan and declare their intention of applying the unit rule and voting Mr. Guffey's delegation entire for Bryan. This result, however, is not probable. Delegates who received their instructions in a primary in all probability will be permitted to cast their votes in the convention as directed.

It is conceded that Bryan will have more than a majority of the delegates in Denver. The hope of defeating him depends entirely upon the ability of his opponents to command more than one-third of the delegates and operate under the two-thirds rule. In inner political circles it is not believed that a bare one-third would be permitted to block a nomination.

HOW BRYAN MAY BE BEATEN.

If, however, half of the certain Democratic states and practically all of the states necessary to add to the solid South in order to win should oppose Bryan he probably would be defeated by an application of the two-thirds rule. In other words, if Bryan had only 100 delegates more than a majority and the other delegates were determined in their opposition, he could be defeated.

Following is a list of states which to date have instructed for Bryan:

Indiana	30	Oklahoma	14
Iowa	26	Rhode Island	8
Kansas	20	South Dakota	8
Nebraska	16	Wisconsin	26
North Dakota	8	Philippine Islands	6

Delaware has instructed for Gray. New York refused to instruct its seventy-eight delegates, and Pennsylvania elected all except its four delegates-at-large in a primary.

A REPLY TO ADOLPHUS BUSCH.

The Brewer's Arguments Against Prohibition Absurd, "S. C. B." Believes.

To The Star: Having been a reader of The Star nineteen years and thereby having been convinced that your paper is never found astride a question concerning the public good, I am induced to protest against the St. Louis beer manufacturer's utterances in a recent interview in reference to the prohibition reform movement in Missouri.

A conservative person will not view with alarm the radical utterances of the brewer so glaringly put forth in his personal interest. His words will recoil and not have the effect contemplated. He tells us that common sense and education will prevail against this "epidemic." "Insane, foolish, idiotic, narrow-mindedness, hypocrisy" and "un-American" are some of the choice epithets so glibly hurled, not only at "a lot of women and children and a number of reverend gentlemen," but as well at the tens of thousands of intelligent voters from the ranks of the solid business men and farmers who realize they pay to operate the criminal machinery made necessary by drunkenness.

Will anyone believe for a moment that drunkards are reformed by guzzling beer and that all brewery employees are temperate?

I am convinced that the ethical awakening which the country is undergoing will prove permanent. I believe it would be well for all conservative temperance men who have been opposed to both constitutional prohibition and local option to read, if they have not already done so, Adolphus Busch's latest expressions on the reform movement.

AN ANNOYANCE TO TOURISTS.

The Present Ticket Validating System Cumbersome, a Traveler Says.

To The Star: Last fall my wife and I went to Norfolk and other points in the East and we were subject to a great deal of annoyance on account of having to get our tickets validated and having them deposited at different stopovers. This consumed a good deal of time which is one of the principal items when one is away from home. We did not go away to spend part of our time trying to deposit our tickets. Therefore I beg leave to offer a remedy for this nuisance and I think that it will serve other useful purposes also.

I suggest that every traveler have his picture printed on a card, go before a notary public and have him make an affidavit that the picture is a likeness. A traveler with this identification card, could satisfy any railroad traveler that he is the real owner of any ticket which bears his name. It would protect the railroad better and save time for the tourist.

BIG THEATER HATS AN OUTRAGE.

There Should Be Rules Against Them, "a Man" Says.

To The Star: I notice a communication to The Star complaining about women wearing their hats at the theater. You say, "Why did you not ask them to take them off." This should not be necessary. The management of the house should look after that. It is an outrage and a shame that some women should show their ill-breeding to such an extent as to become a nuisance in a place of public amusement. There ought to be a rule made at all places of public gatherings, including the churches, that the women remove these monstrosities and this rule should be enforced to the letter.

A MAN.

WILSON FOR STATE SENATOR.

No Announcement by the Third District Democrat Expected.

Francis M. Wilson of Platte county probably will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator in the Third district, now represented by Senator T. J. Wornall. The district is so strongly Democratic that the Republicans usually have refused to nominate a candidate for senator.

O. P. Gentry, who was private secretary to Governor A. M. Dockery, has been a candidate for some time. Mr. Wilson had been senator from that district during the revising session of 1899 and was one of the senators whose vote and motives was never questioned. Recently his friends in Holt county started a boom for him. He attended the St. Joseph meeting yesterday and while there met numerous Democrats from the northern part of the district who urged that he make the race with the result that he made a promise to consider it. This probably means an announcement within a week.

STATE COMMITTEE'S LINE-UP

FOR GOVERNOR.

For Cowherd—J. A. Collet, Second district; J. P. Roney, Third district; J. W. Jamison, Sixth district; Thomas J. Ward, Eleventh district; F. E. Hinch, Thirteenth district; John M. Harlow, Fifteenth district.

For Evans—R. W. Napier, Third district; A. R. Edmonds, Seventh district; W. A. Bright, Eighth district; Ovid Bell, Ninth district; A. R. Ponder, Fourteenth district; A. J. Hawkins, Sixteenth district.

For Stapel—J. S. Pence, Sixth district.

SENATORIAL EXPRESSIONS.

For Folk—R. W. Napier, Third district; John S. Pense, Sixth district; A. R. Edmonds, Seventh district; W. A. Bright, Eighth district; Ovid Bell, Ninth district; Lawrence P. Daley, Twelfth district; F. E. Hinch, Thirteenth district; A. R. Ponder, Fourteenth district; A. J. Hawkins, Sixteenth district.

For Stone—J. A. Collet, Second district; J. P. Roney, Third district; John M. Harlow, Fifteenth district.

Twelve members failed to reply.

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—Members of the Democratic state committee differ in opinion in their choices for United States senator and the Democratic nominee for governor. All kinds of combinations are made so that there is little alignment on factional grounds.

Some are in favor of one candidate for governor and the candidate of the opposite 1905 faction for United States senator. The St. Louis Republic has endeavored to obtain information as to the feeling throughout the state. Each member of the Democratic state committee, Judge William N. Evans, who is a candidate for governor, excepted, was asked to give his views on the gubernatorial and senatorial situation.

In the direct responses received, Judge William N. Evans of West Plains and William S. Cowherd of Kansas City each has six members of the state committee with him, while Henry F. Stapel of Rockport has one.

Governor Folk leads Senator Stone in those who are willing to commit themselves on the senatorial question, having nine to three for Senator Stone.

There are thirty-two members of the Democratic state committee, two from each of the sixteen congressional districts and expressions are given here from thirteen, six remaining non-committal and twelve failing to make any reply whatever to the questions.

TRIED SUICIDE ON A TRAIN

PASSENGERS STRUGGLED WITH A MISSOURIAN TO SAVE HIS LIFE.

J. W. Piper of Marshall Cut His Throat on a Chicago & Alton Smoker—He Had Threatened His Family's Life.

ODESSA, MO., April 25.—When the "Slater accommodation" on the Chicago & Alton road left Kansas City this afternoon J. W. Piper of Marshall, Mo., was a passenger in the smoker. The car was well filled, and Piper was occupying a seat with another man.

The two chatted to pass away the time, but as Bates City was passed Piper arose from the seat and asked his chance acquaintance to excuse him. Proceeding toward the back of the car Piper drew a pocket knife and plunged it twice into his neck.

Blood spurted from the wounds, and at once all was confusion in the car. The conductor and some of the passengers seized Piper and took his knife from him. He struggled desperately to do himself further harm and after being deprived of his knife thrust his fingers into the wounds he had made.

When Odessa was reached the train was stopped long enough for Piper to be removed and taken to a hotel. The physicians who are attending him do not expect him to recover.

NO SURPRISE TO HIS FRIENDS.

MARSHALL, MO., April 25.—The attempt of J. W. Piper to kill himself was no surprise to his many acquaintances in Marshall and throughout Saline county. It has been believed for some time that he was not of sound mind and that he would some time kill either himself or his family.

Such an attempt was made by him on his wife and son and daughter some months ago. He threatened to kill them with a shotgun, but they fled to a neighbor's house for safety. Later he became reconciled to his wife, and she returned to him. At that time he deeded to his wife and children forty acres of his 200-acre farm.

Two weeks ago Piper said good-by to his wife and children and told them he would never see them any more. He left that day for Omaha, first mortgaging his growing wheat crop for $200. Thursday of this week he telegraphed a brother, Morton Piper, that he must have money at once, as he was "broke."

Piper is 45 years old and is the son of J. W. Piper, 75 years old, one of the richest and oldest residents of Saline county. The elder Piper owns several thousand acres of Saline county land.

The man who attempted suicide to-day had been a hard drinker and had twice taken a "cure." It is believed that this affected his mind. Two brothers and a sister live in this county.

A TAYLOR BOOM FOR GOVERNOR.

But the Wyandotte Democrat Says He Would Refuse the Nomination.

Edwin Taylor of Edwardsville, Kas., is being spoken of by Wyandotte county Democratic politicians as a possible candidate for the nomination for governor. Mr. Taylor denied any knowledge of his boom yesterday and said that he would not accept the nomination if it were offered to him.

Mr. Taylor is a widely known Wyandotte county farmer. He has held several political offices. At one time he was state senator from Wyandotte county. He was also a member of the state text book commission. At present he is a member of the board of regents of the Kansas State Agricultural college. Mr. Taylor owns a large potato and fruit farm in the Kaw valley. His farmhouse, two miles east of Edwardsville, is among the pretentious ones of Wyandotte county.

FOR MACADAM ON MUNCIE ROAD.

A Proposition to Pave Twelve Miles Being Promoted in Kansas City, Kas.

Muncie road may be macadamized this summer between Kansas City and Bonner Springs, Kas. The part unpaved is twelve miles in length. An impetus was given to the proposition yesterday when a committee of the Mercantile club in Kansas City, Kas., visited Bonner Springs to investigate its advantages as a health resort. A committee of business men of Bonner Springs will be present at the meeting of the Mercantile club to-morrow night when a resolution asking the Wyandotte county commissioners to build the road this year will be prepared.

"There is enough money in the county road fund now to pay for paving the road and it should be done without delay," J. D. Waters, president of the Farmers' National bank of Bonner Springs, said yesterday. "This is the prettiest road in the county for a drive for motor cars and carriages, yet it has been neglected. Other through roads have miles of macadam. I am glad of that. The people of Bonner Springs desire more miles added to that we have."

Muncie road starts west of Armourdale and runs along the base of the hills up the Kaw river valley. Little grading would be necessary for the macadam.

Wieman Would Be a Criminal Judge.

Herman F. Wieman, who was succeeded by Theodore Remley as justice of the peace in the Eighth district, announced yesterday afternoon that he is a candidate for nomination for the office of judge of the criminal court. Mr. Wieman is a Democrat.

THE WHITE BAND IS REHEARSING

Debut of Signor Lenge's Organization in Carnival Park May 10.

The Banda Bianca di Milano, in English The White Band of Milan, will open its first American tour in Carnival park, Kansas City, Kas. The park, brightened and with many new features, will open its gates the afternoon of Sunday, May 10. The White band was organized in Kansas City, and includes forty musicians, many of whom are graduates of conservatories and opera houses in Italy. The leader will be Michelino Angelo Lenge, a prize graduate of the Naples conservatory. Since leaving there Signor Lenge has had wide experience as a conductor and orchestral leader. The players will wear white uniforms with blue and gold trimmings. The band has been in active rehearsal for some time in preparation for the opening day.

THE TENTH'S TWO CANDIDATES.

Hamer Brown and G. W. Westfall, Democrats, Would Be County Assessor.

The Tenth ward will furnish two candidates for the Democratic nomination for county assessor. They are almost neighbors. Hamer Brown, 2707 Olive street, is a candidate. George W. Westfall, 2614 Chestnut street, announced last night.

Mr. Brown is a salesman at the stock yards. He was a candidate for sheriff last fall, but withdrew in favor of John M. Rood, who was nominated without opposition. Rood is a candidate again and will almost certainly be the nominee for sheriff. Westfall has been connected with the Richards & Conover Hardware company twenty-two years. He has been active in politics, but was never a candidate before.

THE WHITE SYSTEM OF CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Teeth restored by this system take the place of natural teeth much better than any other known system. They occupy exactly the same space as the natural teeth. They feel natural, look natural, and, in fact, they are the same to you as your natural teeth. Do not try to practice economy on your teeth, for you cannot do it. Cheap work will cost you more in the end, so it pays to get the best. We ask a fair price for our work and guarantee it to last and give absolute satisfaction in every way.

PRICES—Crown and Bridge Work, $6.00 to $10.00 per tooth. Gold Fillings, $2.00 to $4.00.
Rubber Plates, $8.00 to $15.00. Silver, Alloy and Cement Fillings, $1.00 to $2.00.
Gold Plates, $60.00 to $75.00.

A PLAN FOR THE HOSPITAL.

DR. BINNIE'S SUGGESTIONS FOR A NON-MEDICAL BOARD CONTROLLING A MEDICAL STAFF.

The practical completion of the new General hospital makes urgent the need of readjusting the hospital management. The preparation of a new charter affords the opportunity for adopting an efficient plan. On March 31, 1907, Dr. J. F. Binnie published in The Star some practical suggestions for hospital organization and management. Dr. Binnie's plan, which is here reprinted, approves the general idea incorporated in the charter draft of three years ago and indicates the detailed operation of it.

To The Star: There has recently been some discussion as to the propriety or advisability of placing the city hospital completely under the control of the medical department of a university. To do this would certainly give rise to much trouble and it seems to me that another plan would have all its advantages and none of its disadvantages.

Any man at all fmiliar with the work of a large hospital knows that the patients obtain far better service in an institution where teaching is properly carried on than in one to which students are not admitted. This is really a truism. The following is a rough outline of a method by which the poor of Kansas City can obtain the services of the best professional men in the city under the best possible circumstances:

MANAGEMENT.

1. Place the institution completely under the control of a non-partisan board of layman governors, analogous to the school board.

VISITING STAFF.

2. Let the board appoint a staff of visiting physicians and surgeons and of specialists in various departments, to serve without pay. These appointments (especially those of visiting physicians and surgeons) must be for a fair number of years, otherwise it would be hardly worth while for a busy practitioner to so alter his office hours and arrange his private practice as to enable him to devote from one to three hours to the city hospital each morning. The visiting staff should consist of surgeons, assistant surgeons, physicians, assistant physicians, obstetricians, assistant obstetricians. There must be a clinical pathologist, who is paid for his services. The staff of specialists should include one or more opthalmologists, laryngologists, dermatologists, gynecologists, genito-urinary surgeons, electricians, dentists, etc.

The number of the attending staff will depend on the number of beds in the hospital and on the length of the term of service required of each, annually. Suppose there were fifty beds devoted to medical cases, fifty to surgical cases and twenty-five to obstetrical cases, besides, of course, a number set aside for special ailments. Then, at any one time, there must be on duty one surgeon, one physician, one obstetrican, and for each of these one assistant (a junior practitioner). The duty of the assistant is to assist his chief and take his place when he is unavoidably absent. If more beds are provided the staff must be increased proportionately.

If the year were divided into three terms of four months' service and each attendant were required to attend during but one term, then we find the minimum attending staff to consist of three surgeons, three physicians, etc. The specialists would attend when their services were required, probably some of them would attend daily; certainly they would be present from one to three times per week, at fixed hours.

INTERNES.

3. Two or more resident physicians or surgeons should be selected by competitive examination, to serve one year, their compensation to consist of lodging, board, laundry and perhaps a small honorarium. The duty of the internes is to carry out the instructions of the attending staff (or specialists) in the treatment of patients. If no special officers is appointed to look after and properly file and index the records of each patient, for possible future reference, this work must be done by the internes.

STUDENTS.

4. Students of medicine enrolled at any medical school should have the privilege of attending the hospital, on payment of appropriate fees.

(a). All the students have the privilege of attending the various clinical lectures and the operative work in the amphitheater, on specified days in the week. For this, only a small fee to be charged.

(b.) In order of application, or preferably by competitive examination, certain students, on payment of a higher fee, are given increased privileges and become surgical dressers or clinical clerks. To each attendant surgeon a certain limited number of students are allocated to act as "dressers." These dressers (under the surgical interne) are responsible for obtaining and recording the history and condition of each patient on admission: for examining (under the clinical patrologists) the various excreta and the blood; and for keeping the records posted to date. The dressers, under supervision, attend to the routine dressing of wounds, and in turn, act as junior assistants in the operating room.

THE DAILY ROUND.

At 9 a. m. (the visiting hour) the surgeon, the assistant surgeon and the interne enter the wards and are followed by the dressers.

In bed No. 1 is a patient convalescent. The interne reports him doing well. He is passed with a cheery word.

In bed No. 2 lies a patient who has been operated on a few days before. The record of his condition is examined by the surgeon and passed around to the students. The surgeon asks a few questions of the patient, makes any necessary examination and talks to the students about the progress of the case, pointing out what is usual and what is unusual. Of course nothing which might disturb the patient is mentioned before him. If any dressings require to be changed, the work is done by the surgeon, his assistant or student (under supervision) as may be proper.

In bed No. 4 there is a new patient, admitted the previous afternoon. The dresser assigned to the case has written a full history of the patient, as regards former and present illness, in fact, a report not unlike that required by a good insurance company, but in the report there is no expression of opinion as to the nature of the ailment. Every system in the body—blood, nervous, digestive, pulmonary, etc.—is gone over in a careful and routine manner and all excreta and the blood are examined carefully, always under supervision.

Their history and the pathological reports are now read by the student and corroborated or corrected by the surgeon, any moot points being examined into by the assistant surgeon and interne as well. The surgeon now makes his diagnosis, explaining to the students the reasons on which it is based. Often it will happen that some feature of the ailment calls for the opinion of a physician or one of the specialists. If the case is urgent, the desired colleague is sent for then and there; if there is no great urgency the interne is requested to get the desired opinion as soon as possible.

When the diagnosis is made the surgeon outlines the treatment to be carried out by the interne under his supervision. If operation is required, the surgeon does the work at the proper time.

It will be seen that the student has many duties to perform and is compelled to fulfill them in a most systematic fashion and always under skilled supervision. Thus he learns much, but the teaching of the student is only an incident: The benefit derived by the patient is much greater than that by the student. The patient is more thoroughly examined and has advantages infinitely greater than those which the average private patient can afford and without increased expense to the city. With the minimum loss of time the surgeon has presented to him and reviews the results of a complete physical examination of the patient. Every chemical and bacteriological test which might conceivably throw light on the disease is carried out in every case, under supervision of an expert. The surgeon, presumably one of the best in the city, can avail himself of the opinion of any one or more of a corps of expert specialists. It is rare indeed that a private patient, even though wealthy, can secure such complete service.

In bed No. 5 lies a patient with acute appendicitis. He was admitted to the hospital during the night. The interne examined him and sent for the surgeon, who came and promptly operated. This is an example of the cases which are not investigated by the student—in fact, were not seen by the students at all, unless the patients happen to come into the hospital during the professional visiting hours. No minute, painstaking, time-consuming investigations are necessary in many such cases, in order to permit of diagnosis, and treatment must be instituted at once. This is done promptly. The history of the case is, of course, recorded as fully as possible.

Bed No. 5 is empty or not in place. The patient who occupied it is now in a quiet, private room. Poor fellow, he is about to pass away. The visit to him is paid by the surgeon, his assistant and the interne. Everything is done to ease his sufferings. No student enters his room unless, as is usually the case, the student who has taken his history and attended to him as dresser, has become his friend, then he enters as a friend, and as a friend alone.

OPERATIONS.

After all the patients have been seen in the manner described, the surgeon and his assistants proceed to the operating room, where any necessary operations are performed, the students being seated on the benches entirely cut off from the area reserved for the active work. The last operation being finished, the students leave the hospital, and the surgeon visits the patients on whom he has just operated.

Work in the medical wards is carried on in a similar manner. At stated times the physician in charge delivers lectures to the students in general in the amphitheater. Only the small corps of clinical clerks (corresponding to the surgical dressers) are admitted to the wards where they are responsible for the writing of the records and where they do much useful work, which, under other circumstances would cost much money or be neglected much to the detriment of the patients.

FEW CHANGES IN FALL CLOTHES.

The Financial Stringency Is Responsible for That, Too, Salesmen Say.

Traveling men showing fall lines in shoes, clothing and other furnishings say that the late financial stringency in the East has kept the manufacturers from making any startling changes in fall styles.

"I suppose that is good news to the man who likes to wear his spring suit again in the fall," one salesman said. "But it takes some of the interest away from our work. We like to talk up new lines."

A Prohibition Candidate for Congress.

SEDALIA, MO., April 25.—E. E. McClellan, chairman, to-day called a convention of the Seventh congressional district Prohibitionists for May 8 in Sedalia to select a candidate for Congress to be voted upon at the state primaries in August. A county convention is called for the same date, to select a candidate for representative and the different county offices.

KILLING FOLLOWED BY A PANIC.

A Mystery in a Shooting Which Took Place in a Muskogee Hotel.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 25.—John McCarty of Fort Worth, Tex., was shot and killed at Claremore last night and William Howell is held, charged with the murder. The shooting took place at the Oxford hotel, and no one seems to know anything about the events that led up to the tragedy. McCarty was shot through the heart.

After the shooting, and while the coroner's inquest was being held at the courthouse, the prisoners in the county jail got the doors open and made their escape. This started a panic in the courthouse, where a crowd had gathered, and a stampede was narrowly averted. A deputy sheriff, who was asleep in the sheriff's office, became so excited that a shotgun he held in his hands was discharged and tore a hole through the wall of the building. One of the prisoners who escaped was captured by William McClain, a man with a cork leg, who used a gun that was not loaded.

PUNISH A SURLY SOLDIER.

A Cavalry Private Was Disrespectful to His Commanding Officer.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAS., April 25.—The official record of the court-martial proceedings of Private Paul S. Grubinski, Troop K, Thirteenth cavalry, received here to-day shows very severe punishment of a soldier for the offense of thrusting his hands into his pockets and making complaint to his commanding officer. Private Grubinski was charged with behaving with disrespect towards his commanding officer in violation of the twentieth article of war, and the specification was as follows:

> Did behave with disrespect towards his commanding officer, Captain A. L. Dade, Thirteenth cavalry, by thrusting his hands into his pockets, turning away from his commanding officer, and saying, "I do not want to be kept running up and down this porch all day," or words to that effect.

Private Grubinski was sentenced to be confined at hard labor under charge of the post guard for six months and to forfeit $10 of his pay each month during the same period.

A GALENA EX-MAYOR DEAD.

Many Public Offices Had Fallen to the Lot of William Smith.

GALENA, KAS., April 25.—William Smith, a native of England, Civil war veteran and postmaster of Galena since June 1, 1898, died of Bright's disease this evening at the age of 64 years. Mr. Smith was among the first mayors of the city and served as marshal of Wichita, Kas., in 1873. Later he was sheriff of Sedgwick county, and for a term of years was United States marshal of the Wichita district.

FRENCH'S WORK IN ATLANTA.

A Statue of Samuel Spencer to Be Placed in a Park There.

A statue of Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern railway, who was killed two years ago in a wreck in Virginia, will be the next work of Daniel Chester French. The statue will be placed in a park in Atlanta, Ga. Mr. French will leave Kansas City this morning and has decided to go to Atlanta to hear the suggestions as to the design for the statue.

SMUDGES TO SAVE FRUIT

KANSAS NURSERYMEN WILL TRY TO STAVE OFF FROST.

At One Place Near Hutchinson Preparations Have Been Made to Start 500 Fires if the Temperature Goes Too Low.

HUTCHINSON, KAS., March 28.—Almost any night now there are likely to be started 500 separate fires in the orchards of the big Yaggy plantation, six miles northwest of this city, and there is no danger of prosecutions for arson because of it, either. The fires, if started, will be with a view to preventing a killing frost, which would be destructive of the apple crop.

The process is what is known as burning "smudges." Other apple growers in "Fruit valley," the designation of the fruit growing region of the Cow creek valley, will make the same experiment on a smaller scale.

FRUIT IS FAR ADVANCED.

The "smudges" to be used at the Yaggy plantation will be burned in only about 180 acres of the 500-acre orchard. The remaining trees, although bearing, not being so valuable, will be allowed to fight the battle with the elements unaided if occasion arises. Of course, the fruit-growers are hoping that necessity will not arise, but owing to the mildness of the weather in some of the winter months, fruit is advanced to a point where a heavy frost would do great damage, if not prove absolutely fatal to the fruit.

Weather statistics for this section show that there has been only one April since the record has been kept without a killing frost. Until the last two years, however, fruit has rarely been sufficiently advanced by April for such frosts to cause serious damage, but last year the crop was entirely destroyed by late frosts, and this spring has been in many respects very similar to last.

From this time forth orchard owners will carefully watch the temperature in their orchards at night. If a frost threatens, the smudges will be lighted. The smudges in use at the Yaggy plantation are made of green boughs from the catalpa forest, a section in extent, that forms a feature of this plantation, and the smoke caused by the burning green wood will be augmented by piling wet hay on these fires. The warmest air in an orchard after nightfall is about a foot from the ground. Frost is caused by this air rising and being displaced by the colder air above.

HOW IT PREVENTS FROST.

Experience has shown that if a blanket is placed a short distance above the ground this air circulation can be stopped and frost will not form. Anything that tends to interrupt this air circulation helps to prevent frost. This is why frost will rarely form on a windy night. The theory of burning "smudges" is that artificial air currents are created by this means which prevent frost from forming. The warmth of the smoke aids somewhat also, but this is only a minor consideration.

Authorities differ as to the efficacy of smudge-burning in preventing frost. Some orchardists claim to have tried it with much success; others assert that it is of doubtful value. Reno county fruit growers will give the experiment a test, if occasion arises, in the hope that the crop failure of last year will not be repeated.

MLLE. GENEE LOST HER PURSE.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Mlle. Adeline Genee, the dancer, is trying, through the lost and found columns of a morning paper, to recover a small round gold chain purse attached to a gold bracelet. The word "Nita" is engraved on a small gold plate on the purse, which contained when she lost it, in addition to some bills, an uncut blue stone resembling a topaz which had been sent her by an old friend from the mountains in Nevada. Mlle. Genee missed the purse and bracelet Tuesday when she returned to the theater after dining at Sherry's.

RUEF SAYS COURT IS BIASED.

An Affidavit by the Ex-Boss Makes Charges Against Judge Dunne.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Abraham Ruef filed a voluminous affidavit to-day through which he seeks to disqualify Superior Judge Frank H. Dunne from presiding in the so-called Park Side trolley franchise bribery cases in which Ruef is a joint defendant with W. I. Brobeck, G. H. Umbsen and Joseph B. Green, real estate men. Ruef is to be placed on trial on these cases next Monday morning before Judge Dunne. In his affidavit Ruef alleges bias and prejudice on the part of Judge Dunne and sets forth many instances in which Dunne showed his antipathy, bias and prejudice toward the defendant, who declares that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial before him.

SCOTT OPPOSED TO HANGING.

A Move Against Capital Punishment in Washington by the Kansan.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—A bill to abolish capital punishment in the District of Columbia was introduced in the House to-day by Mr. Scott of Kansas, chairman of the committee on agriculture. Commenting on the bill Mr. Scott referred to the recent execution here of Paolucci, an Italian, in whose case the Italian embassy had intervened and which attracted some attention in the Italian parliament. Mr. Scott said:

> I am against the infliction of the death penalty as a matter of principle, and I believe history shows clearly that it is not effective as a deterrent from crime. The other day I read of the hanging in the District jail of a man already in the last stages of a fatal disease, so emaciated and reduced in weight that his neck was not broken by the fall and his death resulted from slow strangulation. Such a spectacle as that, it seems to me, is a blot upon our civilization, and a repetition of it here in the capital of the nation ought to be made forever impossible.

CHANGES AT FORT LEAVENWORTH

Lieutenant Colonel Nichols Has Been Transferred to the Thirteenth Infantry.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., March 28.—An order was received here to-day transferring Lieutenant Colonel William A. Nichols from the Eighteenth to the Thirteenth infantry and Lieutenant Colonel W. H. C. Bowen from the Thirteenth to the Eighteenth. Lieutenant Colonel Bowen is at the top of the file and will soon be promoted to colonel and he will leave here. Lieutenant Colonel Nichols, who was recently promoted from major of the Twenty-first infantry, comes here to take station. Colonel Nichols is widely known at Fort Leavenworth, where he was reared. His mother was postmistress at the fort for many years. Colonel Nichols was appointed a lieutenant in the army from Kansas in 1877. He was graduated from the old infantry and cavalry school in the class of 1887 and was an officer at the old military prison for eight years.

OKLAHOMA RAILROAD TAXES.

The Fifteen Lines Assessed on a Total of 39 Million Dollars.

GUTHRIE, OK., March 28.—The valuation for taxation of all the railroads in Oklahoma, fifteen in number, counting the Oklahoma Central, which has not filed its report, is $39,542,266. This does not include interurban or street railroad companies. The mileage of the fourteen railroad companies is 5,527 main line, 1,120 sidetrack, total 6,647. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas for all its properties leads with a total valuation of $11,887,726. It values its main line at $12,500 a mile, the Santa Fe at $2,500, the Frisco at $8,000 and the Rock Island at $5,400.

The mileage of the different railroads is:

Rock Island, 1,840; Kansas & Arkansas Valley, 162; Orient, 186; Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf, 81; Katy, 677; Santa Fe, 765; Frisco, 1,495; Fort Smith & Western, 197; St. Louis, El Reno & Western, 41; Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, 180; Colorado, Texas & Oklahoma, 4; Midland Valley, 248; Kansas City Southern, 143; Arkansas Western, 10.

Verging on Openwork Shoes.

From the New York Press.

Here comes a stimulating rumor that there is actually something new in shoes. The "tapestry shoes" which have appeared in Paris as a "delightful fashion" are wholly novel and artistically original. The uppers are of tapestry, old hangings and velvet flowered silk, with bright vermillion or purple heels. The old junk shops of Paris are being ransacked for antique hangings and pieces of rare fabrics to be made into the tops of these amazing "carpet slippers," as some one calls them. Let's hope that the rumor doesn'tf prove the fact, else openwork shoes or real sandals will come in yet, despite the failure to introduce them in London a year or so ago.

TO GRANDMA AND THE FARM

A BRIGHT PROSPECT FOR THE GIRL WHO ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Her Pathetic Description of the Good Time She Used to Have—"I Wish I Hadn't Done It," She Says.

A little girl, her lips disfigured from drinking lye in an attempt to commit suicide, lay on a cot in the emergency hospital yesterday afternoon. Her face indicated suffering and her eyes were heavy.

"I'm going back to grandma," she said plaintively. "She likes me and I'll be happy there with the horses and cows and things. Grandma lives on a farm, down in Carroll county, Arkansas," she added.

The girl is Dorothy Bush, 14 years old, who attempted suicide Friday afternoon because, she said, her stepfather, Charles Van Horn of 723 West Ninth street, had mistreated her.

WENT TO SCHOOL EVERY DAY.

"I used to have a good time down on the farm," the girl said wearily. "Grandma was good to me and I went to school every day. On Sunday we used to hitch up the old horse and drive away off to Sunday school. I worked, too, but I liked it. Grandma had eight cows and we used to milk them every day. I could milk just as good as grandma. Now, I'm going back. Grandma's coming here in a couple of days and then she's going to take me home with her. Papa said she could last night."

The girl sighed. "Papa was good to me last night," she said. "He stayed right here all night, right by my side and waited on me. He was just awful good," she added.

"Does your father mistreat you?" Dr. W. L. Gist, an emergency surgeon, asked.

SCOLDED HER WHEN HE WAS TIRED.

"Yes, he did. He used to scold me something awful because he thought I did things I shouldn't do. But when he was good, he was just the finest father anyone could have. But he used to come home from work all tired out and then he'd scold me because somebody told him things about me. I'd deny them, but lots of times he wouldn't believe me. Grandma would, though, and I wouldn't do anything to hurt her for anything."

A tear rolled down the girl's cheek.

"I don't know what she'll say when she hears this. I wish I hadn't done it—I wish—I mustn't have known what I was doing."

"You'll be glad to go back to the farm again?" the doctor questioned.

"Yes," eagerly, "and ride the horses, and go down to the pond, and, and, and—I wish they'd never taken me away from there. Grandma liked me so much and I got along so well down there. They didn't ever, ever scold me and, and——"

The doctor walked slowly away. The girl on the cot had buried her head in the pillow and was crying softly.

SHOT WIFE AND ADMIRER.

Then a Texan, Who Was Told of Intended Elopement, Killed Himself.

EL PASO, TEX., April 25.—Oliver Carrison shot and killed his wife, shot George Allen through the abdomen, fatally wounding him, and then committed suicide to-day at Lordsburg, N. M. Carrison had been informed that his wife and Allen were about to elope.

ALDERMAN HELD FOR BRIBERY

And an Investigation at Rockford, Ill., Causes Two Others to Resign.

ROCKFORD, ILL., April 25.—One alderman under arrest on the charge of accepting a bribe, and the resignation of two others in the hands of Mayor Jardine, these are the net results of the first week's work of the committee appointed to investigate graft in the Rockford city council.

Edward F. Carty, member from the Fifth ward, is the man on whom the warrant was served. Almost simultaneously came the written resignation of Patrick H. Reynolds, alderman from the First ward. Otto Paulson, alderman from the Second ward, sent his resignation to the mayor to-night.

The arrest of Carty, which was made late this afternoon, created a sensation throughout the city. He has been one of the leaders in municipal affairs and is a widely known business man. Alderman Carty was summoned before the committee this afternoon. He expressed his willingness to go and appeared promptly. He had been before the investigators only a short time when he was informed that his arrest had been decided upon. He took the announcement with exceeding coolness.

The alderman called two lawyers, and, as quickly as possible, appeared before Magistrate Johnson and waived preliminary examination. The magistrate continued the case until May 24, fixing the bond at $2,500. Carty gave bond with one of his partners and himself as sureties. Alderman Carty is specifically charged with having accepted $500 from Harvey Geer, an officer of a heat and power company, for his influence in securing the passage of an amendment to the company's franchise.

"Fight it? Of course, I shall fight it," replied the alderman when questioned after the court proceedings. "There is absolutely nothing to it."

MAY BUILD THE PIPE LINE.

Oklahoma Stays Proceedings Against the Prairie Oil and Gas Company.

TULSA, OK., April 25.—Clerk Stuckey of the district court has received a message from Attorney General West to stay proceedings in the suit of the state against the Prairie Oil and Gas company, to restrain that company from building a pipe line from Coody's bluff to Caney, Kas. No reason was assigned for this change of front.

In the meantime, it is believed, the Prairie Oil and Gas company will be allowed to proceed with the line, which can be completed in thirty days. This is the first pipe line to be built since Secretary of the Interior Department Garfield promulgated his drastic ruling governing pipe lines and other common carriers in Indian territory a year and a half ago.

A CHANCE FOR THE CANTEEN

HOUSE COMMITTEE WOULD RESTORE DRINK FOR OLD SOLDIERS.

Temperance Forces Plan a Fight on the Committee Measure — Soldiers' Home Governors Favor It—The Experience of the Leavenworth Home.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The temperance forces in the House are lining up for a hard fight against the re-establishment of the canteen at soldiers' homes. Through a provision of the sundry civil bill, reported to the House to-day, the sale of beer to the veterans at the homes may be resumed. This provision was adopted by the appropriations committee by a vote of seven to six. The committee took action after extended hearings at which governors of the homes and officers of the board of managers at soldiers' homes appeared.

Those governors who did not come to Washington forwarded statements. They agreed that the re-establishment of the canteen would prove beneficial to the inmates of the homes.

RESULTED IN WORSE CONDUCT.

Their statements showed that during the eight months subsequent to the discontinuance of the canteen 1,576 more offenses had been committed by inmates than during a similar period of the previous year when the canteen was maintained.

Colonel S. G. Cooke, governor of the Leavenworth home, reported that since the closing of the canteen the arrests for drunkenness at that home had increased 51 per cent. He said that many dives had been opened in the vicinity of the home. The outside drinking and the drinking of bad whisky brought into the home had proved far more injurious to the health of the veterans than the consumption of beer at the canteen.

WHY IT HAS BEEN A FAILURE.

> The sale of intoxicating liquors in the state of Kansas is prohibited by the constitution and the laws, and sellers are compelled to conduct their sales secretly. The risk being considerable, and whisky being less bulky and more profitable than beer, it has resulted that the old men can obtain whisky mor easily than beer. It has come about, therefore, that the old men accustomed to driking beer have quickly become intoxicated by drinking vile whisky and have come into the home in increased numbers in that condition, frequently bringing in with them bottles of whisky and other drinks. This, in turn, has resulted in an unusual amount of disorderly conduct, which has compelled the home authorities to give more frequent penalties for offenses and to considerably increase the number of expulsions for serious and continued ill conduct.

The bill comes before the House next week. The fight against the canteen will be led by Representative Littlefield of Maine.

PADEREWSKI AND THE PARKS.

Impressions of American Cities by the Polish Pianist.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the Polish pianist, spent part of Holy week and Easter with friends in Boston and had much to say about his seventh tour of this country. Keen observer that he is, he noted many changes.

"What impressed me most," he said, "is what you might describe as the universal movement toward the beautification of cities. I think to-day there are more beautiful cities in the United States than in any other country in the world, if we except the smaller cities of England, and the beginning is only being made.

"Every city seems to be doing something toward its beautification and the clever way in which they are saving and making use of their old trees and planting new ones is amazing. The park idea has secured strong hold on the imagination of every one and the next half century is sure to see as remarkable advance in municipal art as the last half century has in industrial growth."

Kansas City is one of the cities that impressed the Polish pianist. While here recently he made the journey around the boulevard system, a system, by the way, not new to him, for he saw it first years ago when it was just building. He marveled then at the magnitude of the plans. About four years ago he came again to Kansas City and said:

"I am amazed at the change made since my last visit. You have accomplished wonders. Your boulevards are splendid, and the homes rising along them are of great credit to your city. And your Cliff drive. Magnificent."

His further conversation proved his familiarity with the Paseo, with Penn Valley, with Armour boulevard; in fact, the essential parts of the whole park system. The prime value of Paderewski's remarks lies in the fact that he is familiar with the best that the whole world has in the way of splendid avenues and paseos and parkways.

BRATWURST GLOCKEIN TO BE REPRODUCED AT THE Y. W. C. A. FAIR.

After a long day, when the brain and heart are full of new and lasting treasures and visions, one must wend one's way to the quaint little Bratwurst-Glockein, and step over its high doorsill, to enter the minute room so dimly lit with many small windows, seat oneself at one of the little tables on one of the wooden benches, look into the burning charcoal furnace curling up over the bricks, watch the rosy-cheeked maids cooking the wurstlein and dream of the day behind one which has brought and taught one so much.—Gertrude Norman in "Germany described by Great Writers."

Bratwurst-Glockein, reduced in size and transplanted to Kansas City, is to be the German exhibit in the Y. W. C. A.'s "Old World Markets" show, which will be held in the Casino May 7, 8 and 9. Germans laughingly declare that "Bratwurst-Glockein" can't be translated. "Fried sausage of the little bell" wouldn't be good English and "The Little Bell Fried Sausage Restaurant" sounds too modern. And to sound modern would be to take away the greatest charm of the place—Bratwurst-Glockein is one of the most mediaeval buildings in Nuremburg—and of Nuremberg, Baedecker's handbook declares: "There is probably no other town in Germany so mediaeval in appearance."

ON THE BELL THE DATE 1400.

At one end of the building hangs a bell—the sign of good luck to sausage lovers—on which is the date 1400. So the inn is at least that old, though the first mention of it in books, says Baedecker, is not until 1519.

The little sausage restaurant is at the back of the Moritz chapel, the church where the Meistersingers in Wagner's opera of that name held their contest. After the contest they adjourned to Bratwurst-Glockein for little sausages and beer. Hans Sachs, the cobbler poet, and the leader of them, used to compose in the little kitchen, tradition says. And Albrecht Durer, the artist, made some of his sketches there. Wagner, too, no doubt knew the inside of the place pretty well—though he hasn't been dead long enough for tradition to get a chance to tell all that he did there.

Mrs. E. W. Freschlag, who is to manage the Kansas City Bratwurst-Glockein, and Miss Mary Rockwell, an architect, who is planning the exhibits, told yesterday afternoon what the place would be like.

TO BE BUILT IN THE BALCONY.

"The inn will be built in the balcony of the Casino," Miss Rockwell said, "and will be twenty-five feet long and ten feet wide. The first room you'll enter is the German kitchen, bright copper pans hanging on the wall. In the next room will be the benches and the rough tables—everything as much like the quaint little Neuremberg sausage inn as we can make it."

Mrs. Freyschlag told of the materials to be marketed at the exhibit.

"Girls in spreewald and schwartzwald costumes will sell dolls, toys, steins, crockery and flowers. The refreshments include, of course, sausage and cheese and ginger ale in steins."

The German exhibits' representation in the vaudeville of the fair is to be a quartet in peasant costume—Proctor Masters, Allen Hughes, Will Gill and Thor Sanborn. There is a rumor, too, that there may be a German band.

A Catholic Bazaar at Carnival Park.

Beginning Wednesday night, April 29, a bazaar will be given at Carnival park in Kansas City, Kas., by the members of the congregation of St. Peter's Catholic church. The bazaar will continue one week. Musical programmes will be given every night. The street cars on the Fifth street and Indiana avenue lines will turn in at the park while the bazaar is in progress.

BEARDSLEY TO THE WOMEN

THE PROBLEMS OF MUNICIPAL HOUSEKEEPING HIS THEME.

Civil Life Just the Same as the Affairs of an Individual Home, the Ex-Mayor Says—Tenement Board and Playground Need.

In an address before the Women's Associate Collegiate alumnae at the home of William J. Smith, 3000 Troost avenue, yesterday afternoon, Henry M. Beardsley compared the life of a city to that in an individual home. His subject was "Municipal Housekeeping."

"Just as we need things in our individual homes we need them in our city," Mr. Beardsley said. "The city is our municipal house. It is like our individual homes because it is a place in which we expect to live. In our own homes we must look not only to the arrangement of the parlor, the dining room and the kitchen, but to all of the house. So it is with the city. Its departments are the rooms of the house and its people the family. In planning our municipal building we must think of all these things."

Mr. Beardsley also explained the work of the tenement commission and asked the women to use their influence in helping keep the city clean.

He entered an earnest plea for public playgrounds. "It's a pity it takes so much time to make the ordinary citizen realize what this matter means," he said. "When we speak of a playground we mean it is to be the center of life; a place where children may go to play under the guidance of those who understand children's lives; where we may train them to protect public property, to honor laws and to become good citizens. In doing these things we are simply looking after the needs of the neglected members of our municipal family."

After the address the women asked questions concerning municipal affairs and other matters which were explained by Mr. Beardsley.

Two Divorces Granted.

Default decrees of divorce were granted yesterday in the circuit court to Mary B. Burke from W. F. Burke and Charles Manker from Lena R. Manker.

FREE EXCURSION TO-DAY

TO MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

AND

Opening Sale of Remaining Lots

In This Beautiful New Residence Park!

We invite you to see this "Garden Spot of Kansas City" at our Expense—To-day! We will run special Cars to Marlborough Heights all afternoon. Come out and enjoy a FREE and refreshing ride and a pleasant afternoon's outing. Full particulars below!

ONE year ago to-day when we held our opening sale of lots in MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS and gave the public their first opportunity to secure home-sites in this villa-tract of 640 acres (a day on which 114 lots or $140,000 of property was sold in MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS), real estate experts and competitive real estate dealers unanimously agreed that this property would unquestionably be worth the valuation which we placed on it—provided we kept faith with our clients and made the improvements agreed to by us.

Twelve months have passed and the result of our labor is the only needed evidence to prove that we have won our case.

We might tire you with a recital of our achievements and the progress made in our development work at MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS during the past year; instead, however, we want you to come out and SEE. That's quicker and more satisfactory.

That, also, is why we have arranged for TO-DAY'S FREE EXCURSION.

Nor could any written or printed description give you any idea of the beauty of MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS since physical forces have been applied to co operate with nature in the consummation of a residence park that in addition to being a beauty spot is, as well, a convenient, practical, exclusive and highly desirable living place for the better classes.

This will be, in every sense, "The City Beautiful," vieing in grandeur with any district of homes in any city of the Union.

Certainly there will be nothing like it in Kansas City.

Over $100,000 has already been expended to bring this condition about. Work has been pushed in every direction. One hundred men and teams have labored unceasingly throughout the winter—the late financial stringency even failing to retard our work.

Come Out To-Day and See the Result!

WHEN all improvements are completed at MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS our property ought to be easily worth $50 per foot. Even the most skeptical will agree that it should then be worth from $10 to $25 per foot. (We are selling it at just half those prices now.)

——We say it should be worth $50 because it will be the most desirable Residence district in the city—with its 640 acres—one square mile of homes.

——Where no home may be built at a less cost than $2,500 and where all "restrictions" are for, not five years or for ten years, but for twenty years.

——Where every home that's builded must be set back fifty feet from the street and where no lot is less than 100 feet wide (with only one house to each 100-hundred foot lot).

——Where every street in the entire district is virtually a boulevard, being not less than sixty feet wide.

——With thirty-two miles of granitoid sidewalks; and 3,000 stately shade trees, which as well as all other improvements are made by us under contract at no expense to you.

——Where the accommodations will be equal in every respect with those found in the very heart of the city—street cars, electric lights, city water, telephone and educational advantages; all, in fact, that could be desired.

We are spending many hundred thousand dollars to accomplish our task and we will surely make MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS just what we have promised—the most beautiful and exclusive Residence district in Kansas City. Last season we sold over $500,000 worth of this property. We expect to close out the remaining lots of the first of the two subdivisions in the next thirty or sixty days.

Meanwhile the pick of these choice home-sites are to be had at the moderate prices of $5, $6 $7.50, $10 and $12.50 per foot and under terms of small weekly or monthly payments. Quite a few of the most desirable lots in the entire addition yet remain unsold. In fact, with our improvements all completed, there will not be one single undesirable lot in the entire addition.

The greater part of the less-desirable property in the addition has all been sold—the small prices asked for it having appealed to many of the first buyers. The remaining lots for the most part, are the BEST Marlborough Heights boasts.

To-day signalizes the Opening Sale of this fine property for the present season. We expect more than a thousand people out this afternoon. We have arranged with the street car company to run special cars for us in order to afford everybody a chance to see Marlborough Heights at no expense to themselves.

These cars will be marked "FREE EXCURSION TO MARLBOROUGH HEIGHTS," and will leave the Junction at Ninth and Main Streets on the hour. The first car will leave the Junction promptly at 12 o'clock to-day. There will be another car at 1 p. m., another at 2 p. m., another at 3 p. m. and the last at 4 p. m.

They will run out the Troost Avenue division and you can board one of them anywhere along the route. (The route is as follows: Start at Ninth and Main, thence west on Ninth to Wyandotte, thence south to Tenth, thence east on Tenth to Troost and out Troost to 47th street, thence direct to Marlborough Heights). They will stop to let passengers on (but not off) at any street crossing between Ninth and Main and 47th and Troost. They will run direct to Marlborough Heights without change. No coupons or tickets or car fare or any credential required; simply say to the conductor your destination is Marlborough Heights.

Come and See for Yourself—at Our Expense—To-Day!!

All regular south-bound cars of course make connection with regular Marlborough Heights cars, and parties so desiring can reach Marlborough Heights in this manner, but as the ordinary street cars are likely to be overcrowded this afternoon and as these special cars will be run for the exclusive benefit of our visitors it is recommended that you make sure of boarding one of the cars marked "Special—To Marlborough Heights." In this way we can assure you a comfortable seat and a FREE ride. NO GIRL OR BOY UNDER 16 YEARS OF AGE WILL BE AFFORDED FREE STREET CAR PASSAGE UNLESS ACCOMPANIED BY PARENTS. CARS WILL POSITIVELY NOT STOP AT FORTY-SEVENTH AND TROOST TO ALLOW PASSENGERS TO ALIGHT. If you cannot find time to get out to-day call up our office or ring for us over the phone any day this week and we will call at your residence or place of business and take you over the property in our big automobile and thus enable you to see the entire tract without effort to yourself.

DOUBT CANNON'S SINCERITY

A HINT THAT THE SPEAKER'S TRUST INQUIRY IS FOR DELAY.

John Norris of New York, Speaking for the Makers of Newspapers, Asked the Committee What Its Real Purpose Was.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The actual investigation of the wood pulp and print paper question, involving in prospect an examination into the affairs of the Paper trust to determine whether or not it is, as alleged by the American Newspaper Publishers' association, a combination in restraint of trade and maintaining a monopoly of the print paper supply in the United States, was begun to-day by the select committee appointed by Speaker Cannon whose chairman in Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, and the other members of which are Representatives Miller of Kansas, Bannon of Ohio, Stafford of Wisconsin, Simms of Tennessee and Ryan of New York.

Representatives of a committee of fifty appointed by the American Newspaper Publishers' association arrived in Washington to-day in response to a telegram sent yesterday by Chairman Mann to President Herman Ridder of the association and Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, inviting testimony. The delegation from the committee appeared before the investigating body at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the presentation of the publishers' case was at once begun by John Norris, business manager of the New York Times.

IN ANSWER TO THE SUMMONS.

Mr. Norris said that he and his associates had come before the committee in answer to its summons of yesterday.

"We appear," said he, "as representatives of substantially all the daily newspapers of the United States. We consume at least 80 per cent of the newspaper print paper used in the United States. We appear here as representatives of the seventh largest industry in the country, an industry that has been menaced by an extraordinary aggregation of lawbreakers."

Mr. Norris declared that his association had appealed to the House, to the President, to the Department of Justice and to Congress for immediate relief, and for months had been asking an opportunity to tell its story to Congress. In reply he said his association had been told at least twenty times and in various ways that it could not look for any relaxation of the oppressions which the paper makers, "as the objects of congressional favor had imposed upon the vast public interests of the country, and that Congress would not aid us at this time in correcting a gross public wrong."

FEARED IT MEANT DELAY.

Therefore, he said, the association was apprehensive that the investigation, because it had been startd so late in the session could only have one meaning, "delay, postponement and a continuance for another year of conditions which are intolerable."

Mr. Norris said that the association did not intend to imply any mistrust of the committee's intentions and he asked under what programme the committee will proceed.

"Will it demand," he inquired, "that narrow, technical, legal proof which is usually obtainable only by the granting of an immunity bath to one of the participants in the crime or will it act firmly when the moral certainty of the wrong doing is established?"

He assumed, he said, that the burden of proof would be upon the association to "show that the favor granted by Congress to the paper maker has been thoroughly abused."

Continuing, Mr. Norris asserted his ability, "to produce evidence of broken promises to Congress, of deception practiced upon you, oppression upon the public, wrongs to labor and damage to the country without a particle of compensating advantage."

TO FURTHER INCREASE THE BURDEN.

"We will," he continued, "produce figures to prove our assertion that the paper makers plan to add 60 millions of dollars per annum to the burdens of the paper consumers. May we look for speedy action and swift reprobation?"

Mr. Norris said further that the association intended to explain upon what theory Congress should discriminate in favor of newspapers and make a correction of the abuse upon print paper consumers in advance of an effort to revise the entire tariff.

"In short," he said, "we will show you why you should at this time make a piecemeal revision. Also that you can do so without precipitation a general vision of the tariff."

Mr. Mann said the committee intended to get at the facts. After Mr. Norris had given instances of abuse on the part of the trust the hearing was adjourned till Monday, when Mr. Norris will continue.

MINERS' HOPE IS IN LEWIS.

The Union President to Make Another Effort to Settle With the Operators.

The hope of the coal miners in the Southwestern district for a settlement of their differences with the operators so that they may return to work is now centered in Thomas L. Lewis, their president, who is expected to return here tomorrow. Lewis will make a final effort for reconciliation. Should he fail a long period of inactivity in the coal mining industry is inevitable. The operators have declared that they will not continue the negotiations for a settlement until the miners agree to a board of arbitration, one member of which shall be a disinterested outsider. The joint meeting tomorrow afternoon at the Coates house is expected to determine the issues finally one way or the other.

A PRIMARY LAW TANGLE.

Are Circuit Judges State or County Officers?

Candidates for offices less important than the regular state officers are beginning to make known their ambitions officially under the new primary law. The filing of an announcement by O. A. Lucas that he is a candidate for circuit judge is the first move in Jackson county.

The primary law offers many odd features and some that the candidates are not really sure about. It may be odd, but the fact appears to be that the candidates for the judiciary have more troubles construing the law than anybody else. None of them is sure when he has conformed to all the requirements of the law and when he has not. For some reason the law does not appear to recognize that there are judges to be elected and there is a lack of specific statement about how they are to be nominated.

Circuit judges are generally regarded as state officers. The constitution apparently says they are state officers when it makes them a part of the state judiciary. The state pays part of their salaries. In most counties it pays all, but in St. Louis and the counties having large cities the city or county pays an additional salary for the reason that a judge could hardly live in a large city on the meager salary paid by the state to the circuit judges in the country. There was every reason for calling them state officers, but this law provides regulations not consistent with that idea.

The law says that a state officer must have his petitions signed by voters in at least six counties in the state and these judges run in a single county. It is hardly fair to figure that they must file petitions from Jackson, Platte, Clay, Ray, Lafayette and Cass counties. The law provides for the nomination of representatives to Congress and for officers whose districts comprise a territory less than a congressional district. But Jackson county is both a judicial circuit and a congressional district. In circuits comprising several counties the circuit judges might come under the head of officers of territory less in area than congressional district. So circuit judges generally are not county officers.

Many of the candidates admit, at the outset, that they are not sure just how they should file. If they are not county officers they must have petitions. If they are county officers they do not need petitions because the law says all a candidate for a county office needs to do is to file his declaration that he is a candidate. No petition is required.

State officers must have not less than 1 per cent or more than 10 per cent of their party vote signed to the petition. Some may file as county officers and then have petitions as other candidates.

But the law has another peculiar provision. If a man files or knowingly permits others to file petitions signed by more than the maximum number of voters allowed by law he is subject to prosecution for a misdemeanor the penalty for which is a fine of not less than $50 or more than $500 with a jail sentence of not less than three days or more than six months in the county jail. These provisions taken together give plenty of room for argument which, of course, is a thing lawyers do not dislike.

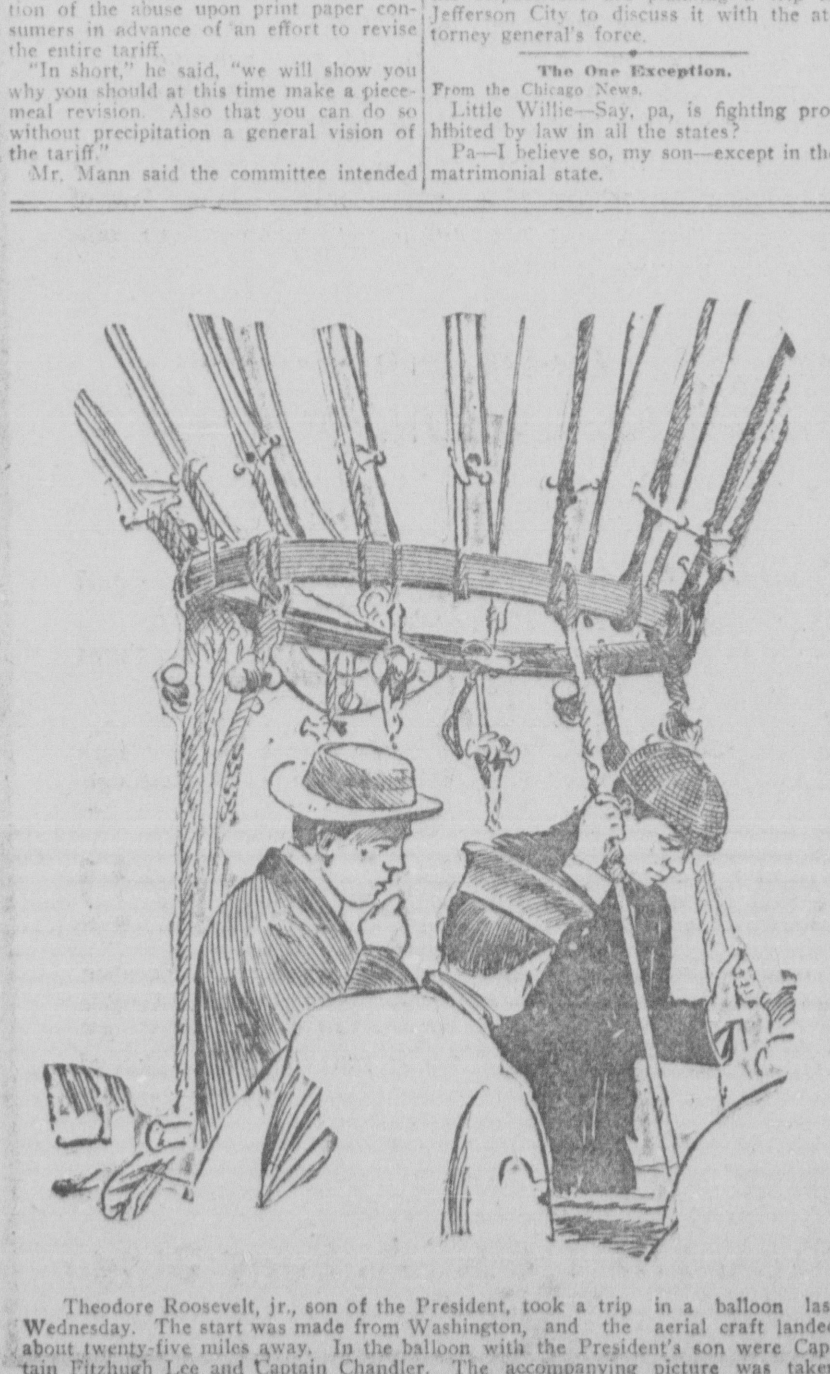
C. W. German, county counselor, has been asked for an opinion on some of these subjects and he and C. L. Shannon, for the Democrats and Clyde Taylor for the Republicans are planning a trip to Jefferson City to discuss it with the attorney general's force.

The One Exception.

From the Chicago News.

Little Willie—Say, pa, is fighting prohibited by law in all the states?

Pa—I believe so, my son—except in the matrimonial state.



Theodore Roosevelt, jr., son of the President, took a trip in a balloon last Wednesday. The start was made from Washington, and the aerial craft landed about twenty-five miles away. In the balloon with the President's son were Captain Fitzhugh Lee and Captain Chandler. The accompanying picture was taken while preparations for the start were being made. To the right is the President's son. The man on the left is Captain Lee. The third man is Captain Chandler.

TRADE WINNERS TO KANSAS

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB TO SPEND A WEEK BOOSTING BUSINESS.

In a Special Train the Territory Along the Ceneral Branch and Union Pacific Roads Will Be Covered—The Party to Number 108.

The Commercial club, or rather 108 of its members, representative of many lines of business in Kansas City, will spend next week in visiting the merchants in Northern Kansas along the lines of the Central Branch and Union Pacific railways. The trade excursionists will travel in a special train of six cars, including a diner, filled—as the bills announce—with "all modern conveniences." There will be a tailor aboard to keep the excursionists' clothes pressed and mended; a barber, an intercommunicating telephone system connecting each car, and an orchestra and a quartet to furnish music.

The route has been arranged so that no time will be lost on the road. The train will leave Kansas City next Sunday at midnight and a slow run will be made to Effingham, Kas., the first stop, arriving there at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning. The last stop on Saturday will be at St. Mary's, Kas. The route is through a territory from which Kansas City draws a large trade, but which has not been covered by a trade trip for several years.

As on former trips, wherever a night stop is made public meetings will be held, in the open air if the weather permits. Short talks will be made at these meetings by members of the party and by citizens of the towns. Souvenirs of all kinds will be taken along by members.

FAIRMOUNT'S OPENING MAY 10.

Workmen are busy now making preparations for the opening of Fairmount park May 10. Several changes will be made in the park this summer and features will be added. Among these is to be a Red Cross nurse who will care for children at the playground, where new swings, teeter-totters and other things that please children, have been installed. The nurse will have two assistants who will watch the children should the parents desire to leave them while boating or "doing" other attractions in the park.

The bowling alley near the car line and boathouse is being transformed into an open air skating rink. The floor space is being doubled to accommodate the skaters.

There will be many picnics at the park this summer. In addition there will be the usual boating, dancing and other attractions.

BRIEF BITS OF CITY NEWS.

D. W. Mulvane of Topeka, Republican national committeeman for Kansas, was in Kansas City last night.

Suits for divorce were brought in Independence yesterday by Edward B. against Anna Smith, and Charles C. against Rose Gilkerson Herman.

Fred Lauthern, 32 years old, of this city, and Ethel Grigsby, 21 years old, of Kansas City, Kas., were married in Independence yesterday by Justice W. S. Loar.

Funeral services for Harry Metzger, who died Wednesday in Hot Springs, Ark., will be held at 2:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon at the home of his uncle, Henry Metzger, 3027 Flora avenue. Burial will be in Forest Hill cemetery.

NEW WERNER 20TH CENTURY
Encyclopaedia Britannica

For several months past we have been offering this great million-dollar library upon a Co-operative Club plan, which cut the publisher's price squarely in two and also allowed little-at-a-time payments, amounting to only ten cents a day. The success of this Club has been enormous. We have distributed no less than 135,000 sets, or over FOUR MILLION VOLUMES, at a total saving to our Club members of a round FIVE MILLION DOLLARS! This is by far the most wonderful record in the whole history of bookselling.

This unrivaled work is a necessity in every home. Its 31 massive volumes, with their 25,000 large pages and wealth of maps and illustrations, are a library in themselves. They stand ready to help you—as they have helped thousands of others—to succeed in life.

Only Four Days More!

Star readers will have only until next Thursday to join this money-saving club. To be sure of getting a set, you should send in the Inquiry Coupon TO-DAY, as it will take a day or two to act on the applications already pouring in. This coupon will not obligate you—it merely brings you facts—but if sent in by RETURN MAIL we will reserve a set pending your decision. This is positively your last chance!

WHY WE HAVE TO CLOSE

As a result of an agreement between the English and American publishers the Twentieth Century (American) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is to be entirely withdrawn. Our Encyclopaedia Club must close at once. Then the remarkable opportunity we have been able to offer you will be a thing of the past. Do not mistake what this means to you. A small first payment, and we at once deliver to you the set of 31 superb volumes. You pay for the books from month to month in sums so small as to amount to but a few cents a day. You cannot afford to neglect this opportunity to equip your home with this splendid Library, which will bring you and your children pleasure and profit the rest of your days. This is your last chance. When the last set is shipped your opportunity will have passed. We have on hand a limited number of oak bookcases, made especially for these sets. They will be given free of charge to all who order through the coupon below.

Cut out and mail this coupon TO-DAY.

THE BLUES WON THIS TIME

ERRORS BY TOLEDO GAVE THE CROSS HOPEFULS THE VICTORY, 4 TO 3.

The Mudhens Made Ten Hits to the "Town Boys'" Five, but They Didn't Collect Them at the Right Time—Brashear Made a Home Run.

TOLEDO, O., April 25.—Poor fielding by Toledo, coupled with Asher's wildness at the start, enabled the Blues to take the last of the series here 4 to 3 in a game that was exciting from the drop of the flag. Although the Blues drew out five hits they came at just the right time in contrast to the ten Toledo made at times when they were of little avail. The Blues deserve considerable credit for getting away at that, for some reason or other every close decision was against them. It didn't seem to be done in any spirit of soreness, but it just happened that on two close ones Owens was in a position to be unable to see the play as it really was pulled off.

With Hallman and Murphy gone in the first Asher walked Beckley, Brashear and Kerwin. Then while Krueger was at bat he made a wild pitch that allowed Beckley to score the first run of the game. In the third, after Hallman and Murphy had gone out and Beckley was safe on a fielders' choice, Roy Brashear rapped the ball into center field bleachers for a home run. In the last half of the third Toledo got the first run after Asher had fanned and Barbeau had walked and been forced by Hinchman on singles by Smoot and Armbruster.

In the fifth Hinchman led off by grounding to Beckley. Then Smoot flew to Kerwin. Armbruster was passed and McCarthy's short single put him on second, from which station he scored when Lister singled to center. Hopkins doubled over the right field fence and McCarty came in with the run that tied the score.

BLUES WON IN THE SIXTH.

In the very next inning, however, the game was won. Krueger hit an easy pop fly over second, which Smoot had easily. But in some manner the ball slipped as it struck his gloves. He dropped the fly. Cross was robbed of a hit when Hinchman made a sensational stop of his grounder, and throwing him out at first. Crisp also tried to pass Hinchman without avail. Brandom hit an easy one to Barbeau, which the little shortstop booted just long enough to let Brandom get to first in safety. Then Hallman came along at the right time with a sharp single to right that allowed Krueger to come across with the fourth and winning run. Monte Cross at short played a magnificent game and was one of the principal factors in the Blues' victory. His individual work robbed Toledo of no less than two runs and three hits. The score:

Philadelphia 9, New York 5.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The home team won to-day's game, 9 to 5. They had what looked like a safe lead until the eighth, when Dygert, who had previously held New York to one hit, became wild and was hit hard, Stahl putting the visitors ahead with a home run which cleared the bases. In the same inning Orth went to the bad, and while Manning was pitching Davis cleared the bases with a two-bagger, deciding the game. The score:

BECKLEY IS HITTING GOOD

Roy Brashear Is the Next Regular, With .317—Beckley and Cross Performing Well in the Field—Few Bases Stolen.

Only two of the Blue regulars are hitting in the .300 class. Jake Beckley, honored guardian of the first diamond turn, is at the top of the clouters with .342. Jake hasn't struck his real stride yet, but is fast getting into form. Of course, .342 is pretty good, but Jake says he's not going good until he settles in the .350s. Roy Brashear is the other regular who ranks in the classy hitting department. Roy has hit .317 in ten games. Brashear said before his departure on the present trip that he intended to pound the cover off the ball this year. The clever second baseman is making a good start toward the fulfillment of that boast. Leahy, late and lamented, hit .333 in the six games he played with the Blues. Goodwin, Hallman and Egan are hitting .333, but have not participated in a sufficient number of games to be ranked with the regulars.

Frank Kitson, the hard hitting pitcher, clipped the safeties at .286 in the four games he has played in. Kitson always has been a good hitter. Jack Sullivan has been rapping out pinch blows at a .276 tune. That is grand work for "Sully." Hugh Hill has hit .260 in six games and Howard Murphy .250 in ten frays. Danny Kerwin has the astounding record of .051 in ten games. A glance at the hitting records of the Blue outfielders may give the fan an idea, one at least, as to why the athletes haven't been winning more games. Monte Cross has hit .207 in ten games which is some better than Paul Krueger's .176. Last year Krueger started the season with a fine pair of hitting eyes. For the first few weeks he led the club and was hitting around .330. Perhaps Krueger is getting a bad start, like the team, but will come stronger later. More room for hope. In the ten games the team has hit .237. The batting averages follow:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	SH.	SB.	Avg.
Beckley	10	38	6	13	1	1	.342
Leahy	6	15	0	5	0	1	.333

Totals	10	334	31	79	13	9	.237

A glance at the stolen base column will give the fans another probable cause for the bad start our athletes have made. In the ten games only nine bases have been pilfered by Monte's players. Dan Kerwin is the only Blue who has boodled more than one. Dan's total is two. Murphy, the Denver fleetness, has one; Beckley, who has his finger in all the good things, has another; Leahy swiped one, Brashear one, Sullivan one, Hill one, Krueger one, and "Ducky" Swan one. Monte's men must liven up on the circuit.

Jake Beckley also leads the Blues in the fielding department. The veteran has accepted 117 chances, without a miscue. Hill has had twelve without a bobble. Five pitchers, Swan, Wood, Brandom, Goodwin and Egan, have played perfectly in the games they have worked in. Hallman kept a clean slate in his first game Friday. Monte Cross has registered only one credited mistake in 63 chances. His average is .984. Sullivan, Krueger, Brashear and Kerwin rank in the order named. Outfielder Murphy's average doesn't look good. The team fielding in the ten games is .958. The fielding averages follow:

MANUAL WON THIS TIME.

The Crimson Humbled Central in an 8 to 5 Game.

Manual and Central are now on even terms. A week ago the wearers of the blue and white humbled the crimson in an 8 to 3 mixup. Yesterday the Manualites were out for revenge and they got it good and plenty, beating Central 8 to 5. While the game yesterday afternoon at Stevens's park was rather loosely played, it was interesting. Many good plays were pulled off and the rooters forgot all about the many foozles. The game really ended in the seventh act when the Manual sluggers hammered Burns for five runs, a three-bagger by Robbins clearing the bases. The score:

Nickerson College Was Blanked.

MCPHERSON, KAS., April 25.—In a good game to-day the McPherson college baseball team defeated the Nickerson college aggregation in a shut-out contest. The score was 7 to 0. Until the eighth inning the game was a close consistent one, but it was here that the local collegians pounded the visitors' slab artist for four hits and crossed the rubber five times. The feature work of the game was executed by the McPherson team in making three double plays.

A WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN

DRAY, YALE'S POLE VAULTER, CLEARED THE BARS AT 12 FEET 6 1-2 INCHES

University of Pennsylvania Won the Blue Ribbon Event of the Meet, the One Mile Relay Race for the Championship of the United States.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The character of the performances of the hundreds of athletes at the annual relay races and field sports held on Franklin field to-day under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania were of the highest order. One world's record, that for the pole vault, was broken by W. R. Dray of Yale, and another record was equaled. The University of Pennsylvania won the blue ribbon event of the meet, the one-mile relay race for the championship of the United States. Her only opponent was Chicago, who ran Pennsylvania to a sensational finish. Other universities entered for this event did not start.

The Michigan four-mile team, which was given the four-mile relay event by default, entered the two-mile national relay championship and won easily. Pennsylvania was second. The Hill school, Pottstown, Pa., carried off the national relay championship for preparatory schools, and the Brooklyn M. T. school captured the national relay championship for high schools.

The one-mile championship won by Pennsylvania was anybody's race from beginning to end. The official time was 3:23 4-5 and 3:24 4-5. The world's record is 3:21 2-5.

The star performance in the field events was made by Dray, Yale's champion pole vaulter. He cleared the bar at 12 feet 6½ inches, breaking by one inch his own record made last year. He tried to clear 12 feet 10 inches, but was too tired to accomplish it.

In the first heat of the 120-yard hurdle race A. B. Shaw of Dartmouth equalled the world's record of 15 1-5 seconds, held by A. C. Kraenzlein, but he had a very strong wind at his back.

In the hammer throw M. F. Horr, Syracuse university, threw the hammer 173 feet 5 inches, two inches short of the world's record, but the throw was not allowed because he stepped outside the ring.

Of the eight special events, Yale and Illinois university each took two firsts, and Dartmouth, Indiana university, Syracuse and Cornell each captured one. A heavy rain fell during part of the afternoon, but notwithstanding the bad weather about ten thousand persons saw the sports.

A BRACE O' LIMERICKS.

Mr. J. P. Moran, a wrestling fan, has submitted this one:

There once was a wrestler called Hack,
Who tried to put Gotch on his back,
But when they go through,
He felt rather blue,

A dandy fine player named Cross,
Hired to Tebeau as a boss,
He glittered real bright,
Till he got in the fight,
But then he lost some of his gloss.

SOME DAY, AH, SOME DAY!

I.

Some day, perhaps, we'll have a team worth going far to see,
Some day, perhaps, we'll laugh and scream and thrill with frantic glee,
Some day, ah, some day!

II.

Just at the time when all the fans are clamoring for it,
Some day, ah, some day!

III.

Some day we'll have a pitcher who won't give his games away,
Some day, perhaps, we'll have a team of players who can play,
Some day, ah, some day!

DOPE FROM A BUG.

"Ole, I ben zik."

"Vat is der matter, Hans?"

"Vat is a thirty-tree degree fan, Hans?"

"A thirty-tree degree fan, Ole, is a fellar who has shouted and pulled for der home team for four years and seen dem lose about tree hundred and chug a few games on der home grounds and still kept pulling for dem. I skal bet if I ben zik dar ben bunch of common bugs ben in bad shape."

"Oh, you ben sore, Hans; the Blues nefer losted dot many games to home in four years."

"You ben pretty smart fellar, Ole, but I tank I skal bet you few dollar dey losted every game dey did losted about tray times each time. George, he handed out der bunk some more des spring, and it did look lik we have one chance to win dot peanut. Peckby, he ben der goods, and dot new second baseman fellar he ben all right, all right.

"Moster Cross he ben good fellar and blamed good ball player. He will help some more ven he gets idea out from his head dot dis A. A. is a 'bush league' pizness. Der infield vill do, and vill do good. Der outfield is plenty bum. That Murphy fellar is a comer, all right, and I bet tray dollar dot Ginger Hallman is der goods ven he gets going. Dis air is too heavy here for Dannie. Hughie make one grand trow to plate one day, sulk the next tray days, make a hit about ever other day. I may ben sore, but I don't lik that sulk pizness. Jawn been good catcher maybe, but I like fellar what try all the time. Dot joung fellar Goe got lot to learn, but I been for him. He can poke the Reach in der nose some, maybe.

"Dot bunch of pitcher fellars? Vel? I know von thing sure if de were giving away passes to der ball farm like de are to furst base George would die mid his heart broken. I tell you, Ole, ven it comes to even a chance for dot peanut, we have got just vot I got in the can ven I was down in Kuba fighting for Uncle Sam."

"Vot you got in can down der, Hans?"

"Why, a bum steer, Ole."

LINES TO TOMMY LEAHY.

We hope you'll stick to Charlie Carr,
Tommy Leahy.
You're such a jolly-natured tar,
Tommy Leahy.
Who'll always lung a lusty cheer,
And whoop 'em up when you appear,
Tommy Leahy.

We wish for you the best of luck,
Tommy Leahy.
You've always been a funny duck,
Tommy Leahy.
When you're playing other teams,
We hope you'll hit all sorts of screams,
And rip a lot of Reach ball seams,
Tommy Leahy.

But when you play against the Blues,
Tommy Leahy.
We hope you'll register some miscues,
Tommy Leahy.
And whiff each time you come to bat,
And when you're running, fall down flat,
And other capers just like that,
Tommy Leahy.

ST. MARY'S WON A FAST GAME.

Catholics Defeated K. U. by the Score of 3 to 2.

ST. MARY'S, KAS., April 25.—St. Mary's college won a fast game from Kansas university this afternoon on a passed ball by Catcher Rockefeller of the university. The winning score was made by Pitcher Green of St. Mary's, a Kansas City boy, whose two-bagger in the fifth inning had scored Catcher Swift, also a Kansas City boy. The university made its two scores in the eighth inning, the first on a grounder through third base and the second on an error by St. Mary's outfield. In the eighth inning St. Mary's succeeded in getting three men on bases, but failed to score through the fan out of R. H. E. Hoffman pitched for the visitors and fanned twelve. The score:

										R.	H.	E.
St. Mary's	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	2	3	4	6
K. U.	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	2	7	3

Batteries: Green and Swift; Hoffman and Rockefeller. Umpire—Lane.

Joplin Slaughtered Independence.

JOPLIN, MO., April 25.—Joplin slaughtered the Independence team of the O. K. league here today, 10 to 5. Both teams secured an equal number of hits, but the Miners ran bases well, stealing six bags. The pitching of Shaner, who succeeded Moore in the sixth, was a feature, not a man hitting safely and only one reaching first base in the four innings he worked. The score:

Independence ...1 2 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—5

Batteries—Moore, Shaner and Hawkins; Richardson, Price, Stringer and Waring.

CONFERENCE MEET MAY 23

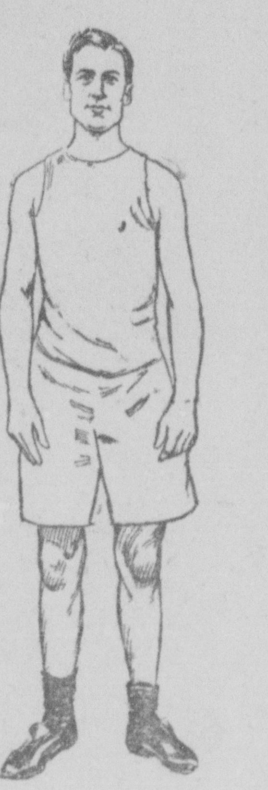
THIRTY ATHLETES FROM EACH OF SEVEN SCHOOLS WILL COMPETE.

The Central-Manual Dual Meet at Elm Ridge Next Saturday—Local Highs Will Take No Part in Interscholastic Meet at Columbia.

The first annual track and field meet of the Missouri Valley conference colleges, which is scheduled to be held here Saturday, May 23, probably will eclipse in point of entries and excellence any outdoor athletic meet ever held west of Chicago. Arrangements are rapidly being perfected for the successful running-off of this meet.

The place for holding the meet has not been definitely decided. This matter was discussed yesterday afternoon at a meting of the local committee which has the meet in charge. Elm Ridge, Association park and the K. C. A. C. park are under consideration. The committee favors Elm Ridge if suitable arrangements can be made. The Athletic club has offered its park free of charge, but the accommodations there are inadequate. Association park has no track, but the ball farm is being considered.

Martin A. Delaney, the athletic director of the Kansas City Athletic club, has been selected as the clerk of the course. Fred Stone of the Third regiment, Chicago, may be named as starter. In choosing these two officials the conference committee will name two men whose work will insure the rapid and successful running-off of the fifteen events. Martin Delaney handles a track meet better than any director in the West. Fred Stone, the probable choice for starter, is well known in Kansas City. Stone brought a team of Chicago athletes to compete in the Playgrounds meet here last fall and he was here as official starter in the great indoor meet of the Kansas City Athletic club in Convention hall in March.



E. H. MITCHELL, WHO WILL COMPETE IN THE HIGH JUMP FOR WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY.

The preliminaries entries close Tuesday, the finals May 13. Each school will have thirty athletes entered in the big meet. There are seven schools, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Drake, Des Moines, Washington university, St. Louis, the Ames, "Aggies," Ames, Ia. There will be no invitation events this year. The work of getting ready for the first meet prevents the committee from arranging invitation affairs. Several schools have asked permission to enter athletes and invitation events may be slated for future meets.

The seven schools of the conference are preparing their track and field athletes for the gigantic outdoor clash. It will be the first time the Iowa schools have ever competed in Kansas City. Special trains will be run from each school and the committee in charge expects to entertain several thousand visiting collegians.

The eighth annual track and field meet between Central and Manual High schools will be held next Saturday afternoon at Elm Ridge. Both teams are training hard, and the interest is intense. The conditions at Elm Ridge are especially favorable for such an affair, the track being an excellent one, and the grand stand furnishing the best of accommodations to all spectators.

The meet will begin at 2:30 o'clock and all arrangements have been made to pull it off rapidly. The official announcers in connection with the bulletin board will keep the spectators in close touch with the meet by announcing promptly the winners of each event, the time and the next event. Tickets will be placed on sale at both schools early this week.

The athletes of both schools have been training for several weeks for the dual clash. Each school has three wins to its credit and the rivalry next Saturday will be intense. There ought to be a deal of high school spirit. Manual won the meets in 1899 and in 1900. The meet was abandoned the next two years. In 1903 and 1904 the Central team carried off the honors. In 1905 the meet was not finished on account of rain. Manual lost in "oughty 6," but won in "oughty 7."

The Central and the Manual athletes will not compete in the interscholastic track and field meet held under the auspices of the University of Missouri in Columbia next Saturday. Heretofore the athletes of both the local highs have taken part in this meet and have won many honors. It has been the custom for the winner of the local high school baseball series to meet the St. Louis champions in Columbia for the state championship. The same arrangement has been true in regard to basket ball.

This year the university authorities did not extend the baseball and basket ball invitations to the local highs on account of unsettled high school squabbles both here and in St. Louis. Hence the local highs decided not to send their track team to participate in the interscholastic. The Columbia meet will suffer thereby.

Much interest is being shown in the ward school indoor meet dated for Convention hall the night of May 15. The Blue Diamond coaches are working hard at their school assignments and there promises to be much warm rivalry among these coaches the night of the meet.

George Creel is greatly discouraged on account of his high jumper who, according to Creel, is doing only 6 feet 6 inches. Delaney remarks that the world's record is a mere 6 feet 5⅝ inches.

Martin Delaney is devoting his entire coaching attention to the suburban schools. eH has no trouble in obtaining coaches for the close in schools.

Delaney will answer any questions the ward school athletes wish to know if the questions are sent to him at the K. C. A. C., 1016 Central street. He cannot answer inquiries over the telephone.

The ward schoolers will be given the use of the Blue Diamond park, Thirty-third and Locust streets, each afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock and from 8 until noon on Saturdays.

SENIORS WIN INTERCLASS MEET.

Sophomores Were Second and Freshmen Third at Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, KAS., April 25.—The seniors easily won the interclass meet on McCook field to-day, in which the classes of the University of Kansas competed. Pittsburg 3, St. Louis 2.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Pittsburg took the final game of the series from St. Louis to-day by a score of 3 to 2. St. Louis made their runs in the ninth inning and for a time it looked as if they would at least tie the score. In this inning the first three men up singled, filling the bases. Leever was strong and Higginbotham pitched a grand game, but weakened somewhat in the eighth. The score:

JACK ATKIN STILL WINNING

MISSOURI-BRED COLT JOGGED HOME IN THE QUEENS COUNTY HANDICAP

Was the Third Choice in the Betting, but Ran Away From His Field—The Distance, One Mile Was Covered in 1:39.

AQUEDUCT, N. Y., April 25.—Jack Atkin, winner of the Carter handicap, to-day duplicated his victory by easily winning the Queens County handicap at Aqueduct, defeating a high class field of horses. Jack Atkin was quoted at 7 to 2 in the betting, and he ran the distance, one mile, in 1:39, the fastest time of the meeting. Rifleman, who finished second, met with a lot of interference, but came very strong at the finish. Restigouche and Welbourne were both added starters, with the former favorite all through the betting at 2 to 1.

The Glendale steeplechase, a handicap over the long course, resulted in an easy victory for the second choice, Rocket. The summaries:

What Newbro's Herpicide has done for others it may do for you

CLARENCE HAMILTON

Inclosed you will find a recent photograph of myself, showing the growth of my hair since beginning the use of your Herpicide. Before using Herpicide the top of my head was completely bald, but the use of only two bottles has brought a new growth of hair. I had spent between $30 and $50 on other remedies, but failed to derive any benefit until using your Herpicide. I cannot commend this remedy too highly to any with dandruff, baldness or falling hair."
(Signed) CLARENCE HAMILTON.
Atlanta Police Department,
Atlanta, Georgia.

WHILE CHRONIC BALDNESS is incurable, many cases of primary or incipient baldness have been completely cured with Newbro's Herpicide, the original remedy that "kills the dandruff germ." Of course, the rational plan is to save the hair while there is hair to save, but even after it is gone there is a "fighting chance" if the hair follicles are not atrophied. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp instantly.

It is all any man can want. He who is everlastingly seeking bargains is continually being "stung" with some anciently styled or poorly-made garment. If you want something right, you've got to pay a right price. You can't go wrong if you look for our set-price labels "on the sleeve." It's a square deal clothing proposition; the retail price is set by us, the makers. One price to all, all over America. This plan is endorsed by over five thousand progressive clothing dealers who are now showing our Spring and Summer styles. Look up your local dealer in Schwab Clothes at $10 to $25, and you'll get a square deal and a good deal for your clothes money.

DRUGS RUIN THE STOMACH

Every dose of Drugs that you put into your stomach weakens your nerves. Every time you kill a pain or ache by unnatural means—by stupefying the nerves with poisonous drugs, you are hurting them, and anyone can see that in time, by steady dosing, your nervous system will be broken down completely.

Drugs not only weaken the nerves but they upset the stomach, rendering it unable to supply the nourishment for the nerves and organs of the body. Drugs destroy the digestive juices of the stomach, therefore you do not get the proper nourishment from your food. You may eat heartily, but if your digestive apparatus is out of order you don't get much good out of your food.

Dr. Hall's "Electro-Vigor" Cures Without Drugs

Why don't you stop it? You are still doctoring? But changing doctors does not cure your sickness. You are trying one medicine after the other with the same disgusting disappointment. Patent medicines do you no good. You are a drug doser, and the only change in your bodily condition is for the worse. Why don't you stop this drug habit? Why don't you avail yourself of the modern remedy? Proceed on nature's own lines. Use the life giving, healing, strengthening forces of Electricity. This is the Electric Age. You can see on every hand the wonders of Electricity.

Electro-Vigor is a dry cell body battery, which you wear about your waist while you sleep. It is always charged, ready for use, and generates its own power constantly. Electro-Vigor is not like the electric belt you know—there is no charging to do—no vinegar or acid solution to bother with, and we have perfected it with a regulation device which makes the current mild or strong at will.

ELECTRO-VIGOR cures Nervousness, Falling Vitality, Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Indigestion, Constipation, Stomach, Kidney and Bowel troubles, and, in fact, any and all of the many human ills which are now successfully treated with electricity by the most learned and scientific physicians in the world.

ELECTRO-VIGOR gives you in the privacy of your home all the benefits of the grand curative and strengthening power of electricity, without any of the discomforts or loss of time caused by treatment at a specialist's office, and costs only a fraction of what a competent specialist would charge you. Furthermore, a specialist would give you but a half hour of his time, and probably fifteen to twenty minutes' treatment. ELECTRO-VIGOR can be used for hours at a time, thus allowing the weakened nerves to absorb the current. It will pour electric life and force into your body while you sleep, warming and vitalizing the nerves and blood and invigorating every vital organ. It has attachments, suitable for every person, by means of which the current can be applied to any part of the body.

CONSULTATION FREE—FREE BOOK

We want to tell you more about Electro-Vigor. Can't you find time to call at our office? If not, send for our 100-page book, which is beautifully illustrated and is FREE for the asking, and you will learn more about our great invention and what it does. Send to-day for FREE BOOK.

HOW TO LEARN SHOT PUTTING

HARD AND STEADY WORK NECESSARY TO BECOME PROFICIENT.

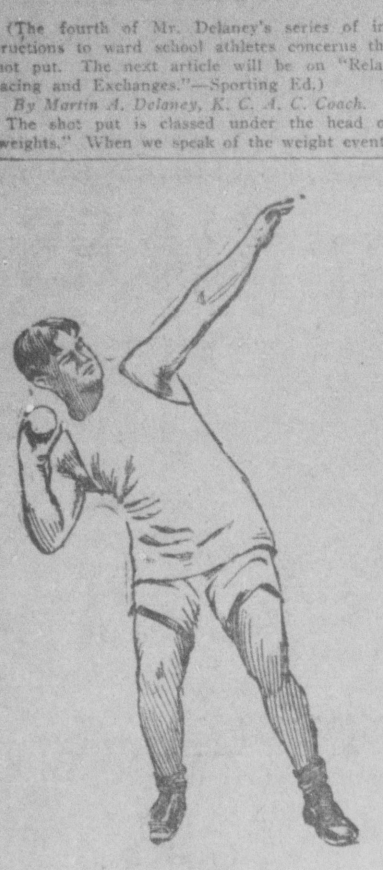
(The fourth of Mr. Delaney's series of instructions to ward school athletes concerns the shot put. The next article will be on "Relay Racing and Exchanges."—Sporting Ed.)

By Martin A. Delaney, K. C. A. C. Coach.

The shot put is classed under the head of "weights." When we speak of the weight events we usually refer to the shot put or the hammer throw, but it is a fact that the two do not go well together.



PERFECT FORM FOR THE START. NOTICE HOW THE SHOT IS HELD AND HOW THE WEIGHT OF THE BODY IS CARRIED.

Putting the shot develops the pushing muscles, throwing the hammer strengthens the pulling muscles in the arms and the back.

Shot putting is a science, hard to develop, and it usually takes an athlete several years to become fairly proficient. The youth who desires to become a good shot putter must work hard and long. He must pay particular attention to the development of his forearm muscles and his shoulder muscles. Work on the parallels and bag punching is suggested. Another good exercise is to push one's self from a wall to full arm extension and then to come to a chest rest. Sprinting also is an excellent exercise. It teaches the athlete to be fast on his feet.

The shot usually is put from a seven-foot circle with a toe board in front. When picking up the shot to put, supposing you are right-handed, always pick up the shot with the left hand. This is to save the right hand and arm. When you are in the circle and in position to put, then take the shot into the right hand. Do not extend the arm at full length, but hold the shot on the shoulder and against the neck. Then assume an easy position and balance the shot in the right hand. The grip should be loose, not tight.

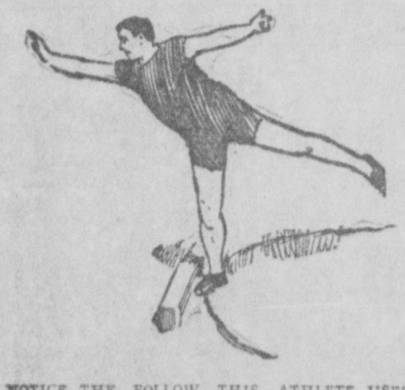
THE WAY TO START.

In starting, place the weight on the right leg, holding the left arm forward as a balance. (See illustration No. 1.) Hop quickly from the right leg, holding the shot against the neck and shoulder, and after alighting from the hop touch the left toe to the toe-board, with the body in a crouching position. The moment the left toe touches the ground bring it quickly backward, throwing the right side of the body forward. Then turn half way around with the right shoulder in the exact position the shot is to be put. After the spring upward has been given by the legs and body shoot the arm upward and outward with all your force. The movement should be uniform and the change of feet, the lift, the turn and the push should be very fast and not jerky. It takes time to perfect the movement.

Always let the shot leave the hand easily and always follow the put with the arm and body so they will be over the toe-board. (See illustration No. 2.) The beginner should practice with the shot or stone each day, but he should stop when he begins to tire. After he has acquired form two or three times a week will do.

ERRORS OF SHOT PUTTERS.

I have noticed that in this section of the country the shot-putters try to put too hard with the arm and do not get the weight of the body into the push. Others do not go across the circle fast enough, hence lose all the speed of the first hop. Others do not crouch after the first hop, as they start to reverse.



NOTICE THE FOLLOW THIS ATHLETE USES AFTER THE PUT, TOE AGAINST THE TAKE-OFF AND THE BODY EXTENDED OVER THE TOE-BOARD. IN THAT WAY FROM THIRTY TO FORTY INCHES MAY BE GAINED.

Try to start the swing before the first hop and increase the speed as you go along, and when you combine speed and the weight of the body into the push you will increase the distance of the put from four to six feet.

A MEDLEY OF SPORT.

Billy Papke has turned ball player.

Baseball is crowding out lacrosse in Canada.

Nearly 4,000 2-year-olds have been registered with the Jockey club and also have been named in accordance with the provisions of the rules of racing.

An ordinance requiring women to remove their hats during the ball games at League park has been introduced in the Cincinnati city council.

Pittsburg is planning to conduct the A. B. C. tourney in Duquesne Garden next March.

During the eighty days of racing on this summer's circuit in the Canadian Northwest about $108,000 will be distributed in purses.

It is barely possible that a sprinkling of American golfers will compete in the tournament that has been arranged in England as a part of the Olympic games programme June 1 to 3.

It is likely that Jack O'Brien and Jack Blackburn, the negro lightweight, will meet in a six-round bout at catchweights at Philadelphia May 18.

Jake Schaefer has given up all hope of being able to play his championship game with Sutton till next fall, and he is trying to have the match postponed to that time. This Sutton has refused to do up to this time, and it appears as though the Wizard must lose his 18.1 championship by default.

The news that John Garrells, the former University of Michigan star, has returned to Ann Arbor to train for the Olympic games means that the long expected contest between him and Martin Sheridan for the world's all round championship will take place within the coming summer.

Commander Robert E. Peary is much interested in a breed of Eskimo dogs from Northern Greenland, the only specimens of which, outside of Greenland, he owns.

Of the 100 million horses known to exist in the world, 80 millions, or four-fifths of the entire number, are found in the temperate zone, and nearly all among the Occidental people.

Chicago is to lose her greatest golfer, H. Chandler Egan, winner of national and Western championship titles and "wizard of the Exmoor links," as the Highland Park man has been called, will move shortly to enter business in Nashville, Tenn.

Rector of Charlottesville, the "Virginia Flyer," considered one of the most promising candidates in America for the 100-yard dash in the Olympia games next summer, will not enter the trials to be held at Philadelphia in June because of his father's illness.

St. Simon cost $800 as a 2-year-old and was unbeaten in ten races in two years on the turf earning some $20,000. In the stud, however, he averaged $100,000 for several years, and earned more than 1 million dollars in fees.

CABIN IS AN ACROBAT.

San Francisco, April 25.—Cabin, the winner of the Fairfax handicap at Oakland to-day, showed a great reversal of form. The last time that he started he was badly beaten. He suddenly recovered and in a mile drive won from Frank Flittner and Down Patrick. Frank Flitner, the favorite, came in on the rail, but could not get up. Elevator, at 20 to 1, in a sharp drive out gamed Ralph Young, and won the third event. Hilgert, the favorite, was forced too near the fence and Miller had to pull up. The summaries:

First race, Futurity course—Elmdale, 111 (Moreland), 15 to 1, won; James A. Murray, 111 (McIntyre), 18 to 5, second; Seven Full, 106 (W. Miller), 18 to 10, third. Time, 1:10 4-5. Triumphant, Prince Brutus, Combury, Dr. Sherman, Redwood II, Hector, Jolly Witch, Michief and Pocohanto finished as named.

Second race, five furlongs—Ocean Queen, 106 (W. Miller), 9 to 10, won; Frieze, 106 (McIntyre), 13 to 5, second; Ak-Sar-Ben, 95 (A. Walsh), 100 to 1, third. Time, 1:00 4-5. Alice Collins and Carmisa finished as named.

Third race, mile and seventy yards—Elevation, 106 (Stuart), 25 to 1, won; Ralph Young, 108 (Mentry), 13 to 1, second; John Lyle, 106 (Sandy), 11 to 2, third. Time, 1:45 1-5. Johnstown, Millsong, Hilgert and Exchequer finished as named.

Fourth race, mile and a sixteenth, Fairfax handicap—Cabin, 107 (McIntyre), 5 to 1, won; Frank Flittner, 106 (W. Miller), 6 to 5, second; Down Patrick, 109 (Mentry), 9 to 2, third. Time, 1:46. J. C. Clem, Raleigh, Janette, A. Muskoday and Legistilla finished as named.

Fifth race, mile and seventy yards—Legatee, 110 (W. Miller), 5 to 2, won; Vinton, 104 (Hildebrand), 9 to 1, second; Eduardo, 110 (Fisher), 13 to 5, third. Time, 1:44 4-5. Woolen, Distributer, Taut, Hi Caul Cap, Ten Oaks, La Rose, Salad and Remember finished as named.

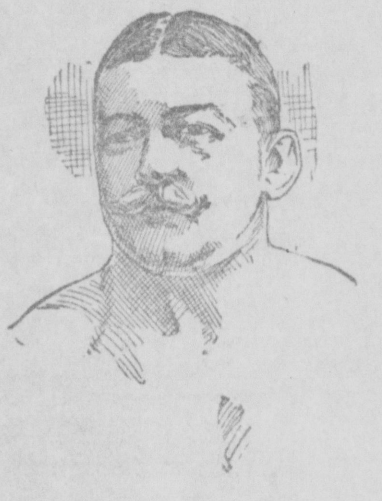
Sixth race, Futurity course—Canardo, 114 (Sandy), 7 to 1, won; Lee Harrison II, 103 (Goldstein), 9 to 2, second; Entre Nous, 109 (Kelly), 16 to 5, third. Time, 1:10. Nonie Lucille, Yada, Creston Boy, Succeed and Salvago finished as named.

GOTCH AND LUNDIN MATCHED.

Champion and Swede to Meet in Convention Hall May 7.

Hjalmar Lundin, the giant Swede who gave Frank Gotch such a good run for his money in a mixed match here two months ago, was matched yesterday by W. D. Scoville of the Missouri Athletic club to meet the champion in a handicap mixup. To win, the champion must throw the big Swede three times in an hour and even with his famous toehold he will have to move some to win the match. Lundin is not a defensive wrestler and even though he'll win the match if he sticks the limit it is almost a certainty that he will be found on the aggressive side of the game from start to finish.

Lundin wanted the toehold barred, but not for Frank. He said that the big Swede was tough enough even with his "tootsie" squeezer in operation. Lundin offered to meet Gotch in a straight match with the toehold barred, but Gotch evidently believes that he stands a better chance to win three falls in an hour with his toehold in the game than one fall in a night with the toehold barred. Lundin is in the East at present, where he is meeting all comers. He writes that he weighs 280 pounds and is in good shape. He says that he will give a good account of himself.



LUNDIN, THE SWEDISH CHAMPION.

ENGLISH FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP.

London, April 25.—The final game in the contest for the English association cup, the blue ribbon of the British football world, and the goal for which all the best football teams in the country have been struggling throughout the past winter, was played at the Crystal palace this afternoon and resulted in a victory for the Wolverhampton Wanderers over the Newcastle United, the score standing 3 to 1. The attendance, on account of the wintry weather, was between 60,000 and 70,000. This is small for these finals, which usually attract in the neighborhood of 100,000 persons. Upwards of 50,000 enthusiasts invaded London from the Northern and Middle counties to support their respective teams.

LITTLE JOLTS FROM BIFFDOM.

Attracted by stories of big wads of easy money in France, Bob Fitzsimmons announces that he intends to go to Paris, where Mrs. Fitzsimmons can study music and Robert, the Red, can gather in the necessary cash to pay the tuition, with perhaps a franc or two in addition. While age has slated Fitz's pugilistic powers, there ought to be several good fights in the old man yet, when he is matched against the second or third rate fighters now posing as champions in France.

It looks now as if the California fight clubs are not going to get the middle weight championship battle between Billy Papke and Stanley Ketchel after all. Realizing that he can get more money out of a fight with Ketchel in Milwaukee than he could by battling with him at Colma, Cal., or one of the Frisco clubs, Billy Papke has already signed articles of agreement calling for a ten round bout with Ketchel in the big Hippodrome in Milwaukee on the night of May 25. Billy O'Connor, manager of Ketchel, is expected to affix his signature to the articles in a few days. A bout between these great fighters in Milwaukee will easily draw a $20,000 gate.

Charley Harvey says that Johnny Summers will not be able to meet Terry McGovern in New York Wednesday night, as he has a date over in Baltimore with Kid Sullivan on that date which cannot be broken. Tom O'Rourke, who was to have held the McGovern fight on this date, will now have to look for a new opponent, and will try to get Bert Keyes or some other husky young gent who has no fear of a rushing, ramming ripper like the Terrible One. Teddy has been examined by doctors and been declared to be a perfect gentleman, both physically and mentally.

Owen Moran, the little English feather weight, getting tired of waiting for Abe Attell to give him a return battle, has gone back home. He sailed on the Lusitania on Wednesday and will in all probability not come back to this country again for seven or eight months, as he has seven weeks' theatrical engagements on the other side. Moran intends to fight a few battles at the National Sporting club of London and also in Paris after that.

Manual Tryouts Yesterday.

The Manual Athletes were given their final tryout for the dual meet with Central at Elm Ridge next Saturday afternoon on the Parade yesterday afternoon. Seven events were pulled off. The summary:

220 Yards Dash—First, Boright; second, Koenigsdorf; third, Campbell.

Maggioli Still Winning.

Frank Maggioli, who is playing exhibition games at the Royal billiard parlors, defeated Strom last night at straight rail, 300 to 20. Maggioli's high run was 104.

BIG WINNERS ON THE COAST

"AL" KOENINSBERG AND "JOE" ROSE HAVE PLUCKED MANY SHEKELS.

The Class of Horses Racing in the West Superior to That of Any Previous Year—Is a Turf War Brewing?

San Francisco, April 25.—The muster call of the speculative forces engaged in the long campaign of the winter here at Oakland will be heard shortly, for the end is in sight. On all sides "Al" Koeningsberg and "Joe" Rose are rated the two biggest winners of the season. On the race track, where many venture but few garner the golden pence of Peter, these operators are regarded as both lucky and smart to a degree, while yet diverse in their methods. Koeningsberg is a plain horse gambler, while Rose rates up like a "wholesale merchant" in the bookmakers' line. He is tacked onto more inside paddock "angles" than any other man here, and he surely does make the most out of every little "ace-in-the-hole." When Rose learns of a mortuary favorite he not only lays it in his own book, but you will find several other books taking a fearful whack off the "ace," too—in fact, the running phrase, "All Joe Rose's books are laying it," stands for great portent among the ring runners. At one time this winter Rose financed no fewer than six books in the ring at one time. For a while it was a standard Oil game. Just who is in with Rose is not known, but that he heads a powerful syndicate is undoubted. Rose is all of $75,000 winner.

Koeninsberg used to be a pool boy in the grandstand. This experience attuned his race track wits to the subtiest edge. He is the smallest statured bookmaker in the world, for he weighs but ninety-seven pounds and stands less than 5 feet 4 inches. He is a bundle of nervous energy. He is lightning with his money when on the block. One good judge says Koeninsberg is the fastest horse player and the most genuinely successful bettor on the horses seen on our turf since "Pittsburg Phil" toed the mark. Koeninsberg started in playing from the ground early in the winter and later went to booking. His success was continued until a bank roll of $50,000 caliber nestled in his safety deposit box. He bought Rose Queen, the champion 2-year-old filly, for $4,000, in addition to Mozart and Captain John. "Billy" Cahill is training for him. Together they will make the Seattle meeting in June.

One of the tragedies of the season centers about U. Z. de Arman. After winning the Pacific handicap for 2-year-olds with Early Tide, De Arman took the $1,200 and sent it to $28,000. Later on, at Los Angeles and Oakland he tossed it all off, in addition to earning a suspension from good standing on the turf. To climax his ill luck, Mrs. De Arman shot and killed a Mrs. Griffin, an alleged affinity. But a short while back De Arman stood clean broke. "Johnny" Coleman, "Joe" Harlan, "Johnny" Lyons, Emil Herz, "Benny" Falk and "Charley" Bowman are all big losers. Falk goes to Toronto $15,000 to the bad, while Coleman will open up at Jamaica with a $25,000 hole in his roll. "Frankie" Dwyer, the New York sporting man, tried to book at Los Angeles and to play them at Oakland, an experience which cost him all of $20,000. Considering the prevailing hard times, the volume of play on both the California tracks during the last four months was remarkable.

On the whole the class of horses on the Coast this winter is superior to that of almost any previous season. When a 3-year-old, Pajorita, under 114 pounds, and Gemmel, 4 years old, under 124 pounds, can beat each other a nose on the post over three-quarters of a mile in better than 1:12, you know that real race horses have been a-running. Jack Nunnally, a horse which campaigned at Seattle, Wash., last summer, can measure right up with either of these two, too, when right. He beat Montgomery in the Inaugural handicap, but later went wrong and may never show to advantage again. Gemmel can pack substantial weight and run a cracking race for three-quarters. Beyond that his powers of speed wane, as in the case of Roseben. But what a crackerjack this colt could be turned into under careful handling over the New York tracks! Some say Gemmel is another Roseben, while expressing astonishment in the failure of F. J. Farrell, P. J. Rainey, E. R. Thomas or some other buyer of high-priced race horses to take Gemmel at his standing market price of $10,000. The colt is a son of Rubicon, a good class sire, and is the property of H. I. Wilson, the race track mogul at Butte, Mont. Pajorita brought $5,000 in a paddock sale from H. G. Bedwell, a Westerner. Neither will be seen East in all probability.

Of the 2-year-olds, the honors must go to a filly, Rose Queen. In the Belle stakes she was raced into the ground out in front, so that Lee Rose was enabled to come on and win off. Later, however, she simply overwhelmed the colt, showing herself the real champion of the Pacific coast juveniles. "Al" Koeninsberg may race Rose Queen in the East, and if he does New York racegoers will see one of the best fillies sent West since Endurance By Right made a visit to the metropolis. Rose Queen has a better turn of speed than did Notasulga at New Orleans last winter, while all over her races there appears the stamp of "class" of a higher order than that of the New Orleans wonder who ranked close up to the championship last summer at Sheepshead Bay. Watch out for Captain John, too. This colt stands just a little short of seventeen hands, and a 2-year-old, too. He gallops when other youngsters look to be driving. He has shown nothing as yet, but when settled in stride and better grown, he will surely run well over a route. Don't let this son of Yellow Tail get away from you if he gets the colors at Gravesend or Belmont park. Captain John is a real giant—a lot bigger than was Peter Pan as a 2-year-old in the spring of his year.

Is there a turf war brewing in the far West again? Some of the seers of the turf claim to see portentous signs as they look into the future. They say the fast-growing Texas Thoroughbred association and the Pacific Coast Jockey club are going to come together with a bang some time. The tracks of the Texas organization will be soon racing in conflict during the early or the late weeks of the meetings at Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal., and of course trouble is going to ensue, just as it did when City Park tried to run counter to the game at the Fair grounds in New Orleans, La., bringing the Western Turf association and the American Turf association into a war. Originally the Texas turf body had to do with the control of the racing which took place at Austin, Dallas, Houston and other Lone Star points. It framed its own rules and recognized just whom and what it liked. Last year the big Denver, Col., meeting came under its wing, and now the new track at Salt Lake City, Utah, is announced as a member. Salt Lake will have a $300,000 property, with racing in the early spring and late autumn. This is going to draw horses and horsemen from California. But this week a real bomb fell into the camp of the Williams-Rose-Baldwin-Schreiber forces, controlling the Pacific Coast Jockey club, when the apparently well-founded rumor that the projected track at Venice, Cal., near Los Angeles, Cal., would be built, the necessary capital having been pledged only recently on the cut and dried understanding that the Texas Thoroughbred Racing association would recognize the new course. In case the Pacific Coast Jockey club should outlaw the Venice course, it will be now possible for the track to run under the Texas banner. Conservative horsemen give the matter little attention, as no one expects the Venice project, which "Curly" Brown started last year, to ever reach fruition. However, from the standpoint of turf politics, the outlook is interesting.

FOR A 12-FOOT CHANNEL

TWENTY-MILLION ASKED FOR THE MISSOURI BY CAPTAIN SCHULZ.

The River Engineer Shows to Congress the Great Possibilities of the Stream as a Freight Carrier—Ellis to Push the Report.

To make a channel in the Missouri river between Kansas City and the mouth with a minimum depth at low water of twelve feet, Captain E. H. Schulz has recommended an appropriation of 20 million dollars. His report has just been finished and will be sent at once to Washington for the approval of the chief engineers, the board of engineers and the Secretary of War before going to Congress. That the board of engineers, which passes upon the feasibility of all river improvement projects, will indorse the report and recommend the project outlined, there is no doubt.

The report of Captain Schulz is the most comprehensive that has ever been made on the Missouri river. It goes deeply into the natural resources of the Missouri valley. It contains statistics showing the products of all kinds, farm and manufacturing, for a territory 100 miles on either side of the stream to show the possibilities of the freight tonnage on an improved river. There are also statistics showing the railroad freight movement between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers which would be affected by a reduction of rates in competition with the river, as well as figures to show the railroad tonnage in and out of the Missouri river gateways.

SHOWING FOR BIG TRAFFIC IS FAVORABLE.

A showing is made of the present commerce on the river under the difficulties of navigation and a list of all the boats with the tonnage carried last year is included. There are also figures of the gauge readings to show that there has been a gradual increase in the depth of the river in the last thirty-five years.

All of these statistics have been analyzed by Captain Schulz and his deductions from them made a very favorable showing for a large and profitable commerce on the stream.

The project for improvement outlined by Captain Schulz is in general the same as that adopted by the Missouri river commission. It contemplates confining the river to a fixed channel, approximately 1,200 feet in width by means of pile dikes and the revetment of built up banks to prevent erosion. The estimate of 400 miles of such work at a cost approximating $50,000 a mile is a liberal one and there is a possibility that by doing the work quickly the cost could be considerably reduced.

A SIX-FOOT CHANNEL FOR 3 MILLION.

Captain Schulz also makes a report on the possibilities of a six-foot channel at a cost of probably 3 million dollars. This provides, however, for work at only a few places and would not be permanent.

In the ordinary course of such matters it is probable that Captain Schulz's report would not reach Congress before next winter. Representative Ellis, however, has been waiting for the report and will attempt to have the board of engineers act in time to get the matter to the rivers and harbors committee at this session. A majority of the members of the committee expect to make an inspection of the river this summer with Representative Ellis and he desires to have the report before them at that time.

TO SAVE ST. JOSEPH'S PLEASURE RESORT.

The report of Captain Schulz, recommending an appropriation of $75,000, contingent upon an equal amount being contributed by the city of St. Joseph or the interests affected, for the protection of Lake Contrary from the encroachments of the river, has been approved and is now before Congress. Lake Contrary is the big pleasure resort of St. Joseph. It and a chain of smaller lakes to the south are part of an ancient river bed. For years the river has been gradually cutting in toward Lake Contrary and unless some measures are taken to prevent further erosion it will be only a question of time until it reaches the lake. The result would be to destroy the lake and possibly form a new channel through the whole chain of lakes. This would damage at least 2,000 acres of valuable farming land as well as destroy the pleasure resort at the lake.

THE INDIAN "WOOD FACES"

STRANGE RELIGIOUS RITES OBSERVED AMONG THE ANCIENT SENECAS.

In the Remnant of the Once Famous Tribe the "Wood Faces," an Aboriginal Fraternity, Perform Dances at the Sickbed to Banish Demons.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 25.—Up in the northeast corner of the state there is a small band of Seneca Indians on a reservation of the same name. This is a remnant of a nation of Indians that can be traced from the original New England states, as they were forced west and south by the encroachments of the whites and the battle arm of stronger Indian bands that were constantly warring against them.

Among this little band of Indians, probably not more than 100 all told, there are some curious heathen rites that seem to be instinctive with the tribe.

Among them there is an old order known as "The Wood Face." Those who belong to the order can call in the "Wood Faces" in case of sickness, as is often done. They go through a performance that is calculated to drive out from the sick person the evil spirit that may be hovering around the bed. These faces are masks made out of wood, usually carved to represent a human form of some character, but sometimes made to represent the head of an animal. They are painted red and black, with large silver eyes and a horse tail for hair.

Arrayed in one of these hideous masks, together with rattles made of turtle shells fastened together at the outer edges with small stones inside and tied to the legs of the "Wood Faces," as they dance, roll and kick, singing their incantations the while, the Indians present a scene calculated to drive away any evil spirit that might happen along and incidentally drive the life out of the patient. While all this is going on it is also customary to pour ashes on the head of the patient.

It appears that this organization has been in the tribe for many generations, the modes of procedure differing sometimes, but following the same general character. Its secret signs and symbols are guarded as closely as Masonry and its fraternal features are as binding. Its spiritual benefits are believed in as implicitly as does any white man believe in his religion.

FOR STUDENTS OF ECONOMICS.

Valuable Prizes Offered for Essays on Practical or Theoretical Subjects.

Students of the Missouri university who are interested in either practical or theoretical economics have been invited to compete for valuable prizes, to be awarded for essays written upon subjects in economics.

The committee that has charge of the contest is composed of Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, chairman; Prof. J. B. Clark, Columbia university; Prof. Henry C. Adams, University of Michigan; Horace White, New York city, and Carroll D. Wright, Clark college. The prizes are to be awarded to three classes of contestants.

Class "A" includes any American without restriction. The first prize in this class is $600 and the second $400. Class "B" includes those who are undergraduates of any American college, and any member of this class may compete for the prizes in class "A." The first prize in this class is $300 and the second is $200. The following are the subjects suggested by the committee for the essays:

1. German and American methods of regulating trusts.
2. The logic of "Progress and Poverty."
3. What are the ultimate ends of trade-unions and can these be gained by any application of the principles of monopoly?
4. In view of existing railway progress, should the United States encourage the construction of waterways?
5. Is it to be expected that the present and recent production of gold will cause a higher level of prices?

Class "C" is for those who have not had an academic training. A prize of $500 is offered for the best production on any one of the following subjects:

1. The best scheme for uniform corporation accounts.
2. Desirable methods of improving our trade with China.
3. The proper spheres of the trust company and the commercial bank.
4. The relations of Oriental immigration to American industries.
5. The relative efficiency of American and European labor in manufacturing industries.

The prizes are contributed by Hart, Schaffner & Marx of Chicago.

A MARATHON RACE IN ENGLAND.

British Athletes Practicing for the Olympic Games July 24.

LONDON, April 25.—The first of the trials in connection with the Olympic games to be held in London this summer took place this afternoon, when sixty-eight competitors started from Windsor park for Wembley in the Marathon race. Most of the best runners in Great Britain were among the starters. The distance is twenty-two miles and 1,420 yards. The men were somewhat handicapped by a heavy rain.

The trial contest was won by Duncan of the Salford harriers in 2 hours 16 minutes and 45 seconds, Beals of the Polytechnic harriers was second, time 2 hours and 17 minutes, and Lord of the Wibsey Park harriers was third, time 2 hours 18 minutes and 4 seconds. Duncan holds the ten mile and four mile championships. He was quite exhausted at the finish and had to be carried off the track.

To-day's course is the same as will be used for the final Marathon race July 24 with the addition of about three miles between Wembley Park and the stadium.

A MASS FOR KING CARLOS.

Police and Soldiers Closely Guard King Manuel in Lisbon's Streets.

LISBON, April 25.—A mass for the repose of the souls of the late King Carlos of Portugal and his son, the crown prince, who were assassinated last February on the streets of this city, was said to-day. It was the first time King Manuel has appeared in public since the tragedy.

Flags throughout the city were lowered, and guns from the warships and forts boomed at intervals during the service. Admittance to the monastery was restricted to persons provided with cards, and each householder along the streets from the palace to the church was held responsible for the occupants of his windows.

The attitude of the people on the streets to the king and his mother was respectful. They drove in a closed carriage to the monastery, a regiment of cavalry acting as escort. The entire route was lined with policemen.

TRADED LYNCHING FOR PRISON.

Life Imprisonment the Sentence of Kentucky Slayer Who Escaped Noose.

BURLINGTON, KY., April 25.—After being out for two hours the jury in the case of John Meeks, charged with the murder of Albert Clutterback at Florence, Ky., on the night of December 14, 1907, brought in a verdict of guilty last night, with the recommendation that the defendant be sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

WASHINGTON NOT FOR MURRAY.

The Picturesque Oklahoma Speaker Can't Go to the National Capital.

GUTHRIE, OK., April 25.—The refusal of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature to take a recess until May 11 has deprived Washington of the sight of one of the state's conspicuous characters. Speaker William H. Murray had planned to leave next Saturday as a member of the Oklahoma commission appointed to confer with commissions from other states to secure certain amendments to the federal constitution. Murray says that he will not absent himself from the legislature, so long as it is in session, and risk the intervention of possible enemies in its affairs.

Thomas H. Doyle of Perry was to be Murray's pilot to the seat of national government. Murray has never seen Washington, and it is doubtful if he was ever east of the Mississippi river. Doyle had secured transportation for all of Murray's sobriquets—"Alfalfa Bill," "Cockleburr Bill," "Defender of the Faith," "Keeper of the Sight-Unseen Constitution," etc., and was prepared to give Washington newspaper correspondents a view at first hand of the man who has received more spectacular advertising than any other Oklahoman.

Just what Murray would have said and done in Washington is consigned to the oblivion of what never happened. That he had supplied himself with more quips than the immortal don of La Mancha is certain. He was resolutely of the opinion that he would not permit himself to be embarrassed nor appalled at sight of men whom he has consumed and destroyed time and again in the whirlwinds of his wrath on the hustings of Oklahoma.

Newspapers, magazines and pictures have given no one more familiar acquaintance with the "enemies of the great common people" than is possessed by "Alfalfa Bill" Murray. He was prepared to joust with them on their own tournament ground.

THE "MUCK RAKE'S" EDITOR.

Reminiscences of Albert Royal Flanders Told by Opie Read.

MUSKOGEE, OK., April 25.—The late Albert Royal Flanders, once editor of the Muck Rake, at Muskogee, was a quaint character, widely known among newspaper workers. In Opie Read's "Colossus," Flanders was caricatured as Colonel Flummers, the man with a mincing walk. While at Muskogee lately Read told many anecdotes of Flanders.

In Pittsburg Flanders was employed on a morning newspaper. He had numerous creditors who disturbed his day sleep by ringing the doorbell. Exasperated Flanders bought a big funeral wreath and nailed it to the door. For several days his creditors arrived and departed without knocking, but finally discovered the deception and renewed their raids.

The city editor was a dignified fellow, Fred Hall, whom even the managing editor never dared address by his first name. When "30" was called, Flanders, in his bland way, stepped up to Hall's desk and chortled: "Well, Fred, what shall I do to-morrow?"

Wheeling around in his chair, Hall looked at Flanders and said: "Now what's the use of your being so d——d formal, Flanders, why don't you call me Freddie?"

The Bryans at Home Again.

IN THE HEART OF THINGS

GREAT PROSPERITY IN THE AIR

One hundred and twenty million bushels of wheat is now predicted for Kansas.

The greatest fruit crop in the history of the Southwest seems to be assured.

Conditions for all crops at this time of year have not been more favorable in years.

Kansas City's bank clearings continue persistently to beat all former records.

The prices for live stock at Kansas City have been the highest recently in twenty years.

The Southwest is filling up at the rate of a million a year with the most intelligent and progressive men and women the world has ever known.

The United States Steel company is pushing to completion at Gary, Ind., the greatest steel plant in the world, costing over One Hundred Millions of dollars.

Quoting from the North American of Philadelphia Judge Gary, chairman of this great corporation, a few days ago said: "'In times of business depression prepare for the most surpassing industrial activity to follow.'

"Right now, in the face of depression in the iron and steel industry in this country, the United States Steel corporation is engaged in creating at a total cost of over one hundred millions of dollars what will be, when completed, far the greatest steel plant in the world. Splendid faith in the stability, the development and the greater progress of his country animates Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors and the real head of the United States Steel corporation."

Where is there room for pessimism or doubt?

The spirit of the West says:

"ONWARD AND UPWARD THROUGH INDUSTRY, THRIFT AND ENLIGHTENED EFFORT TO GREATER AND GRANDER ACHIEVEMENTS IN NATION BUILDING."

SPECIAL NOTICE!

Following Immediately Upon Our Across-the-Sea Sale We Shall Hold

A Great Sale of American Made Merchandise

Americans turn iron ore into pig iron and it sells for a few cents a pound. They carry it over to England. They make it into needles and how much do you suppose a pound of needles is worth? We should say about $8.

In America we raise a pound of cotton, sell it for a few cents; we make it into fabrics and sell it for a comparatively very few cents more. In Switzerland they take that pound of cotton and make it worth as high as $500 in rare laces.

These things, dear reader, we have to buy in Europe because our motto is Lowest Known Cost and because they do not make them in America.

But America, nevertheless, is a great producing country. And where Jones Dry Goods Co. is obliged to spend $1 in Europe, we are proud to be able to spend $50 right here at home. So next week comes our homage sale to our own great spirit of manufacture, a powerful sale of American made merchandise of which we are justly proud.

The PAGE for THE ROLLER SKATE.

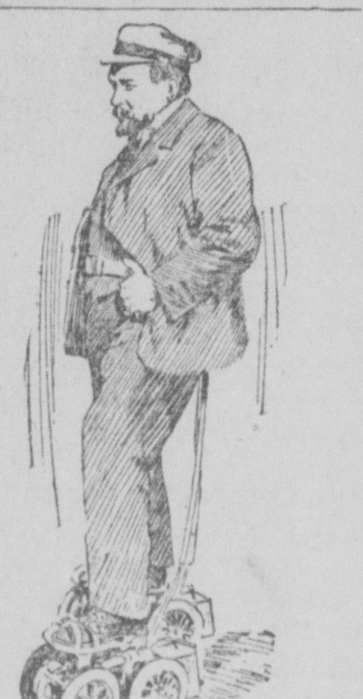
A PASTIME OF WORLD-WIDE POPULARITY IS ENJOYING A TREMENDOUS VOGUE JUST NOW

KANSAS CITY, in common with the rest of the country, is in the throes of a growing roller skating craze. From the mysterious obscurity which hides abandoned fads the roller skate emerged into new life four years ago and daily is gaining in popularity. Promoted by Young America, its fascinations are appealing to all ages, as is evidenced by the mixed crowds of devotees who flock to an ever increasing number of rinks.

The roller skating fad attacks the country periodically. The history of the pastime includes "the craze of 1884," "the craze of 1866" and even more remote dates distinctly marked by a national or international indulgence in the sport.

THE BEGINNING OF ROLLER SKATING.

Roller skating has an existence dating as far back as 1819, when it was invented by a Frenchman. The first roller skates were very crude, weighing perhaps five pounds, and having rollers an inch and a quarter wide and about two and a half inches in diameter. From 1820 to 1874, however, hardly a year elapsed without a roller skate being patented which was an improvement upon its predecessor, and by 1876 it had reached such a state of perfection that in minor details only was it inferior to our present day skate.



THE LATEST IN ROLLERS—THE MOTOR SKATE.

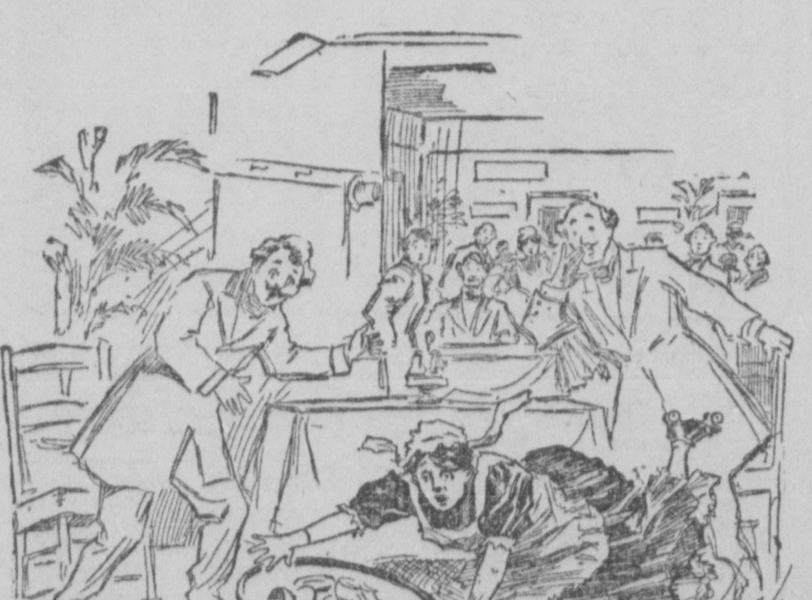
The roller skate owes its existence principally to one man—W. J. Plimpton, an Englishman, who made at least a dozen improvements on the skate and did more than any other to bring it to its present condition.

The roller skating craze first appeared in England in 1864. Its vogue did not confine itself to children and young people, but took hold of middle aged and elderly persons as well. The following extract from the London Society of 1875 may give an idea to what extent this was true:

"The rollers have a fascination for all ages and even under the greatest disadvantages. This is not so remarkable with proficients who can skate with ease; but what when they can but hobble like cats in pattens? We have seen ladies of a good half hundred persevere through all the fatigues of the goose step (a style of skating of that period) with a degree of energy worthy, if possible, of a better cause. We have seen ladies of a 'certain age'—that is certainly aged—with some twelve stone to carry on the wheels, thinking it never too late to begin; we have seen one grandmamma and several gentlemen of three score years and ten, who seemed to us, as Tristram Shandy says of aged law-students, as if they were qualifying to practice in the world to come."

Not only was roller skating indulged in by young and old alike, but it soon became the principal pastime of London high society, and numerous skating clubs were organized. The craze soon spread to other cities and every town of importance throughout England had its skating club. By 1867 it became almost more popular than dancing and the newspapers and fashion plates were filed with the "latest" in skating costumes.

In 1867 the Floral hall, Covent Garden, was opened as a skating rink. This was perhaps the first roller skating rink of the world. Soon after, however, numerous rinks were opened at Bath, Southhampton, Manchester and Bristol. The rinks of those days would not compare with our modern hard wood floor rinks, as far as smoothness and easy skating is concerned, as they were either made of asphalt, cement or artificial ice, and as far as known no music was furnished to add to the skater's pleasure.



IN BERLIN IN 1851 RESTAURANT WAITRESSES SKATED WHILE SERVING MEALS.

In the early '40s skates were used by ballet dancers and proved a great success; in fact the opera "Les Plasirs de l'Hiver," which was produced at Her Majesty's theater, London, owed its success to its ballet of roller skaters.

RESTAURANT WAITERS ON SKATES.

In Berlin, in 1851, some skating waitresses, dressed in fancy costumes and moving on wheel skates, were introduced into the beer houses of that city, as an additional attraction to the soldiers, students and other frequenters of the Kneipe. It is strange that this idea has not been copied by some of our modern caterers. Who can tell but that it might solve the quick service problem, and it would undoubtedly add amusement to cafe patrons to see their waiter or waitress doing fancy "stunts" on their skates while carrying their longed for dinner.

In 1866 the roller skating "fever" broke out in Australia and soon spread to the United States and Canada. New York and Cincinnati were the first to get the craze, other cities soon following, and by 1868 almost every city and town of the United States was in the midst of a roller skating craze, known in skating history as "The craze of 1866."

The rink of the New York Skating association was the first in America. Roller skating in those days confined itself solely to rinks. This, however, is not hard to understand and as the roads and sidewalks in those days were not what they are at present.

The skaters of that day were by no means behind us in rink skating as they were thoroughly acquainted with the waltz, three-step and polka. They also indulged in "skatings" of which the modern skater is unacquainted, namely, the grand march, which was skated in much the same manner as at a ball.

One of the most recent forms of roller skates is the two-wheeled variety, the wheels made of hard rubber. This skate was much used on streets and roads, but the more recent ball bearing skate has proved more satisfactory for this line of sport.

A MOTOR SKATE THE LATEST.

The very latest is the motor roller skate, invented by M. Constantini of Paris, who has perfected many devices for automobiles. The skate is run by a gasoline motor. The accompanying cut shows the skate as it is applied to the foot. The use of the rubber-tired wheels is to give it a very smooth running movement. On the back of each skate is a small sheet iron box which contains the battery and spark coil. From this box a pair of wires protected by rubber tubing passes up to the leather belt which the skater wears, and upon this belt is placed the switch by which one is able to make or break the ignition circuit when one wishes to start or stop the motor or to regulate its speed. On the back part of the belt is fixed a small gasoline tank which feeds the motor. Each motor weighs 8.8 pounds and consumes one-fourth of a gallon of gasoline for every thirty-five miles traveled. The weight of the skates complete is 13.2 pounds and can run from three to twenty-five miles an hour. M. Constantini has given the new skate a very thorough trial and it has proved to be a success.

Since 1866 the roller skating craze has appeared at intervals, only to die out again. The most recent of these previous to the present one was in 1884-5, but it soon shared the fate of its predecessors. Strange as it may seem, the craze visits all countries at the same time. At this moment skating rinks are flourishing in England, Australia and France.

The present craze started in 1904. How long it will last no one can tell, but if it continues to grow as it has in the past year or so, it may be a common thing to see business men skating to work in the morning and women out shopping on their "rollers."

Forerunner of the Taxicab.

From the New York Times.

PARIS—There's nothing new under the sun! Even the taxicab is an adaptation of an apparatus designed by a Roman architect who lived in the time of Augustus, Marcus Vitruvius Palilo by name. This statement is based on a communication forwarded to L'Illustration by a young student, in which he tells of a curious find he made while rummaging among a lot of old books in a Paris shop.

In a heap of battered volumes he came across a book published in 1678, in which one Alexander Capra, a citizen of Cremona, set forth some accounts of architectural and mechanical things in which he was interested. In this book are three wood engravings, showing how the author had taken up with Vitruvius's distance measurer and improved upon it. In the description of this apparatus Capra generously gave credit to the old Roman for the original invention, simply claiming for himself the credit of making Vitruvius's measurer a really practical thing.

It does not appear that there were taxicabs in Cremona built according to Capra's specifications, but one of the cuts in his book shows his apparatus attached to a coach. Whether Capra actually owned a coach equipped with a distance measurer is not stated.

THREE COUPLES WED ON A DARE

Challenge at Supper Party Leads to a Triple Elopement in Cleveland.

From the Detroit News.

"Yep, it's all true. We got married on a dare and routed the rabbi out of bed at 2 o'clock in the morning, but I wish I could get my hands on the chap who tipped this off. I'd fix him," said Edward Bleiweiss, a member of the eloping quartet from Cleveland at the Pontchartrain.

The party is composed of Bleiweiss and his bride, formerly Miss Ernestine Taussig, and Ludwig Herman, his bride, nee Miss Helen Steuer, a school teacher and a daughter of Deputy Sheriff Steuer of Cleveland. There were two others in the original sextet who were married on short notice—Daniel Gerson, a drummer, and Miss Rae Adelson, a stenographer. They did not come to Detroit, but are going West on their honeymoon.

The triple elopement was the culmination of a theater party and a supper in a Cleveland grillroom. During the evening marriage was discussed.

"Wouldn't it be fun to be married tonight?" said Herman.

"Let's do it," suggested Gerson.

"I dare you," said Herman, addressing the young ladies.

The latter, it is said, refused to take a dare, and in less than a minute the party was whirling away in an automobile to the home of Frank Zizelman, probate court license clerk. It was 1 o'clock in the morning when Garson alighted from the machine and rang the door bell.

"What's the matter?" said Zizelman, poking his head out of the window.

"We want to get married," said Garson bashfully.

Zizelman is an agreeable chap, and in five minutes he was loaded into the machine, headed for the courthouse.

At the courthouse Deputy Steuer patrolled the jail corridors, unconscious of the fact that his daughter was scurrying away in the machine to Rabbi Morgalies's home. It was 2 o'clock when the party awakened the rabbi, and five minutes later the knots were tied.

Warnings for the Wise.

By Ruryard Kipling.

You know the First Sign-post on the Great Main Road? "When a Woman advertises that she is virtuous, a Man that he is a gentleman, a Community that it is loyal or a Country that it is law-abiding—go the other way!"

Proving the Case.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

"So you think my Easter hat is a joke?" she said, reproachfully. "Why, it's a creation."

"My dear," he responded, "then it's a humorous creation, and what's that but a joke?"

THEIR JEWELS IN "THE WASH"

HOW MANY CARELESS LAUNDRY PATRONS LOSE VALUABLE TRINKETS.

Money, Too, Sometimes Overlooked in Discarded Garments—One Woman Left a Bag of Jewels Pinned to a Night Dress.

Ten thousand dollars' worth of jewels, currency, gold pins and valuable papers are recovered in Kansas City laundries every year. Secret pockets in women's clothing, "stocking depositories" and forgotten bank rolls in men's vests keep scores of girls in laundries searching to prevent loss. They succeed—most of the time.

"If all women's clothes had pockets, Lord help the laundries," said N. H. Norton, assistant manager of the largest such concern in the city. "We have trouble enough with their secret pockets. If the pockets were more numerous we'd always be in trouble, morning, night and noon. Almost every day some woman calls up and says:

"'Have you got my shirt waist there? My silk one, you know. I just can't find it in the house and there are some things in the pocket I just can't afford to lose. Please hurry and tell me.'"

JEWELS PINNED TO A NIGHT DRESS.

Several years ago when the Globe laundry was being built a woman, very much excited, called the office by phone.

"I have just sent my laundry to you," she said, "and my jewels are in a chamois bag, pinned on the inside of a night dress. Do hurry and find them."

E. E. Grafftey, now secretary of a laundry company at Fifteenth street and Prospect avenue, was with the Globe company at the time. When the wagon driver brought the bundle in, the chamois bag was found, and it contained more than $1,000 worth of precious stones. The woman was an actress.

"A man on Union avenue called up some time ago and said he had left $155 in the pocket of a vest," Mr. Gafftey said, "and he wanted it and wanted it 'durn bad.' One of the girls found it, well soaked with water and thoroughly starched. We turned it over to him.

"'Thank'ee,' he said, and walked out.

"He said never a word to the girl who had found the money. Few people ever do. There are girls in here working for wages ranging from $4 to $12 a week, but they get no reward from outsiders for their honesty. We have something to say, but a kind word is all."

Mr. Horton, who is associated with Mr. Grafftey, said one of the girls found a diamond shirt stud probably worth $250. Notice was sent to the owner that the stud was there and he called for it.

"I would like to see the girl who discovered that stud," the man said.

The girl was brought into the office and the owner of the precious stone extended his hand.

"I just wanted to make you a little present for your honesty," he said. "Take this, and accept my thanks."

He handed her a $10 gold piece.

"But that was an exceptional case," Mr. Horton said. "I do not believe I know of another similar case in all the years I have been in the laundry business.

"Two weeks ago a man at the Hotel Baltimore made a furious complaint over the telephone that he had sent his most valuable papers out in his laundry bundle, 'and he must have them at once.' He told how valuable they were to him and added with a few stinging adjectives that he expected to hold the laundry company liable.

"We told him," Mr. Horton said, "that we 'were laundering clothes, not valuable papers, but that an inspector had found his goods and they were safe in the office.'

WOMEN MORE CARELESS THAN MEN.

"Women, I believe, are more careless than men. While we get a greater number of men's valuables, it must be remembered that we handle so much more men's clothing than women's. Not a week passes that we do not get fully a pint of cuff and collar buttons, many of them gold and some set with valuable stones. Besides, there are the 'beauty' pins and other waist pins, such as women wear."

A catch basin beneath the huge washing machines gathers in the buttons, shirt studs, "beauty" pins and such things, when the clothing is being cleaned. Almost every conceivable thing that a man or woman might carry in a pocket is taken from the basin. Eyeglasses, keys, pencils, charms, rings, studs, cuff holders, and dozens of other small articles are saved from loss by the "catch-all." Class pins and fraternity pins from Columbia, Lawrence, Baldwin, Ottawa and other nearby college towns are numerous. The laundry company examines the basin at least once a week, and sometimes three and four times a week, as occasion demands. And there is always something of value in it.

Illinois Coal Keeps Best Under Water.

From Popular Mechanics.

According to experiments made by Prof. S. W. Parr of the University of Illinois, the soft coal mined in that state keeps best when stored under water. His tests showed that the coal completely submerged in water and kept submerged until about to be used lost nothing in heat value, while coal kept in exposed places lost from 2 to 10 per cent. The deterioration of coal kept dry and under cover was practically the same as when kept in the open air.

A BIT OF GREATER KANSAS CITY'S BUSINESS DISTRICT.

MEN AND WOMEN OF NOTE ARE AMONG HER FOLLOWERS IN ROME.

ALTHOUGH the University of Rome recently rejected the proposition tao establish a chair of psychical research for the scientific investigation of ghosts, astral doubles and occult phenomena generally, it must not be inferred that the cult of the spook attracts little attention there. The Eternal City has more haunted houses and probably a larger percentage of believers in Spiritualism than any other city in the world. They are found in all grades of society and at the present time aristocratic circles are much given to entertaining mediums and visitors from the other world.

The recognized leader among them is the Princess d'Antuni del Drago. She bears not the slightest resemblance to the popular conception of a feminine ghost chaser. She is a widow, young, pretty and accomplished. She is not only a believer in spirits, but claims to be a medium also. It was she who drew from Marconi the acknowledgment that there was "something in it," which science—at least as much of it as he knew—could not explain. Further than that he would not go, but as this was the result of one sitting only with the princess, there is no telling where he would have ended had he continued his investigations.

Princess d'Antuni belongs to the aristocratic house of Potensiani, owns the handsome del Drago palace and has thus been landlady to the last two American ambassadors. She says that as a child she was conscious of voices and visions which troubled her little soul, but which her skeptical elders attributed to imagination. She married very young and it was after this that she became conscious that she was not quite as other people, that she had powers which were denied to them and which now make her a remarkable medium.

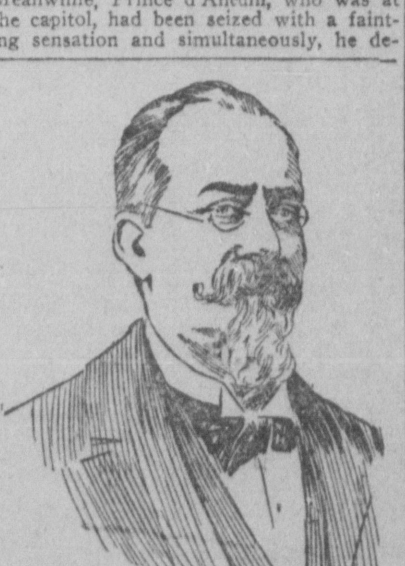
A LOCK OF GHOSTLY HAIR.

A few months after her marriage, she relates, she was lying in bed one evening, reading, when the bed clothes suddenly dropped to the floor as though snatched away by impatient hands. She turned, surprised, and became conscious of a cloud, as it were, between her and the light. As she gazed the shadow took form and substance and assumed the aspect of a woman, dressed in black. When the princess made an involuntary movement to rise the apparition said in a solemn voice. "Do not be frightened, I come in love. I am your husband's first wife and come to warn you that you will have a son, but he will not live. Give this to Ferdinando as a proof of my love," at the same time holding out a lock of hair.

The princess's entranced senses then burst their bonds, and she shrieked with fear. Hearing her cries, Prince d'Antuni, who was in the next room, rushed to her and found her half fainting. He also saw as he entered the room, so he said, the shadowy form of a woman, for the ghost had begun to dissolve into thin air. Neither would have believed the reality of what they had seen had it not been for the lock of hair which was lying on the floor and which, being compared with that of the late princess, was found to be identical.

In due course a son and heir was born to the happy couple, who forgot the warning But their joy was short-lived, as the first Princess d'Antuni appeared again to her successor in almost the same circumstances as before. "I am come to warn you," she said, "the other time you forgot my words, but now do not let a moment pass without having your boy baptized. He will only live a day or two. Take heed of my words and do not delay the baptism." The poor mother hugged her apparently healthy baby in her arms, but sent for the priest, had the ceremony performed and the next day she was childless. The doctor declared himself baffled. "I never knew a perfectly healthy baby to die in that way before," he exclaimed.

From this time on Princess dAntuni has had many manifestations and warnings of a supernatural character. One day, she states, she had been at a kirmess at the Pincio, where she presided over a stall in the bridal dress of a Genoese peasant and made many sales. She entered her carriage with friend in the highest of good spirits to return home, when suddenly she felt as though a pall had settled over her and when asked by her companion what was the matter replied that she was sure that when they met again something dreadful would have happened. The next day she was standing before her mirror when she saw her husband's reflection in it. "What! You, Ferdinando!" she exclaimed, and turned round, but could see no one. Her maid, Maria, said that the prince must have been in the room as she had heard his footstep, but on going to look for him found that he was not in the house. Meanwhile, Prince d'Antuni, who was at the capitol, had been seized with a fainting sensation and simultaneously, he declared, saw his wife before her glass. That night he was taken ill and died ten days later. For three monthhs after his death, the princess asserts, she was able to hold telepathic communication with him and was greatly solaced thereby.

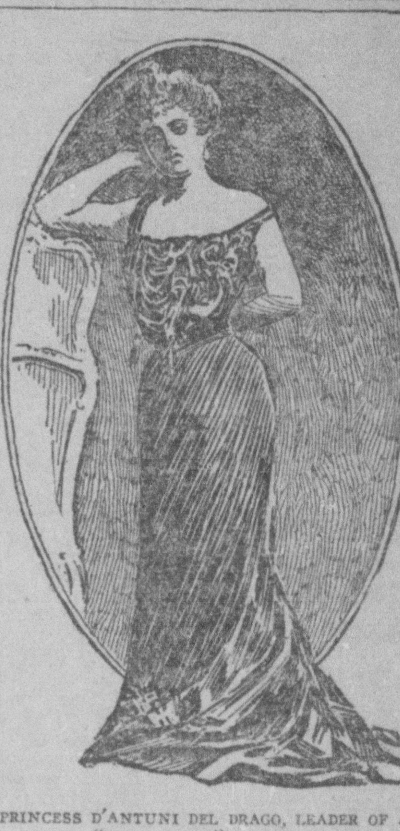


CESARE LOMBROSO, THE CELEBRATED CRIMINOLOGIST, WHO HAS BECOME CONVERTED TO A BELIEF IN SPIRITUALISM.

She has had several seances with a celebrated medium, Palladino. On one of these occasions the latter sat down at a table and began to write. She covered two or three pages of paper with what both she and her friends supposed to be rubbish; the letters were there, but they made no sense. The paper, however,, was examined and proved to be the purest Arabic, which language certainly neither Princess d'Antuni nor the Palladino were said to have any knowledge of whatever.

LOMBROSO ACCEPTS SPIRITUALISM.

The latest great convert in Italy to a belief in the unseen is Prof. Cesare Lombroso, the celebrated criminologist, who, however, has dabbled in "Spiritualism" for many years. It was through Palladino that he at last confessed that many of the wonderful manifestations are absolutely authentic and not to be explained by science. The seance which is said to have convinced the eminent scientist was held in a dining room by gaslight, and the only apparatus provided was a small iron bedstead and mattress for the medium, which was placed in a window alcove, with a curtain of dark woolen stuff between it and the spectators, who sat about four feet distant. The clothing of the medium was thoroughly examined. Signora Palladino allowed herself to be bound to the iron bed by her wrists, her feet and her waist, and after about a quarter of an hour various knockings came from the table placed just outside the curtain. The curtain then opened and the head and part of the body of a young woman appeared, clothed in a white garment. One of those present having remarked that the white wrappings allowed only a part of the face to be seen, the points of the fingers of hands appeared and drew aside the folds. Before disappearing the head bowed towards the spectators and the sound of a kiss was audible. After a few minutes the figure of a stout, broad-shouldered man emerged from behind the curtain.



PRINCESS D'ANTUNI DEL DRAGO, LEADER OF A "SPOOK CULT" IN ROME.

Of a different character were the experiences of Gabriel d'Annunzio, the Italian poet and dramatist. Merely for fun he had attended seances at the house of a friend, Marquis Clemente Origo. The communications received were obtained through a table in the way familiar to Spiritualists. On one occasion the poet expressed his contempt, both for the communication and the communicator. That greatly incensed the spook that was working the table telegraph system, and it began butting at d'Annunzio with the table. Not liking this d'Annunzio left his seat. But the table, tilted on two legs, followed him rapidly. Taken by surprise he moved a few steps backwards, but his movements were not quick enough, for the table suddenly hurled itself at him with such force that he was dashed against the wall. The marquis succeeded in calming the "spirit" and the seance was resumed, but only on the condition, stipulated by the invisible guest, that d'Annunzio should not sit at the table. The spirit was then asked its name, which it refused to give. It was then asked its opinion of the poet's work and rapped out this response: "Smoke, all smoke, and like smoke will vanish, leaving no trace behind." D'Annunzio said something to the effect that his spook critic did not know what good poetry was. Then the table went for him again, and literally chased him out of the room. Since then d'Annunzio has attended no more seances. He is convinced that if there are such thing as spirits they are of an inferior order of intelligence.

There are several Americans in Rome who thoroughly believe in ghosts. Among the most convinced is the celebrated sculptor, Ezekiel, who comes from Virginia. He has had many experiences, but the one he most cherishes is the vision he had of his mother the night she died. He was in his bedroom, in Rome, stretched on his bed, and she was, he supposed, in America. Suddenly, he says, the light flickered, and looking up he saw a female figure at the further side of his long room. Surprised, he rose on his elbow and watched. The apparition slowly approached the bed and then, turning its head, gazed at him sorrowfully. Then recognizing his mother he sprang up exclaiming, "Mother! You here!" But she gave no answer and faded from his sight. The next morning brought him a cablegram informing him of his mother's death in America.

Mr. Franklin Simmons, another American sculptor, is also interested in the occult, especially since the death of his wife a few years ago. He says that he received frequent communications from her and that in this way she helped him greatly with his famous monument, the "Angel of the Resurrection," which he raised to her memory in the Protestant cemetery in Rome.

The Turning of the Worm.

From the Baltimore American.

"Did you hear anything of a report that the government is going to prohibit the wearing of 'Merry Widow' hats at Panama?"

"Why, what has the government to do with the question of mere fashion?"

"It isn't mere fashion. The men down there must have some room on the isthmus to work on the canal."

DUSTY ROADS AND DISEASE

THE TWO ARE SYNONYMOUS, SAY DR. ALLERTON S. CUSHMAN.

Where Roads Are Good Children Are Clean and Well Cared for, and Vice Versa—How California Learned an Economic Lesson.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—"I have noticed that wherever I see bad roads I invariably see neglected, unkempt, unwashed children. If I travel along a good road I see children well cared for. I do not say that one thing directly follows the other, but they undoubtedly go together. A community that is negligent of its roads will be negligent of its children, and a community that is negligent of its children will not produce good citizens, nor above all things will it have a high standard of public health."

That apparently long distance observation on cause and effect was recently voiced by Dr. Allerton S. Cushman, assistant director of the office of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, at a meeting of the American Public Health association.

Dr. Cushman was asked yesterday to justify the statement.

"It is, I think, justified by a day spent in a motor car in any country section," said he, "and, insisting as I do on the condition, I think it has a bearing on the question so frequently asked by unthinking Americans: 'What possible relation can there be between the public road and public health?'

DIRT AND DUST MEAN DEATH.

"If the medical men of the world know what they are talking about the relation is intimate. Dirt and dust mean disease. Cleanliness and sanitary surroundings work for a better citizenship. The relation of science to mundane things is evident, if one will use even a percentage of the powers of deduction which Conan Doyle gave to Sherlock Holmes. Science holds in her archives a delightful little story which well illustrates my purpose.

"It is related that at one time the flavor of the famous Staffordshire cheese had departed and a splendid industry was endangered. Sir John Lubbock, the great naturalist, made a prolonged investigation and finally reported to the farmers that in his judgment the best restorative measure possible would be to import a great number of cats and set them free in Staffordshire.

"Naturally the unbelieving scoffed at the antidote for they deemed the suggestion ridiculous. They asked a reason for so extraordinary a prescription.

THE CHEESE OF STAFFORDSHIRE.

"'The peculiar flavor of the Staffordshire cheese comes from a hybrid clover which formerly grew here in great abundance,' said Lubbock. 'The bumblebee is the one means of cross-fertilizing that clover. The field mice have increased very rapidly in numbers of late and they are destroying the nests of the bumblebees. If you can destroy the mice, the bees can work on that clover and Staffordshire cheese will soon be as good as ever. Get cats therefore.'

"I don't vouch for the story," continued Dr. Cushman, "but I indorse it for its power of illustrating the delicate equilibrium which, under our complex civilization, exists between the public health and public utilities.

"Nobody will deny that the 2,150,000 miles of public roads of America constitute the national dust factory and furnish fully 90 per cent of the dust we inhale. The delicate breathing apparatus of the human body was never meant to harbor such substances as every passing breeze blows from the thoroughfares and the percentage of people dying from disease carried by dust is higher than is generally believed.

WHEN IT MEANS MONEY WE LISTEN.

"The American becomes a skeptic when you confront him with a proposition which, to him, is akin to the 'cats of Staffordshire.' If he doesn't understand what you are talking about, he assumes that you don't understand it yourself. He finds dusty roads a menace only when it is brought home to him that they cost him money. That was demonstrated to the orange growers of California a few years ago when dust-covered fruit no longer commanded so high a price as when free from dust. The result was an aroused interest in road improvement and in dust suppression.

"Appeals on the score of cleanliness and good health never stirred the Californians, but a slump in the price of oranges brought about a wonderful era of activity. The outcome was gratifying and California soon had dustless oiled roads.

"If then, as doctors say, dust means dirt; dirt means disease, and disease means death, dusty roads have no place in our national economics."

RUBEY IS ACTING CHAIRMAN.

The Macon Mayor Chosen for His Place by Judge W. N. Evans.

MACON, MO., March 28.—In a communication from Judge W. N. Evans, chairman of the Democratic state committee, this morning, Harry M. Rubey of Macon is appointed to act in his place until the committee meets. In his letter to Mr. Rubey, Judge Evans says:

> In view of the fact that I am not in a position to perform all the duties devolving upon the chairman of the state committee and that the committee has to meet May 8 or 9, I hereby designate and appoint Harry M. Rubey of Macon, Mo., vice chairman with the power to represent me in all things as he may see proper until the meeting of the state committee on May 19 or 20, 1908, or until this order is revoked.

The judge adds that he would be pleased to see Mr. Rubey elected chairman of the committee in his stead. He directs Mr. Rubey to go to the beer inspector's office, where he will find a desk and a typewriter, and get busy. Mr. Rubey will arrange to spend most of his time from now until the committee meets at the St. Louis headquarters.

Harry Rubey is a son of ex-State Senator Web M. Rubey and has always been an active Democrat. At present he is mayor of Macon, being the first Democrat elected to that position for a quarter of a century.

A GOULD PAYS $2,000 FOR DOG.

A Collie Pup With a Clear Pedigree Worth a Small Fortune.

PATERSON, N. J., March 28.—George J. Gould has purchased another collie, for which he paid $2,000. The sire of the dog is Southport Scout and is owned by J. Harkness Bowman of this city. Scout was purchased more than a year ago by Mr. Bowman from the Southport collie kennels, Freshfield, England, while the mother of the dog purchased by Mr. Gould is owned by Pell Pierpont, a nephew of J. Pierpont Morgan, and is known as Woodmanstern Susan.

The dog Mr. Gould purchased is known as Woodmanstern Duncan and is one of a litter of eight. Mr. Gould saw the dog in the home of Dr. H. S. Fordyce and took the animal to Lakewood with him in his automobile, after leaving a check for $2,000 with the doctor.

R. L. Ziv's "Spirit of Truth."

R. L. Ziv, tailor, Socialist, poet and philosopher, has just published a small volume of his writings with the title "The Spirit of Truth in Prose and Rhyme." The work is dedicated to "the memory of my father, Abraham Judah Leon Ziv, who died at the age of about 85 in Palestine, and of my mother, Anna Pesah Ziv, who died at the age of about 80 years at Denaburg, Courland, Russia." There are some thirty-six poems, mostly on social and moral themes. The prose is in the form of epigrams. The book, paper bound, sells for fifty cents and is to be had at the book stores and news stands.

Music and Musicians

"The Messiah" at Lindsborg.

Sunday, April 12, Lindsborg's twenty-sixth annual musical festival will begin its week of song and story. Every year, since its inception a quarter of a century ago, a wee, timid, aspiring chorus singing Handel's sublime oratorio, the cornerstone of its house of harmony, it has augmented in number and volume until the fame of it has gone into far lands and the joy of it has beaten paths of pilgrimage from every point in the national compass. The growing strength and prestige of this home talent melodic fete is without precedent in musical history, unless it be the Passion Play at Oberammergau, in the steps of whose purpose, achievement and drawing power it is in the way to follow. Analogously, the two hamlets segregate a people, sweet-hearted, simply bent, of sterling integrity, of persevering and intelligent industry, law abiding without the lash, closely bound in faith and fraternity, working for self, for each other, for the elevation of the right standard of ethics and citizenship. One Bavarian, centuries old, is nestled in the lap of cultured civilization, where the fine arts have flowered into perfection. The other, Swedish, born only a few years ago in Kansas frontier obscurity, has converted a wind-swept, desolate plain into a garden of bloom and fruit, and has made its annual celebration a monument to music, to which a great nation, busy with much business, may come and lose its frets in a surge of dulcet sound. It is interesting to recall, in connection with this phenomenal consummation, that "The Messiah," the nucleus of it, was itself composed in twenty-four days, that its proceeds were devoted to beneficiary uses, that the glory of it has mightily gripped.

The Lindsborg musical calendar next month has notable features. First, "The Messiah," the opening Sunday, Friday and Easter; on the 12th, 15th and 17th, Madame Langendorff, a mezzo-soprano in high favor, late of the Metropolitan opera company, New York, engaged for the Wagnerian theater at Bayreuth; Thursday, the Kansas wit and journalist, Ed Howe, who will repeat his celebrated lecture, "Around the World"; Saturday, Governor Johnson of Minnesota, in high esteem officially, and a favorite speaker, who will deliver an address; these in addition to a daily programme of which each number stands alone in its invitation.

The attendance last year approximated 20,000. This season, so great is the pleasure in Lindsborg's festival, so keen the public pride in it, it is anticipated that the sum of visitors will be largely increased.

Mme. Sembrich's Programme.

The present season of good music will be fittingly climaxed by the return of Mme. Marcella Sembrich to sing in the Auditorium theater the evening of April 4. The name of this widely known, personally and professionally admired colatura soprano, guarantees a musical treat. With her will be Ellison Van Hoose, a tenor of Metropolitan Opera company fame, also the leading tenor with Melba for more than two years, remembered here in oratorio work; and Michael De Zadora, a young Polish pianist, who has played with marked success in Berlin, Paris and other metropolitan cities since his first appearance in Kansas City a few years ago.

Mme. Sembrich, at her best in Italian role, will be especially pleasing in Verdi's aria from "Traviata," and Puccini's grand duo from "La Boheme." She will sing one English song "by request," in addition to the following programme:

Ballade .... Chopin
Etude .... Liapounow
Mr. Zadora.
Aria from "Traviata, Ah. fors' e lui".... Verdi
Mme. Sembrich.
Romance, "Plus Baancho" (Huguenots)..

Mrs. E. C. White, accompanist.

The Beethoven programme, in the salon of the Willis Wood theater, Friday afternoon, April 10, will complete Mrs. Ella Backus-Behr's series of concerts. Mrs. Behr is a pianist of rare ability and attainment. In these five afternoons with the masters, with finely qualified assistants, she has alike charmed her hearers and educated appreciation of classical music. The detail of the programme will be announced later. It will consist, as previously, of selections most attractively characteristic of their composer.

A concert in the Willis Wood theater the evening of Sunday, April 12, will introduce Francis Rea McMillen, renowned at home as the Ohio boy violinist who created a furore in Europe. Mr. McMillen is a violin virtuoso of international reputation, kept very successfully occupied on whichever side of the Atlantic he chances to be. With him in this engagement will be Mme. Rosina Van Dyke, prima donna of the royal opera Amsterdam, and Herr Richard Hagreman, Holland's noted pianist.

The Leib Vocal Club's Concert.

W. H. Leib's vocal club of thirty-five singers, with several assisting soloists, will offer the following programme in the Kansas City, Kas., high school auditorium Tuesday evening, March 31:

The students of the Kansas City Conservatory of Music and Art will give their regular programme in the auditorium of the conservatory building Friday evening, April 3. Among those participating in it will be Miss Geraldine Shepard, Miss Zella Collins, Miss Alberta Talbot, Miss Katherine Williams, Miss Mary Williams, Timothy Bradley.

The J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music company will give a pianola recital on Wednesday evening, April 8, at the New Casino hall, 1023 Broadway. Hans Albert, violin virtuoso, years a member of Theodore Thomas's orchestra, will be introduced to the Kansas City public, rendering three selections. Miss Callie Clark, soprano, will be the other soloist.

Alfred H. Lough, London's concert organist, will play this evening in the Westport M. E. church, South, Fortieth and Washington streets. By special request he will repeat Hollænder's "Canzonetta," his own adaptation to the organ, given in one of his recent recitals.

Mrs. John S. Jeffers, soprano, will give a complimentary song recital at the Mellier Place Presbyterian church, the afternoon of Easter Sunday. She will be assisted by Miss Gladys Baldwin, violinist, and Miss Lila May Pickle, pianist.

Miss Olive B. Wilson of the Kansas City Conservatory of Music will give a lecture recital at an open meeting of the Chautauquans and their friends in the Washington Avenue M. E. church, Kansas City, Kas., Tuesday evening, March 31.

Four pupils of Miss Myrtle Evans will give a piano recital Saturday afternoon, April 4, 3:30 o'clock, at her home, 3812 Central street. Miss Florine Leming, violinist, will assist.

Rudolph Ganz, the eminent Swiss pianist, and Max Bendix, the greatest American violinist, will play in joint recital, Tuesday evening, April 21, in the Westminster Congregational church.

Miss Anna Trigg was assisted by her pupils in a musicale at her home, 2915 Troost avenue, yesterday afternoon.

Russian Torpedo Boats Collided.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 28.—A dispatch received here from Libau says that the Russian torpedo boat destroyers Moskvitianin and Pobrovoletz collided recently while maneuvering in the Baltic and were seriously damaged. The admiralty has not been informed of the accident.

Mrs. A. E. Stilwell left last night for a ten days' stay in New York.

Miss Julia Thompson entertained yesterday afternoon with a charming 5 o'clock tea in honor of Miss Virginia Keith. The tea table held a beautiful centerpiece of daffodils, jonquils, daisies and iris.

About forty-five friends were entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. George E. Myers at her home, 3651 Pennsylvania avenue, with a charming tea in honor of her visitor, Mrs. Henry Hutchings of St. Paul. Spring flowers made the rooms most attractive.

Mrs. Hutchings's visit has been the occasion of a round of entertaining and the renewal of friendships made during her former residence in Kansas City have made these functions most happy. For the coming week further pleasures have been planned for Mrs. Myers's guest. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Robert Gillham will have a bridge party for Mrs. Hutchings; a luncheon on Wednesday by Mrs. George C. Mosher will bring a number of Mrs. Hutchings's old-time friends together; Thursday Mrs. N. P. Simonds will entertain with a luncheon; and on Friday Mrs. Hutchings will be the guest of honor at an afternoon to be given by Mrs. J. S. Loose.

Mrs. Walton H. Holmes left Friday for Chicago for a few days' stay.

Mrs. Walter Root will go to Chicago the last of the week for a visit.

At the marriage reception of her daughter, Miss Virginia Lee Keith, and Mr. Freeman Field, which will follow the ceremony at the Redemptorist church at high noon on Thursday, Mrs. Richard Keith will be assisted by the following friends:

Mrs. George F. Young of Fort Leavenworth,
Mrs. Eugene Grasselli of Cleveland, O.,
Mrs. P. H. Tiernan,
Mrs. Virginia Lee,
Mrs. W. T. Johnson,
Mrs. Wallace Ferry,
Mrs. C. C. English,
Mrs. Frederick D. Parker,
Mrs. Robert Keith,
Mrs. E. R. Martin,
Mrs. Edward T. Wilder,
Mrs. Kimber Barton, jr.,
Mrs. C. W. Hastings,
Mrs. Charles S. Keith,
Mrs. R. H. Keith, jr.
Miss Adelina Richards,
Miss Margaret Carter,
Miss Laura Lee,
Miss Louise Massey,
Miss Helen Beaham.

Mrs. George D. Fisher of St. Louis will arrive to-day to be Miss Keith's guest until after the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Grasselli of Cleveland will come to-morrow. Mrs. Grasselli and Mrs. George F. Young of Fort Leavenworth are sisters of Mr. Field.

Mrs. William L. Karnes returned yesterday from a visit in Omaha.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Marty are at home, 4326 Warwick boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leidigh have returned from a few days' stay in St. Joseph.

Miss Hortense Taylor will entertain with an informal tea Tuesday afternoon in honor of Miss Hattie Shields of Richmond, Virginia. Miss Shields will be the guest of honor at a tea to be given Friday by Miss Mary Louise Gaines and a card party Friday evening by Miss Evelyn Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Tschudy will be at home after May 1, 119 West Armour boulevard.

Among the numerous social functions given in Los Angeles recently in honor of the officers of the Atlantic fleet, the following account records one of the preeminent. The reprint is from the Los Angeles Times Wednesday, April 22:

A brilliant social spectacle, all its appointments exquisite, honored by a distinguished company, was the garden fete given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock by Lieutenant and Mrs. Randolph H. Miner at their beautiful home, complimentary to Admiral Thomas and the officers of the fleet.

The presence of so many young naval officers in their handsome uniforms was the unique and stunning feature of a function notable in many respects.

Indoors, amid a profusion of blossoms, the host and hostess, with Admiral Evans's daughter, Mrs. C. C. Marsh, Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee and Admiral Thomas, received the guests in the large drawing room.

Lieutenant Miner's gardens, which are noted for their picturesqueness, formed a pretty setting for the elaborate gowns and hats of the ladies and the many uniforms. Pink and blue were the predominating colors worn by the younger girls, although white was also popular.

In the dining room, where coffee and ices were served, there was a profusion of lilies of the valley and on the table was a large centerpiece of the same fragrant flowers. In the garden, where pennants and bunting formed attractive decorations, a bevy of pretty girls served punch and tea.

Beneath a canopy of bunting, outdoors, a naval band in scarlet played popular airs. A novel sight was the guard of sailors in front of the residence. About eight hundred guests responded to invitations and keenly appreciated the novel and artistic hospitality of the gracious host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Firey, formerly of Kirksville, Mo., are at home at the Coates house.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mendenhall, 914 Linwood boulevard, have as their guests Mrs. F. K. Robinson of Winfield, Kas., and her daughter, Gertrude. Miss Robinson is en route home from her school in Berlin.

Mrs. Mendenhall entertained a number of Miss Robinson's former Dana hall classmates yesterday with a luncheon at the Baltimore, followed by a box party at the Willis Wood theater. The guests were:

Miss Hattie Shields of Richmond, Va.,
Miss Elizabeth Barton,
Miss Rachel Brinkerhoff,
Miss Helen Gentry,
Miss Margaret Greenlees,
Miss Evelyn Hall,
Miss Marjory McWilliams,
Miss Gertrude Smith.

The Gamma chapter of the Phi Sigma fraternity entertained with a delightful dancing party Friday evening at the Country club.

The chaperons were Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moore.

The invited guests included:

Miss Catherine Gray,
Miss Ruth Thwing,
Miss Agnes Thompson,
Miss Harriet Douglass,
Miss Helen Ward,
Miss Rebecca Gray,
Miss Frances Gilbert,
Mr. Ashley Rule,
Mr. Marshall Thwing,
Mr. Sylvester Gilbert,

Mr. Taylor Abernathy,
Mr. Lester Glover,
Mr. James Swofford,
Miss Mary Augusta Armour,
Miss Katharine Smith,
Miss Mildred Patterson,
Mr. Joseph Peppard,
Mr. Ford Davis,
Mr. Jefferson Brumback,
Mr. Fred Fowler,
Mr. Albert D. Moore,
Mr. Birch Harrison.

Mrs. Benoist Carton with her little daughter, Julia Fay, will arrive Tuesday morning for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Julia G. Hurt.

Mrs. Stuart Carkener entertained a limited number of friends Friday afternoon at cards in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Buffum of Louisiana, Mo. Prizes were won by Mrs. Milton Firey and and Mrs. Buffum. Mrs. Buffum will return home next week.

The following young people were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Conway F. Holmes with a dinner party Friday evening in honor of Miss Eliza Carroll of Vicksburg, Miss.:

Miss Belle Boone,
Miss Bessie Smith,
Miss Irene Kenefick,
Miss Marjorie McWilliams,
Miss Lottje Hewson,
Miss Fay Harkless,
Miss Abbie Boone,
Miss Madeline Beamish,
Mr. Clarence Hanley,
Mr. Vernon Jones,
Mr. Scott Harrison,
Mr. J. R. Poteet,
Mr. Chet Jones,
Mr. Edward Smith,
Mr. Harry Sebree,
Mr. Allen Hughes,
Mr. Archie Aylesworth.

Mrs. Edward H. Kienzle, 3614 Madison avenue, has returned from a two weeks' visit in Boston.

St. Vincent's church was the scene yesterday morning of a wedding of unusual beauty, that of Miss Anna Elizabeth Green, daughter of Mrs. George Edward Green, and Mr. David Wilson Rider, jr. The ceremony was performed at 11:30 o'clock by the Rev. Father Francis X. Antil. The mass was read by the Rev. Father Charles Maddox.

On the approach of the wedding party the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was sung by the quartet, Miss Callie Clarke, Miss Mattie Lou Catron, Mr. Paul C. Baltz and Mr. Joseph Mullen. The attendants came singly down the aisle, the groomsmen, Mr. Harry Graham, Mr. Kenneth Byrn and Mr. Frank Dean, walking first. They in turn were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Georgia Dugan of Bedford, Ind., and Miss Besse McMurray. The little flower girl, Eileen Crowley, and the ring bearer, Kathleen Ruddy, preceded the maid of honor, Miss Emily Houston of Bedford, Ind. The bride and her uncle, Mr. Michael J. Crowley, were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. George Rider. During the ceremony Mr. Joseph Mullen sang Chaminade's "Promise," followed by D'Hardelot's "I Know a Lovely Garden." During the mass Mr. Paul Baitz rendered Neidlinger's "Beloved," followed by Wilson Smith's "Thou Art Like Unto a Lovely Flower." Mr. Charles Quadlander played the wedding music.

The bride was beautifully gowned in an exquisite Brussels lace robe in elaborate design, built over chiffon satin and fashioned empire princesse. The rose point yoke was finished with a rich bertha of princesse and rose point lace. The short sleeves were finished with cuffs of rose point. She wore the groom's gift, a diamond crescent. The bridal veil, of the thinnest of tulle, was caught to her coiffure in crown effect with sprays of lilies of the valley and fell in graceful folds to the hem of her full length court train. She carried a lovely bouquet of white lilacs.

Miss Houston wore a rich and effective princesse gown of light blue satin. The bodice was covered with an elaborately embroidered floral design in silver and blue. She carried an armful of lilacs. Her short English veil was held in place with a coronet of silver cloth and blue and white aigrettes. Miss Dugan wore an attractive empire gown of white filet net over light blue satin, trimmed elaborately with Valenciennes and baby Irish lace. Miss Besse McMurray was becomingly gowned in a handsome empire robe of white filet net over light blue satin, trimmed with folds of satin. The bodice was finished with Grecian sleeves, falling to the hem of her gown and edged with satin fringe. Both maids wore picturesque English veils caught in crown effect with silver cloth and blue and white aigrettes. They carried baskets of white lilacs and blue iris.

Little Eileen Crowley and Kathleen Ruddy wore dainty white muslin frocks and blue stockings and slippers. The ring was carried in an Easter lily.

The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies, palms, ferns and tall cathedral candles. On either side of the altar stood tall white standards from the top of which broke a shower of the stately lilies. The chancel rail was covered with huckleberry vines and at intervals lilies and chancel candles were used in making an unusually pretty scene.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Michael J. Crowley, at which the following friends assisted:

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Rider,
Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Crowley,
Mrs. George Dugan of Bedford, Ind.,
Mrs. O. L. VanLaningham,
Mrs. C. J. Morrow,
Mrs. John A. Cochran,
Mrs. Thomas Ruddy,
Mrs. Ralph Freyschlag,
Mrs. Bruce Forrester,
Mrs. Ewing Cole,
Mrs. James Manning,
Mrs. J. J. Helm,
Miss Carrie Evans,
Miss Gertrude Helm,
Miss Christine Green,
Miss Inez Grant,
Miss Margaret Egelhoff,
Miss Mame Tschudy,
Miss Genevieve Hackett.

An abundance of lilacs and Madame Chatney roses made a lovely decoration throughout the receiving rooms. The dining room table held a large wedding cake surrounded with lilacs and roses. Easter lilies and palms prevailed in the hall. An orchestra rendered a pleasing programme during the receiving hours. Miss Green's gifts to her attendants were gold cuff buttons. Gold scarf pins were Mr. Rider's gifts to his attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Rider left for an Eastern wedding journey.

Mrs. Walter Sanford returned yesterday morning from a five weeks' stay in Boston, Philadelphia and Washington.

Mrs. Robert G. Weber left last night for Atlantic City and New York.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. George Fielder Ballingal for a May day at home to be given the afternoon of Friday, May 1, 3 to 5 o'clock, for her daughters, Miss Nanna Buckner and Miss Elizabeth Ballingal.

Mrs. Forest Haines and her little daughter, Irene, left Saturday for their home in Eldorado, Kas., after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ellet.

Mrs. Sewell W. Black is the guest of Mrs. Montgomery McCullough in Fayette, Mo., for a week.

The patronesses for the William H. Sherwood concert to be given Friday afternoon, May 1, at the Willis Wood theater, will include:

Mrs. K. B. Armour,
Mrs. Carl Busch,
Mrs. E. H. Blake,
Miss Harriet Barse,
Mrs. B. F. Deatherage,
Mrs. William Hall,
Mrs. William L. Stocking,
Mrs. H. F. Mather,
Mrs. Joseph Meinrath,
Mrs. Arthur Schooley,
Miss Ida Simmons,
Mrs. J. S. Taylor,
Mrs. George H. Tefft,
Mrs. T. J. Templer,
Mrs. Phillip Toll,
Mrs. Will Whyte.

Following the concert a reception will be given by Miss Josephine Ridgeway Rae at her studio to meet Mr. Sherwood. Miss Rae will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Busch.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave W. Bachman are occupying their new home, 800 Gillham road.

Miss Nell Luse of St. Paul,
Miss Ava Sells of Topeka,
Miss Jessica Jones,
Mrs. M. D. Stevenson,
Mr. Sam Luse of St. Paul,
Mr. Jo Townsend McGrew,
Mr. M. D. Stevenson,
Mr. Chet Jones.

Mrs. J. S. Jones and Mrs. Joseph W. Hemphill are at home at Haddon hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Lyle, jr., of James Crest, Prince George county, Va., announce the birth of a son, to whom they have given the name of Eugene P. Lyle, third. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle are the guests of Mrs. Lyle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Magill, 3109 Brooklyn avenue. Mrs. Lyle was formerly Miss Ethel Magill.

A large number of guests were pleasantly entertained yesterday afternoon and evening at Tiffany farm by Dr. and Mrs. Flavel B. Tiffany. The guests from Kansas City took the train at 1 o'clock and after reaching Parkville proceeded to the farm, one mile north. A ramble through orchards and pastures was the pastime until 4 o'clock, when luncheon was served at the tavern. From 6 to 8 o'clock a musical programme was given. Those who took part were Miss Irwin, Miss Hamm, Miss May McDonald, Mr. Karl Smith, Mr. Franklyn Hunt and Mr. Hans Peterson. The guests took the returning train for home after 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Joseph L. Norman will send out invitations soon for a reception to be given at the Baltimore the second week in May in honor of Mrs. Traber Norman, who has spent the winter in Kansas City.

Mrs. Norman is awaiting the arrival of her husband, Captain Traber Norman, who has sailed from Manila and is expected in San Francisco the middle of May after a three years' absence in the Philippines. Captain Norman is remembered for his excellent work in 1902 in the discovery and destruction of Caballe's central cuartel and its band of insurrectos in the crater of an extinct volcano, Mount Banahao. The destruction of the headquarters of the notorious Colorum, or insurrecto religious society, was accomplished by Captain Norman and a detachment from the Eighth infantry in the face of most dangerous difficulties which involved climbing almost perpendicular mountain walls and hanging by ropes above deepest chasms. For this work Captain Norman and his men were enthusiastically commended by General J. Franklin Bell.

Captain Norman is a son of Mr. Joseph L. Norman of this city. He is a graduate of the Kansas City Central High school and a member of the West Point class of 1892. He was formerly commissary at Governor's island where, with Mrs. Norman, he entertained frequently the members of the foreign commissions.

Mrs. B. F. Ellet and her daughter, Marion, left Saturday for a visit in Concordia, Kas.

Mrs. Wyan Nelson, 1632 West Prospect place, will return this morning from a three weeks' visit in Pueblo with her daughter, Mrs. Norman Cool. Mrs. Cool and her children will accompany Mrs. Nelson home.

The following members of the Cercle Francais of the Central High school gave a pleasing French comedy Friday morning in the auditorium under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Clarke, followed by a tea

WON A DIAMOND RING
The affections of a wise young man wavered between two ladies of equal charms. He drove with Miss Alice. To her chagrin the new spring hat purchased at one of the high rent, high priced millinery bazaars and which cost her $16, at a bargain counter sale, elicited no comment. He lunched with Miss Marie. She never looked so beautiful. The crowning glory of her attire was an artistic Parisian pattern purchased here at our regular price for $9.00. Marie no longer has a rival. She now wears the diamond ring. She declares that bewitching hat did it.

Spring and Summer Outfits

The time for making the selection of your outfit is right now. The stocks are at their best and we are ready to supply you with the correct apparel as never before. The lateness of Easter gave designers the opportunity to bring out better styles and more of them. And we, too, have made the most of this additional time and have chosen the most complete stock of exclusive apparel it has ever been our pleasure to submit for your consideration. It is a season of variety and colors, yet fashion has closely defined the proper styles and to transgress in the slightest degree from these lines is to receive the frown of fashion. This is why choosing from such a carefully selected stock as ours means so much to you. It makes no difference whether the suit or costume selected is a medium priced one or an expensive creation, with each there is an assurance that the style is right.

This and the following few weeks will, of course, be the busiest of the season, and again we assure you that you will find us ready to supply every want and do so to your satisfaction.

Tailor-Made Suits, $25, $35, $40, $45 and up to $200.
Linen Suits, $18.50, $25, $30 and up to $50.
Costumes, $35, $45, $55, $65 and up to $500.
Lingerie Dresses, $13.50, $16.50, $18.50, $25 and up to $350.
Women's Coats. Practical styles and tailor-made, $7.50, $10, $12.50, $15, $18.50 and $25.

Misses' Skirts, $5, $6.50, $7.50, $8.50. First Floor, South Section.

Special attention is also called to our misses' department and our section for small women; much attention is given to each and you will find here styles for every occasion and at reasonable prices.

Extraordinary Showing of Fine Waists

Ours is a wonderful waist department, and your interest in it will grow as you get better acquainted. Your first impression will be that of a beautiful department, large, light, airy and convenient in arrangement, a complete little shop in itself, with an enormous showing of exquisite styles in waists of every description. But this is not all; we want you to realize also the many advantages there are in trading here and the careful and courteous attention you will receive. Our stock is complete, and you will have no difficulty in finding here just the waist that will meet your fancy. The price will be reasonable.

A pretty style is made of white sheer mull, with front and back yoke design inset with lace motifs and insertions in circular effect. The sleeves are made of three-quarter length and extensively trimmed with lace to match the yoke. This waist is a great bargain. Price, $3.50.

Then there are the hand embroidered front models, one with graduated plaits extending to the shoulders. It has stiff laundered collar and cuffs with edging of colored chambray in various colors. A style much favored abroad. Price, $7.50.

At $1.50, $2.50 and $2.95, hundreds and hundreds of styles in the daintiest effects in sheer lawns and mulls.

Linen Waists at $2.50, $3.00, $5.00, $6.00, $6.50 and $12.00. First Floor, North Section.

CONTINUOUS Advertising is what makes your name familiar and identifies it with your business. Continuous—never turning your back to give the other fellow a chance when you're not looking. Take an advertisement like this:

BURKE'S BEDSPRINGS
Like Truth Will Rise Again.
Buoyant, Durable, Inexpensive.

Inserted in The Star, every morning, every evening and every Sunday for one year, that announcement would appear more than

Ninety Million Times

Your monthly bill would be $47.[illegible] and everybody in town would think of "Burke's" every time they thought of bedsprings. But if you advertise only occasionally, or only evenings, or mornings or Sundays, somebody else may share in the benefit of your expenditure by chancing to be in when you are out. The householder whom you have been exhorting, once a day or once a week for months, and who at last needs bedsprings, may find instead of your announcement, one like this:

MURPHY'S MATTRESSES
Easy as a Clear Conscience.
Elastic, Indestructible, Cheap.

And Murphy might reap where Burke had sown. The thing is, to keep your lamp trimmed and burning. Every morning, every evening, every Sunday.

To extend the publicity field to cover the whole of Kansas City's commercial territory it is necessary only to add The Weekly Star. Morning, Evening, Sunday and Weekly, the little advertisement in one year would in all, be published a cost of $[illegible] a month. Persistency wins.

One Hundred and Ten Million Times

KANSAS CITYANS 'BACK EAST'

SOME NOTES OF THEIR SOCIAL LIFE IN NEW YORK.

A "Career" Expected for Mrs. Hardcastle Pennock—Mr. and Mrs. Mason Peters "at Home" in Frank Daniels's Country Place—Plans for the Summer.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The condition of Mrs. Charles R. Russell of Kansas City who is ill with typhoid fever at St. Luke's hospital is not so serious as to cause her friends any greater anxiety than is occasioned by even the lightest attacks of this malady. Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Withers were at the Hotel Latham, and had been joined there by their young daughters, who are attending school at New Rochelle. It was there that Mrs. Russell was taken ill, and was later, after a consultation of physicians, one of whom was Dr. Charles R. L. Wainwright, formerly of Kansas City, removed to St. Luke's. Mr. Russell came on from Kansas City, and is stopping at the Imperial. Miss Dorothy Russell has returned to school. The doctors pronounce Mrs. Russell's illness a very light attack, and give every assurance of her being about in a few weeks. It is probable, however, that this will interfere with the plan of Mrs. Russell and her daughter to spend the summer in Europe, and in any event their sailing will be deferred.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edwards Epps of Riverside drive announce the birth of a daughter on Monday, April 20, to whom they have given the name Katherine. Mrs. Epps was formerly Miss Katherine Devereux of Lawrence. She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop Bullene, and a niece of Mrs. F. C. Gay of Kansas City. Mr. Epps at one time lived in Topeka.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle Pennock have returned from their six months' honeymoon in Europe, and are at present with Mr. Pennock's family until they find a suitable house for themselves. Mrs. Pennock will be remembered in Kansas City as Miss Elsie Davidson. Since coming to New York a few years ago she has devoted herself very seriously to musical study, and has made most gratifying advancement. Her husband is in earnest sympathy with her in her ambition for a career, and during their stay in Europe provided her with every possible advantage in the way of teachers. She expects to continue her work in New York, and will sing in concert. Of Mrs. Pennock a special cable dispatch to the World a short time since, just before her sailing from London said: "After several months of study under Signor Panzari in Florence, Mrs. Hardcastle Pennock is now in London. Mrs. Pennock was formerly a pupil of Mme. Marie Cross Newhaus in New York. Although still in her teens, Mrs. Pennock has been much admired in Italy, France and Germany for her artistic production of her voice, which has a remarkable range and most sympathetic quality. She has composed several songs of merit, one of which Mme. Block will sing in Germany."

Mrs. Pennock's mother, Mrs. Charles W. Drake, lives at the Schuyler Arms, in Ninety-eighth street. Her son, Guy P. Davidson, recently has joined her here for a permanent residence.

Mrs. E. M. Hill arrived Monday from Lawrence to visit her daughter, Mrs. Louis A. Springer. She stopped in Boston for a few days en route to see another daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Chandler. In June Mrs. Hill will join Mr. and Mrs. Chandler at Craigville, Cape Cod, where they have taken a cottage for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Springer will spend August there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marsh expect to sail May 9 for a two months' European trip. Mr. Marsh has not been well this spring, and the trip is designed as a rest and change for him. During their absence, Mr. Fen Marsh will come from Kansas City to look after his brother's business interests, and will live in their apartment in the Hendrik Hudson.

Miss Margaret Rohe has returned from a short trip to Boston, where she went to interview Miss Rose Stahl for a special article in Human Life. Miss Rohe is no longer connected with the Morning Telegraph, and is devoting all her time to magazine work.

Mrs. James Aspinwall Kearney of Kansas City has taken for the summer the apartment of the Misses Marie and Bessie Russell at 175 Claremont avenue. Mrs. Kearney came here to visit her son, who is connected with the United States navy. As he will probably be stationed in or around New York all summer his mother has taken the apartment in order to have him with her as much as possible. The Misses Russell live in true bachelor girl style, but with the added advantage of having their married sister, Mrs. Raymond Perry, living in another apartment in the same house. Mrs. Perry is remembered in Kansas City as Miss Emilie Russell. Her husband is a successful young artist and illustrator. Miss Marie Russell teaches in the public schools, and Miss Bessie Russell teaches violin. Next month they will all go to New Brunswick, N. J., to spend the summer. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Russell, have a large country place there a few miles out of the village where they conduct a model squab farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Garnett Basinger, the latter formerly Miss Mattie Payne Thayer of Kansas City, are stopping for a time with Mrs. Arthur Coates and Mrs. Doggett in One Hundred and Twenty-second street, until they make definite plans for the summer. Mrs. Coates expects to go in June to Maine, where she has taken a summer camp in the woods. She will have a number of girls and young women with her at different times, many of whom have been members of her household the past winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Peters are occupying the country place of Mr. Frank Daniels at New Rochelle while Mr. Daniels is on the road. The place was turned over to them with a full complement of servants, horses and automobiles, and as this is the most beautiful season of the year in the country, and the Daniels place is in a very charming neighborhood, the Peterses are considered extremely fortunate. They will remain there until the close of Mr. Daniels's season, which will probably be well into the summer. Mrs. Peters is devoted to motoring, and drives a car with the skill of a professional. As the roads around New Rochelle are ideal for motoring she is enjoying herself thoroughly and spends almost her entire time in a car. Mr. Peters has withdrawn entirely from the real estate ventures in which he was engaged a year or two ago and is giving all his time to theatrical work. He is sort of a general utility press man for Klaw & Erlanger, a position in which his wide acquaintance among theatrical and newspaper people is exceedingly valuable.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sanford have been in Boston for the past fortnight stopping at the Bellevue hotel. Mr. Sanford is manager for Madame Nazimova, and is having a very successful season. They expect to return to Kansas City at the close of the theatrical season.

A most delightful evening was spent on Tuesday by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lawrence Chandler, known as the Marquis and Marchioness of Eckersley, 2317 Troost avenue. The evening was to celebrate the completion of the book, "A Human Note," lately written by Mr. Chandler. The house was decorated with masses of rose pink carnations and smilax intertwined with American and British flags. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Van Schmidt, Miss Marie Clare Pembroke, a niece of General Nelson A. Miles, Miss Helen Hornaday, Miss Bessie Daniel, Mr. B. M. Evans of Washington, a nephew of Admiral Evans, Mr. H. Maurice Dace of Chicago and Mr. Lionel Montrose Studebaker of Kansas City. Each guest received a miniature copy of "A Human Note" as a souvenir.

Mrs. C. C. Craver, Fifty-seventh street and Swope Park boulevard, was hostess at a beautiful luncheon Thursday, when she entertained her bridge club. This was the last regular meeting of the club for the season and the prizes for the entire year were chosen, the member having the highest score for the entire year receiving first prize. The house was a bower of lilacs, crabapple blossoms, redbud and other woods flowers, which, together with the huge ferns and bright Easter lilies, made the rooms most attractive. The luncheon table held a large basket of lilacs tied with tulle and the place cards were miniature baskets of lilacs. The club members are: Mrs. Charles I. Pettibone, Mrs. W. S. Wheeler, Mrs. Alexander Lendrum, Mrs. William E. McNaghten, Mrs. Jessie Erwin, Mrs. E. T. Phillips, Mrs. D. B. Ward, Mrs. J. C. Heinzman, Mrs. William E. McQuiston, Mrs. O. M. Helfrich, Mrs. C. C. Craver, Mrs. Jack Miller.

A pretty home wedding of the past week was that of Miss Helen Randall and Mr. Melvin Wimsatt celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McElwain, 3200 Oak street, Wednesday evening, April 22, at 8 o'clock. The Rev. V. Maloney, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Rosedale, performed the ceremony. The house was prettily decorated with smilax, Easter lilies and spring flowers. The wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was played by an orchestra. The bridal party entered the parlor through aisles formed of white ribbon, carried by Thelma Edwards and May Sullivan, who acted as flower girls. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, with full length veil and carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Otto Hill as bridesmaid wore a gown of pink crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Mr. Wimsatt was attended by Mr. Leighton Snook. Mr. and Mrs. Wimsatt left for an extended wedding trip in the East.

The marriage of Miss Spencer Etta Talley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Talley, and Dr. G. E. Hendrickson was celebrated at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. I. B. Walston, 917 Brooklyn avenue. The Rev. P. L. Stark, assisted by his brother, performed the ceremony which was witnessed by relatives and a limited number of friends. Pink and white were the wedding colors and the home was enhanced by decorations of smilax, palms, ferns and Easter lilies. Before the ceremony Mrs. Ethel Lee Buxton sang "My Dear." Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by an orchestra. The bridal party was met before a bank of palms and Easter lilies by the two ministers, the groom and his best man. The bride and groom, surrounded by their attendants, stood under an arch of smilax and apple blossoms, the bride's brother giving her in marriage. At the close of the ceremony the bride's sister, Miss Arlie Talley, sang "Love Me and the World is Mine." The little ring bearer and the flower girl, followed by the clergymen, led the bride and groom with their attendants and relatives to the dining room. On the table as a centerpiece was the bride's cake surrounded by a mound of smilax studded with pink and white carnations. Ropes of smilax radiated to the chandelier. The punch bowl was surrounded with pink apple blossoms. A particularly happy feature of the evening was the presence of the bride's great-aunt, Mrs. Fannie Twyman of Independence, who has attained the age of 81 years. The bride wore an elegant gown of white chiffon satin made princesse, with panels of rose embroidered filet edged with seed pearls. The side panels were held with narrow velvet ribbon fastened with pearls. The bodice was embroidered with roses of the filet, with sleeves of French embroidered lace. The low neck was edged with pearls. The bridal veil was fastened with lilies of the valley and the bridal bouquet was of bride roses, tied with tulle. The ring bearer, little Lee Ora Walston, a niece of the bride, wore a dress of net over white silk and carried the ring in an Easter lily. The flower-girl, Miss Nellie Anderson, wore white net. The maid of honor, Miss Hattie Talley, a sister of the bride, wore a princesse gown of pink liberty satin, with yoke and bands of princesse lace. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Pearl Hendrickson and Miss Minnie Little, wore dainty white princesse dresses of Paris muslin, elaborately trimmed in bands of Valenciennes lace. Mrs. I. B. Walston, as ribbon bearer, wore a paneled princesse of pink liberty satin, trimmed with grape medallions and straps of pink velvet ribbon. Mrs. J. D. Stanton, ribbon bearer, wore a shaded pink organdie with yoke effect of Valenciennes lace and bands. Dr. and Mrs. Hendrickson left for St. Louis and Raymond, Ill. After visiting other points in the East they will be at home after June 1, Coulterville, Ill.

From the Boston Post.

If mothers who have babies and who have the lingerie bibs that are of no use to baby, will purchase a common dress shield and pin it beneath the bib, they will find that baby's dresses will always be dry and at the same time sweet and clean. This will not only give him a chance to wear his dainty bibs, but will save washing for the mothers. If the nice shields are bought they can be laundered, while the cheaper ones can be thrown away when soiled.

Cause for Resentment.

From the Chicago News.

"Yes," said Mrs. Newrich, "I treat my domestics as equals."

FOR THE YOUNG MAN GRADUATE.

Commencement week in public and private schools has become a series of social functions which require a little code of etiquette quite their own. Particularly is this true of the high school, which to-day boasts of its junior reception, its baccalaureate sermon, its fraternity teas and all the social etceteras of the full-blown college.

The correct gowning of the fair graduate is discussed under the head of fashions, but a word about correct dress for the boys of the class is not out of place here. A neat sack suit or a very dark blue or black coat and fancy or white vest, with striped trousers, may be worn when the exercises are held in the morning or afternoon, any time, in fact, before 6 o'clock p. m., but for all functions which occur after nightfall the young man would be provided with evening clothes. I say this in a spirit of family fairness. So often the girl graduate is well supplied with commencement week finery, while just about anything is considered good enough for the boy who is to plunge from the schoolroom into business.

The boy deserves better treatment. If he has attained his growth, an evening suit, or at least a Tuxedo coat with matching black trousers, is a good investment. With this he wears black vest and tie, which he must be taught to tie for himself, not a ready-made bow, black pumps and hosiery and white gloves. For the daytime functions see that he has white linen, a neat light silk puff or four-in-hand tie, gray gloves and well polished shoes.

As this is a day of large high school classes and comparatively small opera houses or auditoriums, the number of tickets allowed each graduate is limited. Therefore the recipient of a card should consider herself honored and, if she cannot possibly attend the exercises or social function, return the card to its sender with an explantion, so that the invitation can be used by some other eager friend or relative.

Gifts for graduates should be sent to the home or the auditorium where the exercises are held on the day of the commencement exercises proper. Generally valuable gifts are sent to the house, flowers and congratulatory telegrams to the school or auditorium.

Members of the class or their friends intending to entertain during commencement week should secure a schedule of social events. Otherwise invitations may clash and one hostess or another be disappointed.

The young man or woman who invites relatives and friends to share commencement week pleasures has a perfect right to expect one courtesy in exchange and that is good taste in dressing. The mother, aunt or family friend invited on such an occasion should don her best and give the lass or laddie cause for pride.

The graduate will not forget to show all courtesy due to her elderly guests on this occasion. In making introductions she will present the young man to the woman, the younger woman to the elder, thus: "Mr. Blake, I want you to meet my mother," or, "Nellie, dear, I want you to know my aunt, Mrs. Carlton. Aunty, this is Nellie Bray, of whom I have so often spoken."

If tea or refreshments are served at any school function, the graduate will see that her elderly guests are properly served and before the younger set. In fact, while the graduate takes the center of the stage during the regulation graduation exercises, at all social affairs she is the hostess, and owes all the duties of the hostess to any of her invited guests.

English Boys Fashion's Slaves.

From the New York Press.

Slavishness to fashion the average woman would scorn characterizes not only Englishmen, but English schoolboys. Everybody knows the average adult Briton is convinced if he ventured down town withtout his frock coat and silk hat he would be lost to all eternity. It is not known generally that the British schoolboy, in Eton, at any rate, follows rules in dress much more rigorously than any duchess would do. Indeed, a duchess likes to think she sets style, but the Etonian is willing to follow abjectly those laid down for him generations ago. All England is more or less in upheaval just now because the head master of Eton school has issued an order that apparently makes it incumbent on the boys to wear top coats through the summer. It is not a new rule, but a reminder of the existence of an old one.

The announcement runs: "Boys are not allowed to walk up the street that is over Barnes Pool bridge unless they wear great coats and tall hats. Colored stockings and brown boots or shoes are forbidden. Pumps and slippers may not be worn out of doors at any time, after lock up or before." It appears the street which the pedagogue refrains from calling by name is "in bounds" only when a boy is in official dress, which includes a tall hat. Boys hurrying schoolward have been in the habit of shuffling into great coats, as they call them over there, clapping silk hats on their heads and scurrying along the street with football stockings flashing below their ulsters. The head master finds difficulty in expressing himself, but what he means to do is to stop that custom. It seems funny to read of schoolboys being bound by such strict sartorial canons.

Summer Parasols.

Sometimes summer parasols show a mass of bloom spreading all over the silk, again the pattern is more clearly defined and a border runs all the way round, about two or three inches from the edge. This border is more often plain or striped than flowered and is a feature of the up-to-date parasol.

Handles are extremely plain. Natural wood, exquisitely tinted in pastel shades with a frosted finish, but no enamel, leads for pompadour effects.

Nemo
TRIPLE-STRIP
SELF-REDUCING CORSET

Model 320 $3.00

Accept No Substitute !

The phenomenal success of the Nemo Self-Reducing Corset has produced a horde of servile imitators. Our patents cannot be infringed—therefore the imitations are worthless; but the name, illustrations and descriptions are so closely copied that many women may be deluded into buying an imitation under the impression that it is a genuine Nemo.

The purpose of this "Warning" is to protect Nemo wearers from being duped; and to prevent women who are wearing a "stout woman's" corset for the first time from losing faith in the possibility of attaining a graceful, shapely form.

When you buy a "reducing" corset, be sure that the one you select has the following patented and exclusive Nemo features, without which it is impossible to reduce your abdomen with comfort:

Nemo Self-Reducing Strap Firmly affixed to the hooks on front steel, thus producing positive reduction of the abdomen into permanent lines of grace. This most essential feature cannot be successfully imitated.

Nemo "Triple-Strip" The "pocket" of every bone and steel is protected by three thicknesses of material. Bones and steels can't cut through—this assures long wear. Patented—no imitation possible.

Nemo Flatning-Back Shown in several 1908 models. It gives a stout woman the new "figure;" and she's just as comfortable when she is seated as when she is standing.

Buy No Corset that Lacks Any One of These Essential Features

Every corset dealer knows that the Nemo Self-Reducing is the only corset that really helps a stout woman to reduce her abdomen and re-shape her figure; also, that it does this with perfect comfort and hygienic safety. Yet some stores lend their support to even the most palpable of these frauds. Why?

Because dealers always get a larger profit on an imitation than on the genuine article. Our policy gives dealers a fair profit, and we put the value into material and making—your gain.

That this policy is correct, and our statements accurate, is shown by the fact that the demand for Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets has doubled during the last twelve months and is now growing faster than ever.

SIMPLE GRADUATION FROCK OF INDIA LINEN WITH ALL-OVER EMBROIDERY AND GERMAN VAL. LACE.

FASHIONS FOR GRADUATES.

With commencement week little more than a month off, the graduate is immersed in examinations and essay writing, while her mother and elder sisters strive desperately to secure from her a final decision on graduation gowns.

Time was when the graduate, either from high school, private school or college, found a pretty white frock sufficient for her needs, but to-day commencement week is marked by a succession of entertainments which demand various frocks, each absolutely fresh and suitable. Fortunately these can all be summery creations, so the mother of the graduate has the satisfaction of killing two sartorial birds with one cash stone, commencement frills and the summer wardrobe.

To begin with the simplest costume needed, let us consider the natty suit for baccalaureate Sunday. If the climate is very balmy during commencement week, tub materials may be worn to church on that great Sunday, but it is a trifle safer to select a silk or voile or a very light weight cloth suit.

The very smartest and most up-to-date creation is the one-piece dress, Empire, princess or jumper mode, with matching coat. Next to this comes the plaited skirt and jacket, and a net, lace or lingerie blouse, with strappings or overblouse effect to match the skirt and jacket. But a very safe investment for the mother of limited means is a princess gown of soft summer fabric, made with lace chemisette and undersleeves, and a separate jacket in some coloring and material which will combine well with almost any summer gown her daughter may wear later in the season. For these jackets natural colored pongee is very popular, and in light weight cloths come charming checks, stripes and modest figures showing white with pastel or rather faded colorings like brown, green, blue, etc.

Rough silks are used almost exclusively for summer suits and taffeta is decidedly out of the running. Some very natty costumes for girls from 16 to 20 show fine checks or stripes on the dress and a little jacket of plain dark silk.

PRINCESS GOWNS OF SOFT SILK.

Voile and soft silk make the best princess gowns, and the new mixed voiles (silk and cotton), which sell at about thirty or forty cents a yard, work up beautifully, though they lack the lasting qualities of an all wool or silk and wool voile.

On every frock this season there is a suggestion of the filet or princess net, and much ribbon velvet is seen for trimming.

Hats to be worn with these tailored or semi-tailored suits belong in one of two classes. Either they are extremely simple, enormous flat sailors tilted a trifle on the left side and trimmed with Alsatian or "Merry Widow" bows or rather stiff ribbon, or they are literally weighed down with masses of flowers. For wear with tub fabrics, the most popular hat is shaped something like a large dust cap with flounces of embroidery, net or lace, in which are twisted coils of velvet ribbon and wreaths of fine flowers.

Walking skirts are still plaited, but the plaits are arranged in groups or clusters, not kilted as during the winter. Three graduated folds, rather narrow, finish the foot of tailored skirts. The sleeves of cutaway coats are long and plain, those of the Louis coat three-quarter or elbow length, and natural colored chamois gloves, which wash admirably, are worn by young girls.

A LUNCHEON FROCK.

For the house frock which the young graduate will need for the luncheon which is sure to be given by one of her class during commencement week, there is nothing prettier than a one or two-piece costume of cotton voile or the lovely silk and cotton novelies offered in such bewildering variety. As Copenhagen blue is the fad of the season I am describing a very effective little costume made from an inexpensive striped novelty goods in this fashionable tint.

The skirt was laid in fine tucks over the hips, the blouse was plaited back and front and trimmed around the shaped, square neck with harmonious embroidered bands in blue, green, gold and white. The elbow sleeves were finished with the same embroidered trimming. The chemisette was of filet net, finely tucked, and a set of enamel buttons to match the embroidered trimming with a girdle of self-tone silk completed this dainty costume.

Another pretty design which could be worn either with a jacket for baccalaureate Sunday, or to a luncheon, is the natural colored pongee shown herewith. The skirt is laid in inverted box plaits, each of which is trimmed with a design in wide silk braid or velvet ribbon, golden brown in tint with a design above this in fine matching soutache braid. The overblouse apparently strapped over the shoulders, is outlined by the ribbon velvet or braid in the same fashion, and the underblouse of princess net in pale ecru is trimmed with golden brown velvet ribbon in a narrow width.

A very pretty blouse design is shown for the flat-chested girl. This is of figured net with ruffled sleeves and an overblouse or shaped bretelles in silk, heavily braided and edged with a piping of darker velvet.

GRADUATING FROCK OF LAWN.

The graduation frock is of fine India lawn, and is described as a semi-princess design, though it has a distinct waist line and shaped girdle. The yoke is of all-over embroidery, and so is the cuff of the sleeve, which is laid in deep tucks, each edged with fine lace or embroidery. The surplice-shaped overblouse is made of folds edged with lace, while over the sleeve falls a deep cap of graduated embroidered flouncing. The skirt is in three sections, and is particularly becoming to the tall, angular girl. The yoke or chemisette may be removed and the frock then becomes suitable for evening wear. Cluny or German Val. lace may be combined with all-over embroidery, and is softer than the embroidered edging.

White ribbon in the hair, and white silk stockings with kid or very fine white canvas pumps, should be worn with this. The canvas pumps are the newest and smartest footwear to wear with a wash dress.

Mulle, net, organdie, chiffon and soft white silks like habutai are used for commencement dresses, but all-over lace robes, crepe de chine and heavy satin are now considered far too heavy and ornate for the graduate.

SUITABLE GRADUATION GIFTS.

A Smart Gift for a Girl Is a Lavellere Set With Her Birthday Stones.

In selecting a gift for the girl graduate the shopper feels only the limitations of the individual purse. The array of suitable presents is comprehensive and bewilderingly beautiful.

Relatives of opulent purse now give jewelry or purses, the latter not always empty, to the young woman who has proven herself a credit to her family.

The jewelry fads of the moment are lavelieres and bracelets. The former is a slender, finely wrought chain with comparatively heavy pendant or pendants. The single pendant is oftenest a fresh water pearl combined with precious or semi-precious stones. If more than one pendant is shown, they are connected by the finely wrought gold mesh, similar to that employed in the chain proper. The correct thing is to give the girl a laveliere set with her birthday stones. For the girl who is fond of wearing brown, however, the topaz is a suitable stone, and for her who loves violet, purple, etc., select an amethyst setting.

The smartest new bracelets are very heavy and quaint looking, set with old fashioned stones, coral, turquoise, jade, onyx, etc. Many cameos are also seen.

Less expensive but equally welcome are the horseshoes, circles, long, rakish crescents and bars of gold filled metal, set with imitation pearls or rhinestones. These are not cheap, either, for a good grade of brilliants in the newest settings costs five dollars.

A set of striking rhinestone buttons or buckles in various sizes makes an acceptable gift. The fad for mesh purses in silver and gold continues, and vanity bags in German silver are most dependable.

Young girls may give their graduate friends the most personal of gifts, like silk stockings, dainty handwrought lingerie, etc. Practical gifts are the new pompadour parasols or a silken scarf for summer evenings.

Young men may give girl graduates only books, flowers or pictures. A photograph or etching of some famous college scene at home or abroad, or a Christy drawing of college life, is a gift which any college girl will appreciate. All the book shops now keep editions of standard works intended especially for commencement day gifts and this list includes some lovely single volumes done in college colors.

Relatives give young men graduates money, which may be sent either in one of the pretty coin boxes of leather, velvet or fancy paper which come for this purpose, or in a coin purse or card case. Pigskin is the approved leather for young men to carry just now. The masculine gift list includes belts, umbrellas, canes, scarf pins (and in these odd stones like jade or lapis lazuli are used), and gloves, preferably natural colored chamois skin.

Young girls may send flowers to male graduates, books and pictures. Very stunning books are gotten out for college youths, including "Prosit," a book of toasts and a collection of college songs and yells.

THE GIRL'S TOILET TABLE

HOW THE MISS IN HER TEENS SHOULD CARE FOR HER BEAUTY.

Simple Implements and Remedies Which She Should Use to Improve Her Hands, Complexion and Hair—A Lotion for Rough Skin.

The toilet table of the girl still in her teens should stand for the proverbial ounce of prevention which is immeasurably more important in the pursuit of beauty than tons of remedies. If the growing girl employs preventive measures, the grown woman will not require the services of beauty specialist, dermatologist or surgeon.

The thoughtful, thrifty mother will make sure that certain simple implements and remedies are found on her daughter's toilet table.

For the care of the hands, she will see that the girl has the following manicuring implements: Thin, curved sharp scissors, a nail file, some orange sticks and a chamois covered polisher. For treating the hands will be needed lemon or a little peroxide of hydrogen for removing ink and similar stains, some white vaseline for softening the thick skin around the nail and a little powder for polishing the nails. If the daughter is sent several times to a first class manicurist and watches the latter's work carefully she will soon be able to manicure her own hands—and her mother's.

For the hair and its care provide a brush with moderately stiff bristles, never a wire brush, which tears the hair while it removes the tangles; a coarse bone or celluloid comb, a simple tonic that will remind the girl to ventilate and massage her scalp nightly, and a shampoo mixture which varies according to the texture and characteristics of the hair and scalp.

Insist that the brush and comb be kept clean. They should be washed more often than the hair. Ordinarily dry hair should be shampooed at least once a month and singed before it is washed. Fix a certain date, like the new moon, and see that the daughter selects a dry, sunshiny day for the shampoo. If the hair is oil, it needs shampooing at least every fortnight or ten days.

Never allow a young girl to wear a rat in order to increase the size of her pompadour. The rat is generally made of dead hair and is the false hair manufacturer's best friend.

Teach the daughter to take down her hair, ventilate or shake it and massage the scalp with a little tonic every night before retiring, as religiously as she washes her face and brushes her teeth. When all girls learn to do this, we will have hair-health indeed.

For the complexion, the most important implement of the young girl's toilet table is her complexion brush, and this should be renewed frequently, when the bristles begin to flatten. Scrubbing the face and the neck with this brush, hot water and pure, unscented soap is the foundation on which all complexion aids are built. Nothing can be done to improve the skin that is not, first of all, clean. The girl who scrubs her neck well into the hair in the back and does not forget her chin in the front will never have the yellowish, cloudy throat which the most expensive linen will not hide.

Complexion lotions should be used sparingly by the growing girl. If the skin is simply rough from much outdoor life and a natural tendency to chapping, try this simple oatmeal lotion:

Take two tablespoonfuls of oatmeal, adding a quart of water, and let boil for ten minutes. Cool and strain, and to the liquid add the juice of one very large lemon or two small ones, and a tablespoonful of alcohol.

Apply this with some antiseptic gauze or a bit of old table linen which is absolutely clean. Leave some of the lotion in the pores to soak in, if you use it at night, or before lying down to rest during the day.

If your skin is very oily, do not wash it incessantly with hot water. Give it a night and morning scrub, but during the day wipe it off with antiseptic gauze or old linen dipped in the following lotion:

Pulverized borax, one ounce; pure glycerine, two ounces; camphor water (not spirits of camphor), two quarts.

Above all things, bear in mind that beauty is built on cleanliness. A girl told me the other day that she paid a hair dresser $1.50 a week to keep her elaborate coiffure up to date, but, believe me, it was wasted money, because there was an ugly black ring around her neck which a little cold cream, followed by a scrubbing with the face brush, could have removed. As it was, the work of the hairdresser only served to emphasize the lack of cleanliness.

ORIENTAL EMBROIDERIES.

From the American Register, London.

The natural biscuit or mode tones of pongee are in hich favor and make an excellent background for Oriental embroideries, having in addition the merit of accommodating themselves to any costume worn with them. An Oxford street house has in stock a superb collection of imported coats of this description, Chinese blues predominating in most of the models and black satin being almost inevitably used to tone down the hues of the embroidery and bring them into harmony with the neutral background.

Handsome ornaments, brandenbourgs, etc., in the color of the pongee, are also much used in connection with the embroideries, and more modish still are big ornaments made from heavy cording covered with the pongee. Hand braiding in soutache is much liked by the great designers, but more ordinary types of machine braiding are regarded askance and left to the cheaper garments.

"If you cannot have handsome braiding have none at all," was the advice of one fashionable tailor consulted upon the subject. "Use some sort of self trimming instead and trust the effect to the lines of the garment and to some original note in color and sleeve finish."

To Clean Tan Leather.

From the New York Herald.

The knowledge that tan leather is hard to clean at home keeps a great many people from wearing it as much as they would like.

Unless one is very careful the efforts of renovating make it become dark and streaked in places.

Heavy tan gloves, which are almost everyone's greatest comfort, can be kept in good condition by taking a damp rag and rubbing it over the surface. This removes the dirt and restores the original color.

Yellow shoes, which no girl considers herself in the latest style without, can be cleaned by putting a few drops of turpentine on a woolen rag and rubbing them evenly all over. When dry, polish with a soft brush and they will look like new.

To Remove Grease Spots From Woolens.

From the Boston Post.

Boil one quart water and to it put five cents' worth of soap bark. Steep on back of stove two hours. Strain it through fine muslin and pour into open mouthed bottle or jar. This quantity may be added to a pailful of warm water when the garment is to be thoroughly washed. If you only wish to remove spots, lay the garment on smooth, clean surface and sponge carefully on both sides of the spot with a little of the liquid; then rinse with clean sponge dipped in lukewarm water, and when nearly dry press on wrong side with warm iron.

Italian Cakes.

Half a cup of butter, warmed but not melted, and the same quantity of sugar, beaten to a cream. Add one by one, beating continuously, four eggs, whites and yolks. At the last beat in very hard half a cup of pastry flour. Pour this mixture to the depth of half an inch in a shallow buttered tin and bake in a moderately quick oven for ten or fifteen minutes. Turn upside down to cool; spread thickly with a firm jam or jelly, preferably strawberry or raspberry, and then overlay this with stiff chocolate icing. When firm, cut into odd shapes, squares, discs, diamonds, triangles, etc.

Maple Ice Cream.

Bring three pints of milk to a scald in a double boiler. Add slowly the well beaten yolks of five eggs with one cup of sugar. Do not allow this to curdle. Have ready half a pound of real maple sugar which has been boiled with a little water until it candies when dropped into ice water. Add this to the custard and stand away to cool. When ready to freeze, add a pint of sweet cream whipped stiff, the beaten whites of five eggs and some finely ground or chopped nuts.

Bean Sandwiches.

Press cold baked beans through a vegetable press or fine colander; allow two tablespoons of finely minced celery, two tablespoons of horseradish, a dash of catsup, lemon juice and made mustard. Cut Boston brown bread into thin slices, spread with the above mixture and serve with midget pickles.

Salad Sandwiches.

Pit and chop a dozen large queen olives; measure and add an equal amount of finely chopped nuts and the same of finely chopped celery. Mix with mayonnaise dressing to the consistency of mush and spread on thinly cut, lightly buttered white bread.

PATENTED U.S.A. OCT-23-1894 MAR-14-1899 MAR-3-1908 ENGLAND JULY-18-1907 CANADA FEB-25-1908

PRICE $3

The ADJUSTO is equally adapted to either average or stout figures. It is skillfully designed to fashionably mold the form into graceful lines.

The ADJUSTO bands, when tightened, lift the abdomen, holding it firmly and supporting it comfortably. Gradually the excess flesh of hips and back is reduced and distributed equally, giving the straight back and new flat hip effect.

For all women obliged to stand a great deal, the ADJUSTO is absolutely without an equal. A wearer who is of medium figure, said recently: "My duties require my standing most of the time and until I wore the ADJUSTO it was difficult to finish my day's work without becoming exhausted. I can now do more work with less exhaustion and feel much better. It supports my figure perfectly and is the strongest and most serviceable corset I have ever worn."

All genuine ADJUSTO Corsets have trade-mark ADJUSTO stamped on inside of left side-steel. This ADJUSTO trade-mark is your protection against imitations.

EBB AND FLOW IN POLITICS.

The phenomenon of the recent city election in which a large number of offended interests combined to defeat the party in power is fairly common. It has repeatedly been commented on by observers of party politics. The classic instance of this sort is found in the defeat of the Gladstone reform administration in 1874.

The ministry had made a record that remains distinguished to this day. It held office for the six years beginning with 1868. The Irish Episcopal church was disestablished, thus remedying a great ecclesiastical injustice. The Irish land laws were reformed. A bill was passed to establish the secrecy of the ballot. A new and improved system of elementary education was set on foot. The demoralizing practice of the sale of army commissions was abolished. The tests at Oxford and Cambridge which admitted only members of the Church of England to a degree were done away with. A trades union bill to moderate restrictions on workmen was adopted. The public health was intrusted to a newly created local government board. The cause of peace was strengthened by the arbitration of the American Alabama claims.

Yet the ministry fell off in popularity. Justice McCarthy explains its decline in his "History of Our Own Times." "The ministry," he says, "made a great many enemies. They came into office pledged to carry out certain reforms and they did carry them out regardless of the offense they gave to class privileges and vested interests. A great reforming administration must always count on making enemies, and enemies whose hostility will be subtle and enduring."

High churchmen had been offended at disestablishment in Ireland and in the abolition of the university tests. Irish protestants and many Englishmen had been scandalized to learn that Gladstone was actually investigating the merits of home rule for Ireland. Vested interests disliked the tendencies shown in the Irish land act. The aristocracy and its allies among the great land owners were outraged by the provision for secrecy of the ballot. What was the use of having tenants if you couldn't vote them as you pleased? Employers objected to the legislation for workmen. Finally the liquor interest was in revolt. The Gladstone government under pressure from a local option alliance had brought in a bill which Mr. McCarthy says "the alliance condemned as feebleness and which the publicans resented as oppression." It increased the penalties for drunkenness and shortened the hours during which public houses could be kept open. Its effect was to concentrate the liquor forces against the ministry.

This combination of special interests was what drove Gladstone from power in 1874 and installed conservative reaction in office. The progressive measures of the Liberal ministry were retained, however, and the old animosities were gradually forgotten so that six years later Gladstone returned to the premiership at the head of a strong majority. This ebb and flow in politics may be unreasonable. It is certainly human.

SOCIAL CONSCIOUSNESS

To a suggestion that social conditions can be bettered by "doing the thing that lies to hand," Miss Jane Addams responded that "individuals seldom see the thing that lies to hand until they first get the social viewpoint."

Miss Addams was speaking of the obligation upon a community to provide playgrounds for children and to use the commercial resources for general social betterment. There was no discrediting of individual philanthropy, but rather the insistence that individual works are stimulated and gain direction by acquiring a better sense of social obligation.

Much the same idea, carried farther, is expressed by Mr. Frederic C. Howe of Cleveland in his book, "The British City." Mr. Howe says of the better government arising in English and Scotch cities, "There is a renaissance of belief in public activity as opposed to private charity."

The same principle is alive with us in America, though here it is not a "renaissance," but a development. The need of the city to do other things for its people than to put them in jail if they do wrong is almost everywhere recognized. Philanthropy and private charity can never be spared from any civilization, but it is being more and more appreciated that a society which requires much charitable relief is wrong. People can see that as soon as society gets to helping the helpless there will not be any helpless.

To socialize individual impulses for the square and kindly thing is really the problem of a community. When a citizen will give dollars to relieve cases of distress that he sees and then will vote against a few cents tax for a country home or for playgrounds and the like, the trouble is simply that he is not "city broke" or "society broke." He is an anomalous Robinson Crusoe.

Social consciousness is the best of all forces. It is as much better than "benevolent feudalism" as benevolent feudalism is better than oppressive feudalism. Its activities vary from bettering the moral tone to raising economic standards. In one phase it puts into practice in government the spirit that intelligent citizens exert in social settlement work. In another field it creates for a city that feeling of loyalty which Mr. Howe thus records in a charter on Glasgow: "'You seem to be proud of your city,' I suggested. 'Of course, I am,' he responded, 'Glasgow sells me gas (manufactured) at two shillings a thousand. It gives me telephone service at little more than half what it used to cost from a private company. It sells me water and electricity and does a lot of other things. As for the Glasgow trams (street railways) they beat the world.'"

Whatever the manifestation of this social consciousness is, the proof is the same—that public activity is much better than private charity, that it is more effective than isolated effort, and that one can seldom see the thing that lies to hand until one first gets the social viewpoint.

THE ELDERLY PRIME MINISTERS.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who died Wednesday, became prime minister at the age of 69. It is unprecedented in American history for a President to assume office at that age. The nearest approach was the first Harrison who was 68 when he was inaugurated. He died the next month. No man has ever served as President after reaching the age of 70. Buchanan, who came the nearest to doing so, retired when he was 69.

The average age of American Presidents at their inauguration, 54, falls decidedly below the British practice. Washington, Jefferson, Madison and J. Q. Adams were inaugurated at 57. In recent times the age has been lower. Garfield was 49, Arthur 50, Cleveland 47, Harrison 55, McKinley 53 and Roosevelt 42. The youngest prime minister in recent years, the Earl of Rosebery, took office at 47. Mr. Balfour, another precocious youth, was 54. But Gladstone was 59 before his distinguished service as prime minister began. He took office again at 71 and continued until 77. His last term began at 83 and continued for two years. Even then he wrote the queen that his general health was good and only his impaired hearing and vision impelled him to resign. Salisbury entered upon his last term as premier at 65 and retired at 72. Disraeli's spectacular administration began when he was 70 and ended when he was 76. Palmerston was 71 when he died in office.

It has happened that in recent years few Presidents have long survived the expiration of their term. Andrew Johnson died two years after leaving the presidency, Grant eight years and Hayes twelve. Arthur died the year following the expiration of his term and Harrison eight years after giving up office. England has had a somewhat similar experience. The United States has one living ex-President, the United Kingdom two living ex-prime ministers. Campbell-Bannerman died only a few days after resigning. Salisbury survived one year, Gladstone four. Disraeli died the year following his defeat. The Earl of Derby resigned the premiership in 1867 and died the next year. The death of Palmerston in office took place in 1865.

However, the theory is not yet established that the work of a great executive position is necessarily disastrous to health. It is quite possible that ex-Presidents and ex-prime ministers die from the same commonplace causes that are responsible for the carrying off of elderly Pullman porters and hod carriers.

NEGROES IN THE CAMPAIGN.

A large gathering of negroes in Philadelphia a few days ago denounced President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft because of the Brownsville affair and "resolved" to turn the race, if possible, against Mr. Taft in the coming Presidential campaign. This gathering was called "The National Political Convention of Negroes." Among the delegates were some negroes of influence, including prominent churchmen. Yet this movement may be said to have been fostered more largely by Senator Foraker and those who are working with him in opposition to Mr. Taft's candidacy than by any spontaneous sentiment among the negroes because of the Brownsville incident. The opponents of Mr. Taft are making all the capital they can out of the gathering and its declarations. They note that in several close Northern states, presumably necessary to the election of the next President, the balance of power is held by the negro voters. They "point with pride" to the threat of the negroes to vote for the Democratic nominee in case Secretary Taft is nominated by the Republicans.

The Brownsville issue has not yet been officially settled, but it has been so fully discussed that it is generally understood by those who care to understand it. The administration has fully justified its course from the military point of view, which is the only point of view from which the President's action should be judged. Several bills are pending in Congress looking to the reinstatement of some of the troops involved, and one of these has the indorsement of the President. As for Mr. Taft, he was not responsible for the dismissal of the troops, although, as Secretary of War, he has been connected with the execution of the orders of the Chief Executive.

But it matters not what the action of Congress may be, for the issue—so far as an issue can be raised—has been made up against the President and Mr. Taft. For the time being the political effect of the controversy is the matter of chief interest. But there is nothing in the outlook that should disturb the Republican party in the least. Perhaps some negro votes will be lost; but they will be comparatively few, for this is not a race question, but a military question, and the negroes as a class understand the distinction pretty thoroughly in spite of the systematic efforts to deceive or confuse them. It is not an easy thing to divert the main body of negro voters from the party that has stood by the race to the party that has been opposed to political equality. Indeed, it cannot be done. And as for the class that may be induced to oppose Mr. Taft, it will be offset by votes that will go to the Secretary because of this same negro problem—a consideration that is just as unreasonable when applied in Mr. Taft's favor as when used against him, for this is not a race issue.

Incidentally, the New York Age, the leading paper of the negro race, says: "The negroes of this country have no better friend in public life to-day than William H. Taft. Judging from all that he has done and all that he has said in their behalf and in behalf of the dark races for whom he has acted and spoken, no man is more entitled to their gratitude than he is." This agitation has not retarded Mr. Taft's progress in the preliminary campaign and it will not endanger his chances after his nomination.

THE GROWING OF THE PLANT.

And he said, So is the Kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed unto the ground;

And should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how.

For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear. —Mark 4, 26-28.

A DAY'S TRAMP AFTER BIRDS

From the New York Evening Post.

Washington—An English ornithologist and photographer of wild bird life, Richard Kearton of England, has given Washington within the last week some diversion from the game of politics.

President Roosevelt took Mr. Kearton through Rock Creek park and gave him practically his first glimpse of American wild-bird life. The migrants had not yet come in full force to the northern woodlands when the President and his guest made through the valley and up and down the cliffs of Rock creek. A few days after his Rock creek trip Mr. Kearton went up the Potomac valley some distance with Dr. A. K. Fisher, E. W. Nelson of the biological survey, and E. B. Clark, also an ornithologist. This is Mr. Clark's story of the day's tramp and observations:

"We has an Englishman with us who knew American birds from the books. Almost instantly the thought came of John Burroughs tramping all over Southern England trying to find a nightingale, and to find him when he was in tuneful mood. Richard Kearton is willing to tramp all over the Columbia district to see a mocking bird. He wanted to hear him sing, but at best this was a matter of chance, for the singing season was yet young. The mocker, to the European, unquestionably is our best known bird. He fills in interest the place on the other side that is filled on this side by the nightingale, or perhaps equally with the nightingale the skylark, 'whose tryst is in the clouds.'

"We crossed Cabin John's bridge over the beautiful gorge, wavy with the greening tree tops of early spring. Out of the depths of the gorge came the song sparrow's music, almost, if not quite, the purest bird music that the American fields can call their own. The Englishman went into a melting mood at the song sparrow's note. He kept it with him in cadence all day long, whistled it occasionally to make sure he was retaining it, and stopping every time that one of the birds sprang from the roadside to listen and to make sure that memory was holding the melody intact.

"At the end of the Long bridge eight or ten birds were seen feeding in a tree top. The foliage was not yet far enough advanced to obscure the vision. The birds were pine finches, akin to our gold finches. They did not know they had distinguished visitors from abroad, interested not only in their plumage, in their notes, in their habit of life, but in that humbler thing of what they were having for breakfast. The pine finches held us only a little while, and on we went along the early morning road, hoping for a mocking bird, and yet more than half content with sparrows, bluebirds, robins, purple grackles and the rest of the early spring comers.

"Down at the left of the road was a scrub growth of trees and beyond that was the canal and the broad river. We went into the trees leaving the highway with its sparrows and bluebirds and other commoner folk, hoping that some rarity would show itself to give full payment for a 3,000-mile trip across the waters to get acquainted with American bird life at its best. In the thicket we did not find the mocking bird, but we found something that, in beauty at least, more than compensated for the absence of the sober-clad Southern songster. A male cardinal, firered crested and proud and tuneful, was there. He is the bird that sets the woods on fire in the summer time and melts the snow in winter time, for all seasons are alike to this hardy bird in glowing livery.

"Up from the river bank came a whistling note that at times was half a warble. 'Another cardinal,' I said, but our tramping companion from the biological survey said, 'No, it is a Carolina wren.' It was easy enough then to understand why it was that President Roosevelt once said he had the hardest kind of work to distinguish between the note of the cardinal and the note of the Carolina wren. To the ear not absolutely attuned to all the shades and variations of woodland music, there are bars of the cardinal's song and bars of the Carolina wren's song that are identical.

"We caught a glimpse of the disappearing tail feather of a bird that flashed through an evergreen tree, heavy boughed and thick-leaved. I went over to the tree and knocked gently on the trunk. The bird came out and perched on a dead branch not ten feet above our heads. It was a mocking bird. The fact was whispered to Mr. Kearton, who had found what he wanted. The mocker paid absolutely no attention to us save to turn his head once and to look down probably curiously wondering what three hulking fellows found in him to arouse in them such an abundance of impertinent curiosity. We were all on tiptoe of hope that the mocker would sing, but never a note sang he. Then Kearton began an imitation of the mocking bird's native note, as perhaps he had heard it from a hapless cage victim or perhaps had read it when reduced to written music.

"The mocker paid no heed, for evidently his day at singing had not come. He rubbed his indifference into us by calmly reaching up with one foot and scratching the side of his head. He simply would not sing, but we stayed there hoping against hope, until finally, tiring of our company long before we had tired of his, he left his perch and made for the Virginia shore. But our British visitor had seen his mocking bird, and doubtless he will tell of it and write of it when he gets back into the country of the nightingale and the chaffinch.

"On the bare branches of a sycamore we found a company of cedar birds, called the cherry birds or wax wings, if you will. These birds have a delicacy of plumage beauty not approached by any other American species. They were gathered in numbers, but were holding no "windy converse," as were the blackbirds of the poet. We went on hoping to add the meadow lark to our list, that our English friend might hear the clear sweet whistling note which belongs to the open fields, and belongs in spirit to the early spring. No meadow lark was there where scores of meadow larks should have been. We found the chicadees and the redwing blackbirds and more cardinals, the phoebes, and heard again and again the music of the Carolina wren. It was a good bird day for the early season, and content came to the Englishman."

Stung Again!

From the Chicago News.

"I am tired of being called down every time I bring you a quart of milk," blurted the exasperated milkman. "I'll take the starch out of you some day."

"Better take it out of your milk first," retorted the fiery housewife as she slammed the door with a mighty report.

BESIDE THE BIG MUDDY.

MISSOURI will have to become as thickly populated as China before the bluffs along its big river lose that aspect which is now more nearly the primeval in nature than anything else in the long settled counties through which the Missouri runs. Many a day will it be before tillable land is so scarce that the steep, tree covered slopes and steeper bare rocky cliffs of the river bluffs will be shorn of growth, blasted down, terraced and made to hold the soil necessary for the growing of crops.

Of all the walks about the old town which is my home and about other old Missouri river towns where I visit, the most attractive are along the river bluffs, either a-top along the crest of them or at the base. It is rough, hard going, up and down, through brush, briar and bramble, in mud or over rocks. But the unfrequented character of wood and glen, overhanging precipice, dark cave and moss-lined grotto, spring, branch, slough and broad river hard by, make worthy recompense with the wild things in and of them for all the toil of exploration.

It is Sunday in the middle of the afternoon that I incline to walk the bluffs. I have a stout hickory walking stick, five feet long and one and a half inches in diameter at the big end. It is a help in climbing up or down and is handy to have should one come upon a snake as one sometimes does in these parts. I have in my pockets a pipe, smoking tobacco and matches, also the metal bowl of a store bought dipper, with the wooden handle sawed off, so it is conveniently pocketed, ready for use in drinking out of the many springs in the hills. These are all my impedimenta and all any one might need.

There is something of the languor of the really arrived springtime in the air and I walk slowly down the street, turn into the river landing road and soon come to the boat landing, the real beginning of my decided walk.

There is a crowd at the landing, young folks and older folks, as there always is on pleasant Sunday afternoons. But my humor is not for crowds. Where I am going there is slight chance of any to follow, and I pass on across the wooden bridge over the branch from the old town public spring which ripples into the river at the landing. And over the bridge I come into the first stage of my walk along the base of the bluffs close to the edge of the big, swift, swirling river.

From this point for fully a mile and a half the river's deepest current sweeps along at the very base of overhanging bluffs. Between water's edge and base of cliff or wooded steep is a narrow, shelving beach—too narrow for walking along during periods of high water—rock-strewn with bowlders, fragments and gravelly debris from the parent strata above. One walks or slides or scrambles in the afternoon always in the shade. A little distance from the boat landing there is no sound but of the river's rush, the chirp of many birds and the wind song among the cliffs and trees. It makes one solemn to walk there alone. I come from the narrow glen of the town spring branch with a few steps to the first of the bulging rock buttresses of the big river bluffs that, with curtained walls of steeply slanting, green foliage, spotted now with white of dogwood bloom and purple of redbud, follow one after the other in stately single parade far down the river. Hard by the rock base of the first protruding buttress I come upon a little grass-grown mound all speckled with the golden spots of yellow primroses growing there lustily in the shade. I stop to admire and light my pipe. Wild, glowing but tender things they are, and like all such, more beautiful to me growing just as they are, to be let alone.

I walk slowly on the uneven and sometimes unstable shingle and note the more than frequent presence of semi-transparent flint among the myriad bits of stone. It abounds in pockets and nodules in the softer limestone of these bluffs. Prime material it was for making arrow heads and spearpoints in savage days before the white man came. That the Indians used it for such manufacture all about here abundant evidence testifies. The most probable origin of the name of the old river town of Arrow Rock is the abundance of this arrow-making material in the rock of the bluff the town rests upon, and that the site was much resorted for the manufacture of arrow heads. Long before the town was founded the bluff was called by the Indians "The Arrow Rock," and they handed the name to the whites who came to look, to conquer and to settle. There are legends more romantic as to the origin of the name, but none so probable.

It takes such a walk, so colse to the big river, within hand reach of its swiftest, deepest water, to give one something of the proper impression of the Missouri. The power, the majesty and the awesomeness of it. River born as I am and used to it as I am, the feeling of this always comes to me when I am alone in the presence of the river. I feel like taking off my hat and standing bare headed and reverent.

The river is rising this Sunday afternoon as I walk its banks. Driftwood, debris and flotsam float by and the moving surface of the wide water is streaked with long lines of foam. From anywhere along the beach I walk there is, down stream, a water vista straight away for twelve miles to where the river seemingly ends against a dim blue wall of hills, the hills of Cooper county, that turn the waters in the direction of the east.

Clouds of white, pale blue and yellow butterflies flutter at the water's edge and sometimes rising fill the air in front of me with flower-like flakes of some fairy snowstorm. Under a great bowlder, fallen some day long past from parent cliff above, I come upon a little spring from which clear water trickles down into the river. Someone has scooped out a basin the size of an ordinary wash bowl at its beginning under the edge of the overhanging rock, which is filled to the brim with water so clear that every tiny scrap in its bottom is marvelously magnified. I take my cup and drink of this water, finding it as cold and good as it looks to be.

An alluvial mound at the base of the bluff attracts me and I climb up there, pulling myself upward by hanging on to tough grasses and swinging limbs of bush. The top joins to the concave declivity of the weather-stained and moss-covered wall of rock and I walk in thick growth of ferns that reach above my knees. Five varieties of the fern I note there. Some time when the women folk uptown want ferns I will know where to come and get a bushel basket full of them.

A bit further and a great rent in the bluffs marks a ravine that penetrates to the river from the back country. The rocky shingle is covered with the deposit of the ravine watershed, and through this a clear, bold little stream cuts a deep ditch to the river. Across the ditch, as well as though mankind had intended a bridge, the river in some past time of flood has laid a tremendous, smooth, cottonwood tree trunk, across which it is easy to walk to firm footing on the other side.

I lean against the big cottonwood, refill and relight my pipe, and watch the dancing brook below me. I see a sizable minnow down there in a pool below a tiny cataract. Then I dream a moment and awake aware of some creature coming down the bed of the branch. Behold! a big, fat, brown muskrat comes pattering along with a stick in its mouth. Of a sudden it is aware of me and—scat!—it drops the stick, scuttles to the river a dozen feet away in a long brown streak of a scuttle, hits the water head first, "kerplunge!" and is gone.

I decide to explore awhile within the glen of the muskrat ravine and climb the bank to higher ground. I pass through a portal arch of big trees with high up interlacing foliage as one would into a great columned temple. The awakened spring has livened the sunbeams of the forest with buzzing winged things that poise and dart in the light and warmth of it;—motes and specks and larger winged bits of life, even the warrior beetle of which the poet wrote:

> And down the listed sunbeam rides resplendent,
> In steelblue mail and shield.

But there is more than columned trees, sunbeams and warmth enlivened insects to please the eye and glow the mind in that quiet glen. There are grassy meads and mounds about which rills of clear water circle, whereon wild flowers grow. This writer knows nothing of scientific names of these, but loves them all the better because he knows them only by the homely names they bear among his own people. There are wood violets, thousands of them, in clusters, groups and great beds solid with the color of them; some white as the snowdrop; some pale blue and lilac; some a deeper, darker, richer blue and purple and some a purple so deep red and rich that the blue of it is overmastered and is but the tint that softens. Here and there, but rarely, however, I come upon a pale yellow violet that I do not recall having seen the like before in the woods. In the more shadowed, damp and moist seclusions the May-apple spreads its ample leaves and in the center of them shows the dark reddish brown of the sheath of its coming flower. There are green stretches starred with the pearl white five-point stars of Easter posies and the massed white of regiments of "Dutchman's Breeches" show in the open glades, fringed near the tangle of brush and shrub with the gentle purpled blue of the "Sweet Wiliams."

Far up the glen I drink from a spring and return to enjoy the pleasure of review, refreshed, renewed and reappreciative, and then down the river bank I continue. A short walk on and a dip in the crest of the bluff line betokens the coming to the river of another ravine with its tiny stream. Very tiny indeed is this one. Almost at river's edge it drips in crystal beads over shelves of rock, like it was dripping down stairs. I climb and go to the fountain at its head. No sooner do I drink than from far away, faint, but clear, I hear the ringing of a bell. I know that bell by the tone of it. It is the first bell for supper at the home tavern. Half an hour and the same bell ringing will betoken supper ready. Away from bluff and ravine and across unland wheat fields, through an old orchard, outdoing itself this year in the promise of its bloom; I walk briskly, for a stroll beside the big river, while a pastime of comtemplative meditation, also is productive of other inward emotions—the pangs of hunger.

ROLLINS BINGHAM.

TO HONOR POE'S MEMORY.

January 19, 1908, the Hundredth Anniversary of His Birth.

The hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edgar Allen Poe comes in the early part of next winter. Preparations are already being made in Boston, his birthplace, in Baltimore, the home of his ancestors, in Richmond, the scene of his boyhood activities, and elsewhere for exercises, addresses and commemorative features.

Boston, in particular, although lampooned unmercifully by the melancholy quill driver, who satirized the good old town under the name of Frogpondium, will do its full share toward honoring his memory. The celebration will not be perfunctory, though the New England capital has been having a run of centenaries in the last few years. In 1903 arrived Ralph Waldo Emerson's hundredth anniversary which was recognized, as all the world remembers, with proper exercises wherein the wise from several continents got together and discussed all things which they understood and the many things which they failed to understand in the philosophy of the author of "Brahma." Remembrance of the natal days of Longfellow and Hawthorne came on apace and brought to Boston delegations of literary experts who showed that the good poet of the children and the simple in heart was not, after all, so altogether contemptible in the critic's eye, and that the author of "The Scarlet Letter" deserved certainly from his achievements and international reputation a red-letter celebration. Only last fall was ushered in the centennial anniversary of the birth of Whittier, the most New England of American poets.

Now Poe's turn is coming. Boston evidently ought to do something for him, even though, just as the artist Whistler persistently denied that he was born in Lowell, Mass., so the Southern writer was inclined to try to fool people of his own time into thinking that he was born in Baltimore.

The Only Basis of Society.

Channing.

Few men suspect, perhaps no man comprehends, the extent of the support given by religion to every virtue. No man, perhaps, is aware how much our moral and social sentiments are fed from this fountain; how powerless conscience would become without the belief of a God; how palsied would be human benevolence, were there not the sense of a higher benevolence to quicken and sustain it; how suddenly the whole social fabric would quake, and with what a fearful crash it would sink into hopeless ruin, were the ideas of a Supreme Being, of accountableness, and of a future life, to be utterly erased from every mind.

Sign of Trouble.

From the Chicago News.

"Can I sell you 'The Stamp Language'?" asked the persistent young book agent.

"No, sonny," drawled the old farmer, "that is only one stamp language I understand."

"And what is that, sir?"

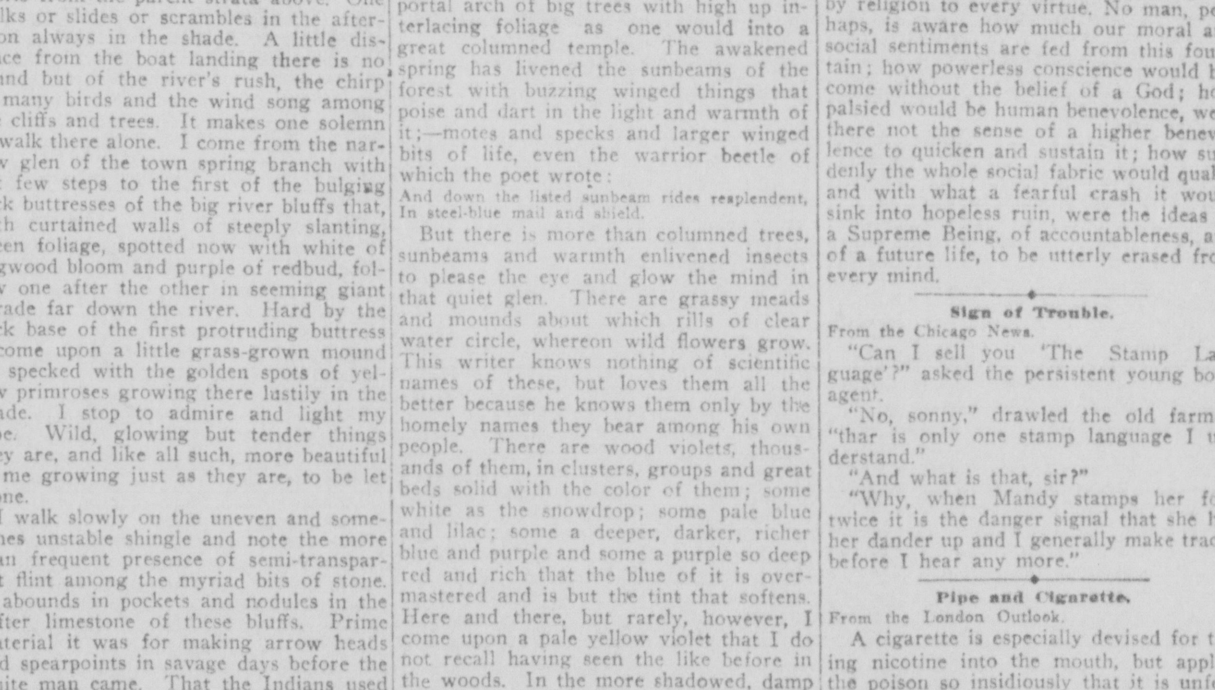
"Why, when Mandy stamps her foot twice it is the danger signal that she has her dander up and I generally make tracks before I hear any more."

Pipe and Cigarette.

From the London Outlook.

A cigarette is especially devised for tilting nicotine into the mouth, but applies the poison so insidiously that it is unfelt. The punishment would aptly fit the crime if every boy found cigarette smoking were compelled to smoke a new clay pipe filled with shag. Such homeopathic treatment would be the most effective of cures.

A NEW ENGLISH CANDIDATE FOR INTERNATIONAL MOTOR BOAT SUPREMACY.



Unless sportsmen in the United States have something better up their sleeves in the line of motor racing boats than the Dixie, which won the British International cup last year, they stand a very good chance of relinquishing possession of the blue ribbon of motor boat racing. A boat built for the especial purpose of taking the cup back to England has just been put through her preliminary canters at Monte Carlo, where she won the principal event in fine style.

When the Dixie went to England last year and ran away from the other entries it opened the eyes of our English cousins. How quickly they acted on the "hunch" will be seen when it is known that plans for a boat to bring the cup back to England were prepared two days after the race. The boat was launched in February last, is known as the Walseley-Siddleley, and the constructors are the Wolseley Tool and Motor Car company.

In building their boat the Wolseley company decided to make the stanchness a prime consideration and the launch they turned out does not exhibit the fine lines, narrow beam and excessively light displacement in so marked a degree as the ordinary type of racing motor boat. An effort has been made to get the necessary speed out of a very large installment of power, giving a large proportion of horse power to displacement. Thus the Wolseley-Siddeley has engines capable of generating 400 horse power on a displacement of only seventy hundred weight. This gives the unprecedented proportion of 5.7 horse power per hundred weight of displacement. On her trials she averaged thirty knots an hour and made one-half knot more in a short sprint.

The length of the boat is 39 feet 4 inches, the beam 6 feet and the maximum draught (at the propellers) 2 feet 8 inches. The hull is of timber throughout, and is built up of three skins of wood, the inner skin of a special oak laid vertically, the center skin of the same oak laid diagonally, the outer skin of mahogany laid horizontally. The skins, between each of which is an insertion of waterproof silk, are riveted to oak timbers spaced 4½ inches, and between the timber the skins are bound together with copper wire. The outer planking is in one length from stem to stern; the frames are continued from gunwale to gunwale. The main foundation of the boat is a hog-piece of Oregon pine cut in one length from stem to stern.

With the exception of the engine space and cockpit, about fifteen feet long, the boat is decked fore and aft, while this space is covered by a waterproof canvas hood. The water lines are straight for a distance of twelve feet abaft the stem, which is nearly perpendicular. Above the water line there is considerable flare to lift the bow in a seaway. As the sections go aft they begin to round and then to flatten, until the delivery is practically flat, with a big tumble home above the water line.

The Motor Yacht club of Great Britain already has sent a challenge for the cup on behalf of the Wolseley-Siddeley, and the race will take place in America in August or September. The exact date has not yet been fixed. The cup, which originally was presented by Alfred Harmsworth, now Lord Northcliffe, has been won three times by Great Britain, once by France and last year by the United States.

AT PARTING.

For a day and a night Love sang to us, played with us,
Folded us round from the dark and the light;
And our hearts were fulfilled of the music he made with us,
Made with our hearts and our lips while he stayed with us,
Stayed in midpassages his pinions from flight
For a day and a night.

From his foes that kept watch with his wings had he hidden us,
Covered us close from the eyes that would smite,
From the feet that had tracked and the tongues that had chidden us,
Sheltering in shade of the myrtles forbidden us,
Spirit and flesh growing one with delight
For a day and a night.

But his wings will not rest, and his feet will not stay for us;
Morning is here in the joy of its height
With his breath has he sweetened a night and a day for us;
Now let them pass, and the myrtles make way for us;
Love can but last in us here at his height
For a day and a night.

STARBEAMS.

Moving day comes this week, and to make it worse it falls on a Friday.

Those boasting loudly that the fruit crop is "safe" give little heed to the May blizzard into reckoning.

This is the season when the problem of a safe and sane spraying attachment for the lawn hose again presents itself.

There seems to be no doubt that the Daughters of the American Revolution are pretty good scrappers themselves.

Strawberries have been on the market several weeks. What is more important, strawberries will soon be good to eat.

The latest expression in the 1908 word crop is "notel." It was first used in Cincinnati, and means a person who has no telephone.

Also, this is the week when a Queen of the May is to be elected. The primary law does not extend to the election of Queen of the May.

Kansas wheat and fruit are looking so fine that it is time for the alert Kansas correspondent to discover that the green bugs are once more at large, and that the orchards are being devastated by the San Jose scale.

Congress's refusal to make appropriation for two new battle ships must not be regarded in the light of any disapproval of the naval programme. It merely means that some of the congressmen think, as ex-Alderman Groves would say, that the President "ain't the whole cheese."

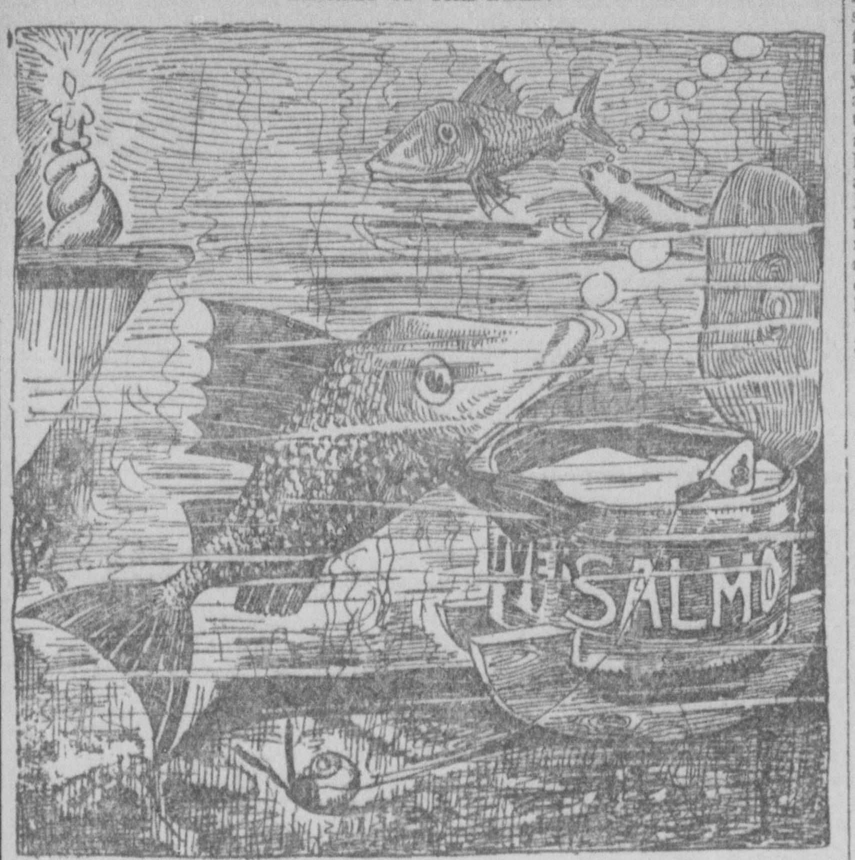
George H. Lorimer, the author of "The Letters of a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," is no friend to the high-flown. Discussing social veneer at a debate in Philadelphia, Mr. Lorimer said that in the education of girls the practical did not receive sufficient prominence. "A young friend of mine," said the shrewd humorist, "got married last month. He said to me the other day: 'When I married Mamie I thought she was an angel. But' he added, 'I soon found out my mistake.' 'Disappointed?' I asked. 'Disappointed? Nit!' he cried. 'I found she was a good cook.'"

Morris K. Jesup used to tell about an old farmer who had been famed as a miser all over Connecticut. The farmer's cousin died and the old man attended the reading of the will. In one of the later codicils a certain eight-acre field was left him. As the bequest was read out, the farmer sat up in his chair, rubbed his hands and smiled delightedly about the room. But the lawyer, reading on, made known that the gray mare then grazing in said field was bequeathed to a nephew. At this news the farmer clacked his lips in rage and piped excitedly: "Then she's eatin' my grass."

Frank Ruch, the keeper of the buffalo herd in the national forest of Oklahoma, is credited with this: "Once a Kansas farmer met on the hot, dusty road a homesteader pushing on excitedly toward the Cherokee strip. 'Whar ye bound?' said the farmer. 'Fer a hunderd and sixtey acres o' free land in the strip,' was the reply. And the man vanished in the glitter of dust and sunshine. A month or two went by and on the same dusty road the Kansas farmer met the homesteader returning. 'Hello,' he said, 'what ye done with them hunderd and sixty acres?' The homesteader pointed his whip proudly toward his mule team. 'See them mules?' said he. 'Wall, I traded eighty acres of my claim fer 'em.' 'What ye do with the other eighty?' 'Don't gimme away,' was the reply, 'but the feller was a tenderfoot, an' I run in the other eighty acres on him without his knowin' it.'"

Valuable light on the perplexing question of biblical chronology is believed to have been thrown by a discovery recently made in Egypt and described by E. B. Knobel in a paper read before the Royal Astronomical society of England. In the book of the prophet Jeremiah it is recorded that after the overthrow of the Jewish monarchy of Nebuchadnezzar a number of the principal inhabitants who were left fled into the land of Egypt. Some of these, it would appear from recently translated papyri, founded an important colony at the first cataract—Syene, the modern Assouan, where a little later they built a temple. Some papyri discovered at this place and translated recently by Prof. Sayce and Mr. Crowley contain contracts dated according to both the Egyptian and Jewish calendars. As the Egyptian calendar is perfectly well known, it is now possible to reconstruct the Jewish calendar, and this task Mr. Knobel has achieved, showing that the Jewish calendar in use at the time of these papyri was one derived, not from an actual observation of the first appearance of the new moon, but from calculation. This calculation was clearly based upon a knowledge of the fact that nineteen solar years contain an exact number of lunar months, a fact made use of in the "golden number" of the Episcopal prayer-book tables for finding Easter. The discovery of this cycle is usually ascribed to Meton, the Greek, but it is now clear that it was in regular use among the Jews long before his time.

FAIRIES OF THE DEEP.



Mother Pike (to Little Piker)—What fairy story do you want me to tell you to-day?

Little Piker—Either Little Red Herring Hood or Octo-Puss in Boots.

The MAY POLE.

HERE is a May pole planted in a park, gay with vari-colored streamers, surmounted by a garland of flowers, supported by a tiny maiden crowned with woven blossoms, and by her a king, a boy scarcely larger, and crowned in like manner. Around it are some twenty children, in fresh white dresses and bright sashes, their pretty faces serious with effort, as they weave the streamers in and out in their graceful dance. "An old custom," you say. Old indeed; Do you guess how old? Well, that pole is the lineal descendant of the ancient Druidical monoliths, and of the Egyption obelisks. It is an offshoot from the Tree of Life, Yggdrasil. It is as old as humanity; older than history. On the one hand we have derived from these ancient upright flame-shaped stones of Egypt and of the Druids—which were identical in meaning, though so far apart in the place and time of their origin—the spires which adorn our Christian churches; on the other, this Maypole, the sport of children.

All of us are by instinct fire worshippers. It was in the heart of the primitive man, as in the heart of the baby in arms, to stretch out his hands for the warm sun and the leaping fire. More still, the very beasts, the dog that bays the moon and basks in the sun, the cat on the hearth-rug—nay, the plants even—seem to share in this universal instinct.

All human groups of primitive fire worshippers or sun worshippers (which is the same thing) had four great festivals—the winter solstice, which came toward the last of December; the summer solstice, about June 21, and the two equinoxes, fall and spring. And the manner of celebration was substantially the same for all four. At every season a great fire was lighted, and on at least three of the celebrations a pole was carried in procession, crowned with garlands and streamers and planted in the town meeting place with great ceremony. We have kept the four great festivals and Christianized them, changing their dates slightly in some cases; but we have in every case kept some reminiscence of the old manner of celebration. The midwinter pole has become a Christmas tree. The Christmas fire is the Yule log. The midsummer pole no longer exists, though the custom of planting it died less than a century ago. But on midsummer eve, which we call the Feast of St. John, the peasants of the Old World still light mighty bonfires on every hilltop and through the flames the plighted lovers leap, hand in hand. In Ireland, Scotland and England the fires are lighted also in the fall, at a festival that corresponds in a general way to the harvest home and falls on All Hallow eve. And in nearly every land the May pole is still planted yearly for the children. The great log that used to be dragged out at this season and burned as a symbol of the death of winter is never seen now. It has perished from the May day celebrations, as the ribbon-crowned pole has perished from the other three festivals. But there is enough evidence of its former existence to prove that in its origin our May day is an outgrowth of fire worship.

If further evidence were needed it is found in the ancient Celtic name for the May day—Beul-tinne. Beul, who is identical with the Baal of the Bible, and with Belinus (another name for Apollo), is merely the sun. He was propritiated, at each of the four solar festivals, by an offering of fire and sometimes by burnt offerings. At Christmas and midsummer, the times of the turning of the sun in his course, he was represented by a great wheel, which was covered with straw and taken to the top of a high hill. The straw was lighted and the blazing wheel, rolling at full speed down the hill, must surely have looked not unlike the sun shooting from its sphere.

In the days of its dignity, says an old pamphlet, the May-pole was a May-column, a permanent monument, set up in the Ey-commons, or Fields of May. Here our ancestors held an annual assembly, and at the foot of the column justice was done. Here the people, if they saw cause, deposed and punished their judges and rulers. Here the "may-or," the chief magistrate, was appointed to office. His "mace" or scepter, was merely a miniature Maypole; his crown a copy of the garland, which, when hung at the top of the column, was a signal for the convening of the people. After the growth of Christianity, the celebration took on quite another tone.

"Against Maie, every parishe, towne and villiage, assemble themselves together * * * and either going all together, or devyding themselves into companies, they goe, some to the woods and groves, some to the hills and mountaines * * * where they spend all the night in pastymes, and in the morning they return, bringing with them birche, bowes, and braunches of trees to deck their assemblies withall." * * * "But their chieftest jewell they bring from thence is their May poole, which they bring home with great veneration, as thus: They have twentie or fourtie yoke of oxen, every oxe having a sweet nosegay of flowers tied on the tippe of his hornes. And these oxen draw home this Maie poole * * * which is covered all over with flowers and herbes, and bound around with stringes from the top to the bottome, and sometimes painted with variable colores, with two or three hundred men, women and children following it with great devotion. And thus being reared up, with handkerchiefs and flagges streaming from the toppe, they straw the ground aboute it, and sette up somer haules, bowers and arbours hard by it. And then they fall to banquet and feast, to leap and daunce about it."

May-day was sometimes called Furry-day, which is supposed to be a corruption of Flora's day, and there was a feature of the occasion called the Furry dance, which was performed to the rhythm of an old song:

Robin Hood and Little John
 They both are gone to the fair,
And we'll go to the merry green wood
 To see what they do there.
For we were up as soon as any day
 For to fetch the summer home,
The summer and the May, oh,
 For the summer now is come!
Where are those Spaniards
 That make so great a boast?
They shall eat the gray goose feather (the arrow)
 And we will eat the roast.
As for brave St. George,
 St. George he was a knight;
Of all the knights in Christendom
 St. Georgie is the right.
God bless Aunt Mary Moses,
 And all her powers and might,
And send us peace in Merry England
 Both day and night.

This sounds a good bit like nonsense, but there is no little meaning behind it. Robin Hood, like William Tell, is a person by no means historical. Indeed, the two are generally conceded to be one man, and that man a disguised sun-god, with his sure arrows. Disguised Robin certainly is, in a tangle of legends quite impossible to unravel, but there seems little doubt that, outlaw and thief as he became, he was once a genuine sun-god. And in his connection with the Furry dance of May, and with the other jollities of the season, we find both fresh evidence of the solar character of the feast and the origin of the May king and queen. The Furry dance was incorporated in time with another similar dance, called the Morris. And with the two was a sort of play or mummery of Robin Hood and Maid Marian, who were leaders in the dance. Maid Marian representing, no doubt, on this occasion, the goddess Flora, is, of course, a fit mate for Robin Hood in his character of sun god.

	L.	S.	D.
Item, Payed to the Mynstrels and the Hobbyhorse upon Maie Day..........	0	8	0
Item, payed to the Morrys Daunsers and the Mynstrels, mete and drink........	0	8	4
Payed to them Sonday after May Day...	0	0	20
Pd. to the painter for paynting of their cotes	0	2	8

With the growth of the Puritan power in England the May feasts and Morris dances were forbidden.

And harmless Maypoles all were railed upon,
As if they were the towers of Babylon.

It was a matter for severe punishment to try in any way to follow the old customs of the day. King James's "Book of Sports" restored the Lady and the Hobby Horse, the Maypoles and the dances, but to some extent the spirit had departed from the old customs, and their observance by people of mature years gradually ceased. Only so late as last year, however, the genuine old Morris dance was performed in Scotland with great gravity, spirit and splendor. So hard do old customs die.

The DISAPPEARING DOLLARS.

TEN silver dollars, and every one was mine;
Met a friend I knew once, then there were nine.

She thanked me for the flowers, then there were eight.

Eight silver dollars; threatened with replevin:
Got a slight extension, then there were seven.

Seven silver dollars; I felt a wish to mix
In a game of seven-up, then there were six.

Six silver dollars; thought we'd take a drive:
Went around the block once, then there were five.

Five silver dollars, rolling on the floor:
One found the ventilator, then there were four.

Four silver dollars; as thirsty as could be:
Forgot to pick my change up, then there were three.

Three silver dollars; feeling pretty blue:
Saw the "Lights of Pittsburg," then there were two.

Two silver dollars; thought I'd have some fun:
Ate a midnight supper, and then there was one.

One silver dollar; the tale is nearly run:
Bet it on a "sure thing," and then there was none.

"MOONSHINE" IN OKLAHOMA.

Illicit Stills Are Numerous in the New State.

"There are at least ten, and perhaps twelve moonshine stills now running in the Eastern district of Oklahoma. They have been running for many years and they will continue to run for many more," was the startling statement made by the marshal of the Eastern district recently.

There are numerous moonshine stills running in that section of country generally referred to as the Kiamachi mountains. Marshal A. G. Porter says he has evidence that convinces him that there are at least six stills there, perhaps more. There is another one somewhere near Berwyn, in the Chickasaw nation. The officers have found evidences of this still, but have never been able to locate it. There is another in the Cherokee nation southeast of Tahlequah, run by two white men and two half-breed Indians, and while the officers have a pretty definite idea where it is located, they have never been able to find it. It is also believed there is another still somewhere in the Cherokee nation between Muskogee and Tahlequah, and still another in the Concharta mountains northwest of Muskogee twenty-five miles. There are perhaps as many more running of which the officers have not the slightest knowledge.

This is the heritage that Marshal Porter, retiring from office, leaves to his successor, Grant Victor. The question naturally arises why these stills have not been raided and destroyed. It is impossible to comprehend the safeguards thrown about a moonshine still unless one is familiar with local conditions. The average moonshiner is crafty and resourceful. His judgment of human nature is unerring and his cunning is almost beyond belief, while he has nerve that never falters in the face of danger or exposure. He is surrounded by those who are his friends and who believe that any man has the right to make whisky and sell it.

Practical Art.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

"I hear," said the visitor, "that the art jury rejected your male figger."

"In their ignorance and prejudice, they did," the sculptor admitted.

"Well," the visitor went on, "what will you take for it?"

"Are you a lover of true art?"

"Not exactly. I'm in the clothing line myself. I could use the figger to display a spring suit we're booming now. Most elegant thing in the market, too."

The sculptor tried to say "Avaunt!" but his whitening lips could form no speech.

WHERE The BIRDS NEST.

THE very earliest, but not the most charming, nest builder in this country is the owl, the old hoot owl, a winter resident whose domicile is in a hollow tree and whose eggs appear in February. The amateur nest hunter who has the gift of poesy in his nature may ignore the wise and prosy owl, finding his delight later in the season upon the return of all the hosts of summer birds, when he may go eagerly about discovering precious nests like caskets containing jewels, along hedge rows, in clumps of bushes and perched in the open on the boughs. Who has not felt the glow of pleasure and the exultation of a discoverer when by chance he happens upon a tiny nest secreted in some out-of-the-way place or sheltered nook; and peering furtively through the interlacing twigs and spray beholds, almost apologetically, the little bird's sanctuary. The fine lady fondling her diamonds knows no greater joy than the nest hunter knows when he bends over one of these treasures, too sacred to him for the defilement of human fingers. The lover of such jewels as these would no more think of despoiling a nest or even desecrating it by handling than an Israelite would have thought of touching the Ark of the Covenant. Such is your true lover of nature, and he looks upon the egg collector with abhorrence.

The egg collector may start on his operations in February. The hoot owl will have the first eggs for him here in midwinter, a proceeding more in keeping with the reputation for wisdom accorded this bird by the goddess Minerva than appears at first sight. The eggs are slow to hatch, requiring nearly a month. The owlet is slow in growth, remaining in the nest three months. The owl's early start at housekeeping is made so the brood will reach the high tide of feeding at the nesting time of the emigrant birds, on which owls depend for their sustenance. The owl is both ravenous and wicked and as full of guile as of wisdom.

It is remarkable that wild eggs laid in dark places where the light of day never penetrates are so often of the purest white. Many of those laid in crevices, caves or in hollow trees are characterized by dainty white shells. The kingfisher excavates a hole far into the bank along some stream. The eggs are crystal white. The shell of the woodpecker's eggs are so delicately white and transparent that a shade of pink is reflected from the yolk within. The chimney swift has white eggs, rather oblong in shape. The bob white's eggs, on the ground and deep in the shadows, are perfectly white and of peculiar shape, very large at one end and very pointed at the other. White eggs in dark places are so generally prevalent that a law of nature seems here to be asserting itself. But the exceptions destroy this view. The house wren, one of our smallest birds, is an exception. This little troglodyte hides its eggs in a dense pocket nest deep down in a dark place. The eggs are not white, but cream colored, spotted thickly with brown. The dove, on the other hand, constructs a nest which is so shabby that an observer may see the eggs through the bottom or sides. Daylight has access to the dove's eggs even during incubation. The eggs are white, like those in dark retreats.

The blue bird always occupies a hole in the heart of a tree, or other dark place. its eggs are not white, but a pronounced blue.

Naturalists in their investigations as to the various colors of animals have decided that the stripes on the zebra are the inheritance from remote ancestors, who acquired the stripe from the shadows of reeds falling across their bodies as they lay concealed during the day. Father Jacob knew something on this subject and turned his knowledge to practical use. Nature has specific purposes in the uses of colors and among the birds these uses are just as apparent, or as mystifying as anywhere else in nature. In the coloration of eggs nature seems yet undecided as to what course to pursue and is engaged in experimenting and in making tests. The markings on many eggs are temporary or of recent adoption and are not fixed either in design or character. In some eggs the marking can be rubbed off, while in others a more pronounced permanency is oservable.

The shapes of eggs, as well as their colors, are characterized by great variety and specific purposes. Both color and shape, doubtless, conform to the requirements of environment, but in both are regulated, held back or urged forward, by the ever present and potent law of heredity.

Nature is well nigh lawless in the bird kingdom. One may observe a certain phenomenon in some bird to-day and look in vain for the same thing again to-morrow. The whole bird kingdom is in a state of flux and change. The waves of fluctuation are as multitudinous in bird life as in human affairs. Progress or retrogression occur more rapidly in the bird kingdom than in any other department of nature. In bird genealogy a twelvemonth makes a cycle. The rapid evolution in bird life quickly antiquates many popular text books on ornithology. The bird books often are at fault and many of their statements must be received with caution. In fact your own observations out among the birds will often contradict the highest authorities in your library.

For instance, Mabel Osgood Wright, a very creditable authority, says in "Birdcraft:" "The Flicker is a genial, sociable bird and its hammering is one of the first bird sounds of early spring that comes from the orchard. In April or May it looks for a suitable tree to bore, or else clears out a last year's hole. The birds are very wary when the excavation is under way, and instead of dropping the chips by the tree where they are working, carry them to some distance." Observation in one case controverts the above quotation, as well as other high authorities on the subject.

Last year a pair of Flickers bored a hole for a nesting place in an old apple tree not ten feet from the ground. Their chips fell plentifully about the tree and they carried away no fragments whatever. One of the thirty-odd popular names for the Flicker is "High Hole," from the fact that his nest is generally in a hole toward the top of a very tall tree. The pair above mentioned did not conform to the traditions of their family in the altitude of their nesting place and they suffered in consequence at the hands of boy vandals. The male and the female stayed at home alternately. I have seen the female put her head out of the hole and wait for a long time for the return of her partner, and when he finally came to take her place she lost no time in getting away.

Ornithologists have engaged in long and learned dissertations on the migrations of birds, with no results which appeal to common sense. One fact is clearly, indisputably, evident. The birds come North in the spring to build their nests. The powerful impulse of propagation brings the birds to us and hunger drives them away. Love and hunger, these move the world to song and to toil, whether birds or beasts or mankind.

The months of April and May are the months when nests are almost universally made. Then is the time to go forth under the sky and note to what purpose the busiest creatures beneath the canopy of heaven are employing themselves. In the fields and pastures look and as you walk for the meadow larks nest sheltering beneath a tuft of grass containing four eggs of brilliant white, speckled with brown. In similar localities but a little later you may find the Bob White's nest, containing a score or more of white eggs. If you wander on beyond the meadows into the woods you will almost certainly startle a towhee from her nest situated on the ground or nearly so. She will create a disturbance and instantly the male towhee arrives and joins in the demonstration. Sit down and keep quiet a few minutes and watch the female go to her nest. You may discover the nest of any bird in this way. Many warblers build on the ground and are very difficult to find. All the larks, the field sparrows and the song sparrows have nests on the ground in tussocks and shelters of weeds and grass. The dickcissel, that cheerful singer, is a ground builder. The nest contains four eggs which would be perfectly white but for the heavy, irregular black lines, like the school boy's first undirected efforts at penmanship. Some of the thrushes are ground-nesters also. All species of birds originally built on the ground, but retreated into the trees to escape danger. Those now building on the ground will in time take to the trees, it is believed.

The Maryland yellow-throat is just now leaving the ground and his nest may be found a foot or two from the surface. The same thing may be said of the indigo bunting. From the regions of these lowly nests upward through all the branches, boughs and spray the nests of various birds appear through the long summer. Each week will see new nests constructed and occupied and each week will see others emptied of fledglings. It is a beautiful panorama and most entertaining.

Voice in the Night Makes Cripple Walk.

From the Toledo News-Bee.

This was the strange whisper little Elizabeth Klyn, for four years a cripple, heard a few nights ago as she lay in her bed. And when she heard this voice of the night she jumped out of bed and did walk. She ran into her mother's room completely cured.

Four years ago Elizabeth suffered a nervous shock that confined her to a hospital. She was discharged by the doctors as a cripple for life. Her mother, Mrs. F. J. Klyn, 10 Antisdel street, never believed her daughter's affliction incurable, and she impressed continually on the child's mind the idea that some day, somehow she would recover.

All during the long four years that the child sat at home and watched through the window her playmates' pleasures the mother reiterated her confidence that a cure would be effected. Whether it was mental telepathy, a thought of the mother transferred to the child's mind and stimulating her will power so that she could control her nerves, may never be explained.

Elizabeth now romps and plays with just as much freedom as any of her friends.

The Servant Problem Solved.

From the New York Globe.

"Talk of solving the servant problem," said a Morningside heights matron. "There are various ways of solving it, apparently.

"For example, I have a kitchen maid, a bright young negress, recently from the South and quite out of sympathy with the New York idea. She is here because she can make more money readily and in larger measure than at home. It is her plan to enter, within a year or so, a leading educational institution for her race—presumably Tuskegee—and after graduation to devote her efforts to teaching school among the Southern negroes.

"That's a pretty fair solution of the servant problem, isn't it?"

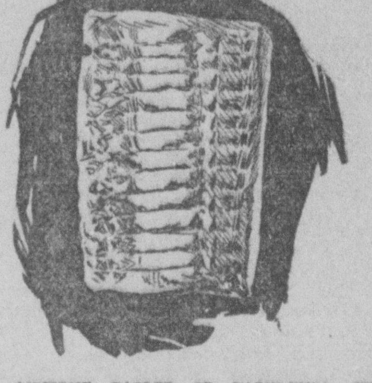
REAL ESTATE IN BABYLON.

Dickering Was Keen 5,000 Years Ago, Eugene Ware Says.

That among the ancient Babylonians, 3,000 years B. C., there were lawyers of rare ability, real estate men of more than ordinary shrewdness in driving and clinching a bargain, and craftsmen with great ingenuity and pride in their work, is the opinion of Eugene F. Ware, lawyer, poet and "Kansan."

In an address before the real estate men of Kansas City some time ago, Mr. Ware made the statement that as long as 5,000 years ago men were dealing in real estate and that those men were as energetic traders and as keen in their transactions as the real estate dealers of to-day.

Mr. Ware explained yesterday the result of his research into the history of the Babylonians which has caused him to form this opinion. While traveling in Europe several years ago he came upon a number of clay tablets at the Louvre in Paris. The tablets are specimens uncovered by excavators who were searching for records of the ancient Babylonians. Several thousand of them have been found in the city of Nippur, capital of the ancient Babylonian state of that name. Nippur was one of the largest cities of Babylonia, situated on the banks of a canal connecting the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. The city was famous as the seat of worship of the god Bel, chief deity of the Babylonian pantheon.



AN ANCIENT TABLET OF BABYLONIA, ON WHICH IS RECORDED A FINANCIAL TRANSACTION BETWEEN A JEWELER AND A REAL ESTATE DEALER.

A tablet owned by Mr. Ware is a replica of one in the Louvre. It resembles nothing so much as a cake of toilet soap. In color it is pure white and is covered with letters of the cuneiform alphabet. The Babylonians used tablets similar to the one owned by Mr. Ware for all their writing, and on these recorded deeds, leases and other real estate transactions. The tablets were made of white clay very much like that used by modern sculptors. They varied in size from specimens as small as a pea to others the size of a bushel basket. They were made by men who probably occupied the same position in the Babylonian business world as our modern public stanographers do. A lawyer would go to one of these scriveners on the street corners, dictate his brief to him and the "stenographer in clay" would write on the tablet with a three-cornered stick. The tablet was then baked in a charcoal oven and was ready for use. The writing on the tablets was first translated by Sir Henry Rawlinson in 1854.

The tablet owned by Mr. Ware records a transaction between a jeweler and a real estate man. The real estate man purchased a gold ring with an emerald from the jeweler and the tablet records the sale and contains the jeweler's guarantee of the ring for twenty years.

The World's Largest Marine Painting.

From the Baltimore Sun.

All but thirty-seven of the canvases in the splendid series of mural decorations by Mr. Francis D. Millet for the Call room of the new custom house have been delivered, and within three weeks the rest will be shipped from the artist's studio in Washington and placed upon the walls of the building.

Eighty of the canvases have already been delivered, and all but four of this number have been attached to the mural spaces reserved for their reception, and the work of attaching these four began at the custom house Monday.

This quartet of canvases constitutes the great central masterpiece of the collection. When placed together upon the ceiling of the Call room they will cover a space sixty-three feet in length by thirty feet in height—the largest marine painting in the world.

This great central panel represents a majestic fleet of famous old whalers and Baltimore clippers riding into port from the Chesapeake on a balmy June day after a voyage to the five seas, and it had to be made in four sections, because no studio could be obtained that was large enough for the painting of the subject on a single canvas. As it was the studio engaged by Mr. Millet for many months in Georgetown was for many years used as a public meeting place under the name of Forrest hall, on Wisconsin avenue.

Wise Cinderella.

From the Chicago News.

"I will cause diamonds and rubies to fall from your lips every time you speak, my child," said the good fairy, "and then I shall send you a prince."

"What?" gasped Cinderella. "And have all the papers say that I was weak enough to fall into the hands of a fortune hunter? Nay, nay, kind fairy, send me a 'ham' actor or a handsome chauffeur, but don't send me a prince."

The DREAMER.

BILL BAGLER had a magic dream
 That came, perhaps, through witches,
Beside a certain crystal stream
 He thought of buried riches.

At morn he went with pick and spade,
 And there he did uncover
A casket filled with gold, inlaid
 With jewels in the cover.

Again he dreamed a lovely maid
 Would come for him to win her:
By noon his plans had all been laid:
 He married her at dinner.

Then Bagler let his visions run,
 And planned some clever ruses;
He got to making dreams for fun,
 And thought he'd tempt the Muses.

At night he dreamed in poems rare,
 To write them in the morning,
But when Success assumes such airs
 Let wiser heads take warning.

His friends withdrew, and critics came
 And made his life forsaken,
Until he dreamed he died for Fame,
 And never did awaken.

It seemed a sad and grievous thing
 That such should be his finish,
That he should feel the censor's sting,
 And see his fame diminish.

But why should Bagler e'er incline,
 When he had heaps of money,
To spend his time on stuff like mine,
 In trying to be funny?

KANSAS CITYANS IN PARIS.

An Unusual Number of Visitors in the French City.

The Kansas City colony in Paris probably is larger than ever before at this time of the year, and nearly every week sees an increase in its numbers. Several Kansas Cityans who were here until recently are now sojourning at other points in Europe, some of them intending to return to Paris later in the season.

Painting, music or French itself is the attraction of many of the visitors from Kansas City and other places in Missouri and Kansas, a number of whom have established temporary homes on the left bank of the Seine, where superior facilities for study are afforded. Others are there merely to visit and enjoy Paris.

Mrs. D. G. MacKinnon, wife of the rector of St. Mark's church, is chaperoning the two Misses Swope of Independence. This interesting little party has an attractive apartment at 44 rue Villejust.

Mrs. Hamilton Gamble of Kansas City and Mrs. Richard Gentry of Columbia, Mo., are at the Hotel Friedland.

Mrs. George De Mare, whose husband, an artist, lost his life in the burning of the Pepper building, is visiting relatives of Mr. De Mare at 167 Boulevard Malesherbes.

Miss M. B. Prosser, the teacher of music, is taking advanced work with Harold Bauer and other musical artists. Mrs. Otis Huff, the singer, also is in the city.

Mrs. Waterman Stone and Miss Katharine Stone, who have a pretty apartment at 13 avenue du Maine, spent Easter Sunday with Miss Marguerite Stone, who is at Mme. Delstarche's school in Brussels.

Miss Sarah Wilder of Hiawatha, Kas., who has an excellent contralto voice, is studying singing in Paris. She is living with a French family. Mrs. Theodore Poehler and her daughter, Miss Alma, who is studying singing, and Mrs. Louis Poehler, all of Lawrence, Kas., are in a pension near Avenue Victor Hugo. Miss Emily Mason of Platte City is with a French family at 56 rue Maubeuge.

Miss Mary Harrison, a daughter of former Mayor T. W. Harrison of Topeka, has been in Paris studying for a long time. Miss Anna Nellis, a teacher in the high school in Topeka, spent several weeks in the city in March and April. She sailed for the Orient with the congressional party last May and is now finishing a tour around the world. She sails for home late this month.

Prof. Arthur Canfield, formerly of the University of Kansas, but now of the University of Michigan, is spending a leave of absence in advanced study. With Mrs. Canfield and their two little girls he is living in Auteuil, a suburban villa district lying between the Seine and the Bois de Boulogne.

Miss Logan of Kansas City went from Paris to Rome a short time ago and with her now is Miss Monica Railsback, formerly of Kansas City. Mrs. Frances Kirke has been on the Riviera and Miss Louise Kimball in Florence recently.

Mrs. Edwin Fowler and her family of Kansas City are temporary residents of Brussels. Miss Margaret Fowler is studying the violin under Ysaye and the other daughter is studying the piano. With the Fowlers is Miss Ella Beardsley, who is studying vocal culture.

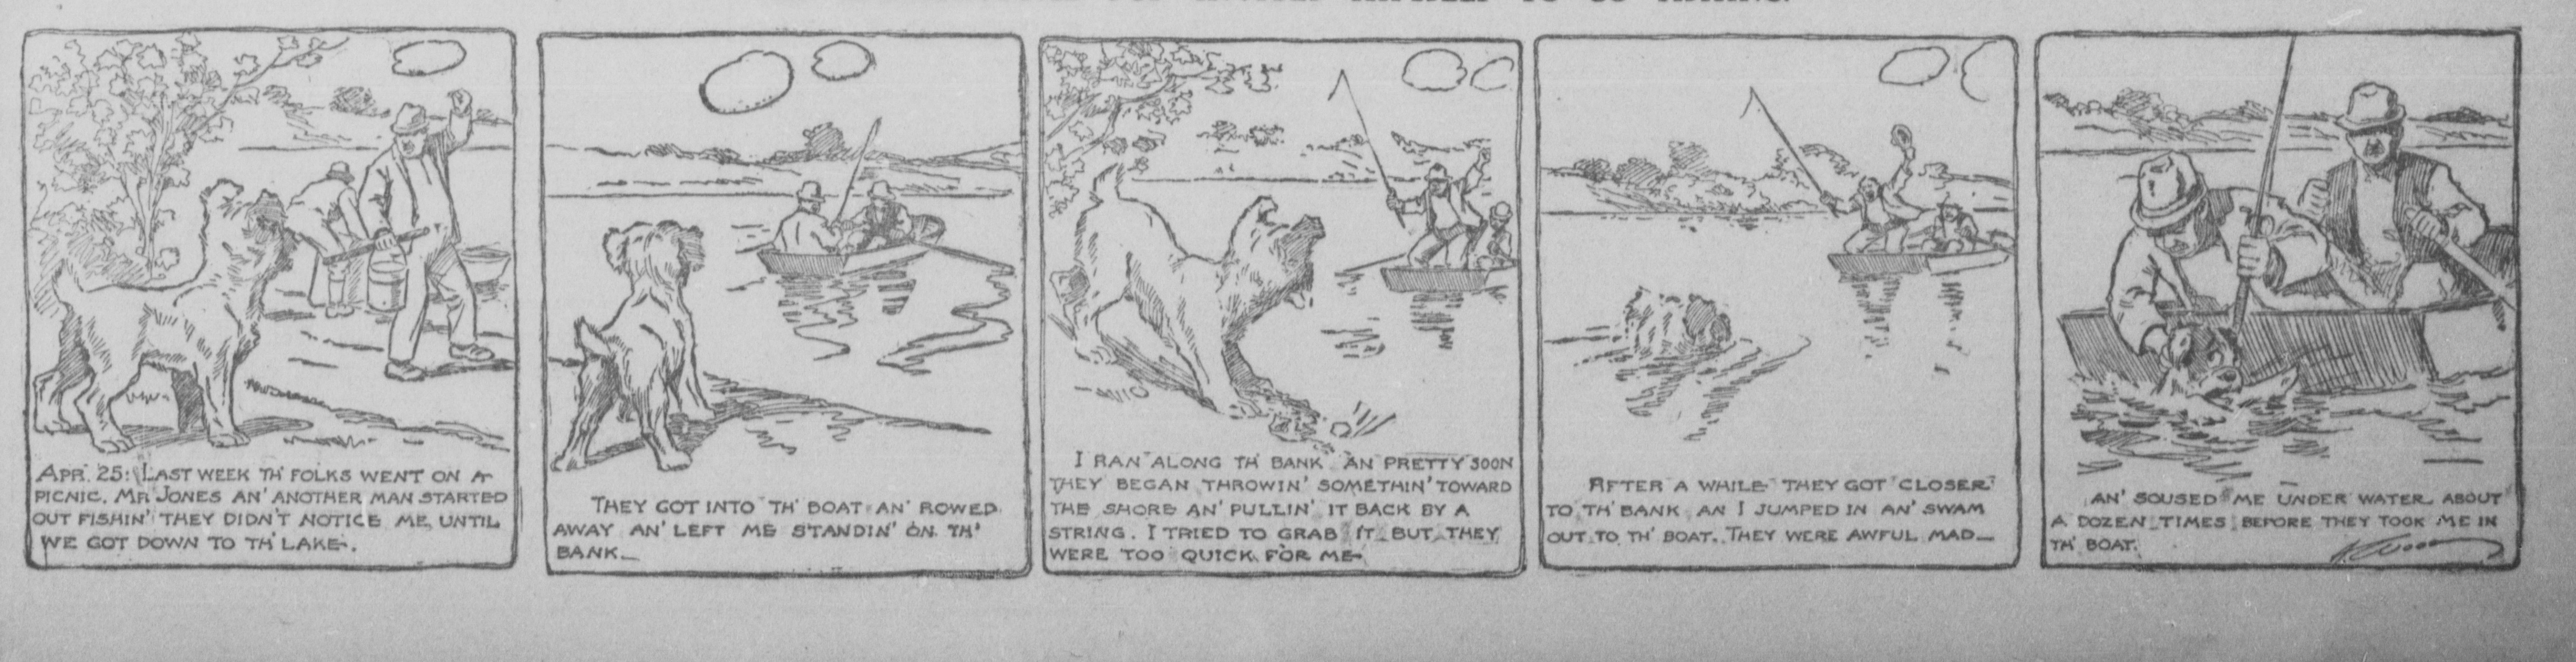
Dr. Ritchie, rector of St. Paul's church, and John G. Groves and F. N. Sewall, all of Kansas City, were in Paris a short time ago.

An American Scholar's Work.

From the London Saturday Review.

It should be humiliating for Englishmen to reflect that it was left to an American, the late Francis James Child, to compile the five thick volumes of "English and Scottish Popular Ballads" which are familiar and invaluable to all students of this subject. But self-reproach is forgotten in admiration of his work. Child himself unfortunately did not live to finish his task. However, he was more than a scholar and an editor; he was the founder of a school, and he had the gift of being able to transmit to others both his learning and his zeal.

THE INTELLECTUAL PUP INVITES HIMSELF TO GO FISHING.



APR. 25: LAST WEEK TH' FOLKS WENT ON A PICNIC. MR JONES AN' ANOTHER MAN STARTED OUT FISHIN' THEY DIDN'T NOTICE ME, UNTIL WE GOT DOWN TO TH' LAKE.
THEY GOT INTO TH' BOAT AN' ROWED AWAY AN' LEFT ME STANDIN' ON TH' BANK.
I RAN ALONG TH' BANK AN' PRETTY SOON THEY BEGAN THROWIN' SOMETHIN' TOWARD THE SHORE AN' PULLIN' IT BACK BY A STRING. I TRIED TO GRAB IT BUT THEY WERE TOO QUICK FOR ME—
AFTER A WHILE THEY GOT CLOSER TO TH' BANK AN' I JUMPED IN AN' SWAM OUT TO TH' BOAT. THEY WERE AWFUL MAD—AN' SOUSED ME UNDER WATER ABOUT A DOZEN TIMES BEFORE THEY TOOK ME IN TH' BOAT.

THE LORE OF PLANTING TIME.

MANKIND was not long in recognizing its dependence on Mother Earth for the nourishment on which was conditioned its very existence. Considerations of self-preservation brought the primitive farmer face to face with the perplexing problem of when to sow in order that he might most certainly reap the most bountiful harvest, and to that end we find that from Adam to Coburn men have adopted many strange devices. They have studied the stars, seeking light that should make clear to them the purpose of the Divine Ones; they have studied the moon that they might discover its influences; they have listened to the voices of the birds and translated their song into the language of their hopes; they have watched the bird in flight and divined its significance; they have resorted to human sacrifice and established repulsive rites to propitiate the gods, and instituted beautiful festivals to woo the favor of the Goddess of Plenty.

The most familiar and widely distributed lore of seed time is doubtless that which relates to the moon. The belief that all those vegetables which grow and ripen under the ground should be planted in the dark of the moon and that grain and vegetables which grow up and ripen out of the ground should be planted in the light of the moon, is almost universal throughout the civilized world. Amongst the "Pennsylvania Dutch" the rule is that vegetables which grow and ripen under ground are to be planted when the horns of the moon point down and grain and vegetables which grow up and ripen above are to be planted when the horns of the moon point up. In England the belief is said to be common that cabbage must be sown the first or second day after the full moon or the plants when grown will run to seed and have no heart. Apparent exceptions to the general rule are to be found in the statement of the Roman Pliny that garlic and beans might be sowed in the wane of the moon, and Tusser's old poem, quoted by Dyer in his "English Folk Lore," says:

Sow peas and beans in the wane of the moon;
Who soweth them sooner, he soweth too soon;
That they with the planet may rest and rise,
And flourish with bearing, most plentiful—wise.

In parts of the South the negroes carefully collect the cobs from which the seed corn has been shelled and with formal ceremony bury them beneath the bed of a running stream. This will, they believe, protect the field from drought and fire and be a safeguard against thieves and predatory stock. But the ceremony must take place in the light of the moon.

One of the most persistent and widely spread beliefs in the history of man is that good luck or bad luck attends certain days and that there are lucky and unlucky days for planting.

The old Greek poet, Hesiod, voiced the conviction of the early Greek farmer in his admonition to avoid commencing to sow grain on the thirteenth day from the beginning of the month, though he tells us that it is the best time for setting out plants.

In Grim's "Teutonic Mythology" it is set down that "wheat sown in Michael's week turns to cockle, barley in the first week of April to hedge-mustard."

An old English verse runs thus:

Upon St. David's day put oats and barley in the clay.

Ancient Welshmen wore leeks in their hats on March 1, St. David's day. The leek was sacred to Ceuvdon, the agricultural deity of the ancient Druids, and it was worn on that day to win the favor of the god by paying him reverence and so secure a favorable reception of the seed in the earth.

In the island of Mull and among the ancient Irish of Munster Tuesday was the day favorable for planting crops and for sowing flax. "Good Friday" is the day of days in many places. The writer once heard an Irishman insisting that flax should be sown on Good Friday, even if it fell on a Sunday.

A very common idea is that of compelling or promoting the growth of a plant by indicating with the movement of the hands or feet or of the body the height you desire the plant to grow, or it may be expressed in the words of an incantation song. There is a Russian song which runs:

Make, O Lord, the strong wheat to grow,
The strong wheat and vigorous corn;
The stalks thus shall be like reeds,
The ears shall be (plentiful) as blades of grass,
The sheaves shall be (in number) like the stars,
The stacks shall be like hills,

Grim says that girls sing all kinds of songs over their work in the culture of flax. That in some places at sowing time the mistress of the house used to get upon the table and dance, then jump off backwards. The higher she leaped the higher the flax would grow. Lifting the arms as high as they desire the hemp to grow the Wallachians dance and at midnight the Esthonians threw three handfuls of grain on the shelf, crying, "God grant the grain this year may grow that high." The Esthonian woman, to make her cabbages thrive and have large leaves, on the day of sowing the seed makes great pancakes, and to give them fine, white heads she wears a dazzling white hood. The heads are made firm and hard by wrapping a small round stone tightly in a linen cloth and setting it at the end of the cabbage bed when the plants are set out.

The Bavarian farmer wears a gold ring when he sows wheat to assure for it a good healthy color. In Thuringia the farmer in sowing flax carries the seed in a bag reaching from his shoulders to his knees which swings to and fro as he walks, a motion which the growing flax will imitate in swaying in the wind. If the sower, when he enters the field, will sit three times on his bag of flax or will steal a little seed and mix with his it will be well for the crop. After sowing the seed if he throws the bag in the air, the grain will grow as high as the bag is thrown.

In Sumatra the women, when they sow rice, let their hair hang loosely down their backs that the crop may grow luxuriantly in imitation of it. In Western Africa the sowing often is accompanied by a dance of armed men in the field, and in Southern India the sowing is accompanied by music played upon native instruments.

In many places, particularly among the American Indians, women play a leading part in the magic of planting time, and the lore on this subject is collected in Burdick's "Magic and Husbandry." Longfellow's "Hiawatha" will doubtless recall the episode entitled "Blessing the Corn Fields" in which

Hiawatha, wise and thoughtful,
Spake and said to Minnehaha,
To his wife, the Laughing Water:
"You shall bless to-night the cornfields,
Draw a magic circle round them,
To protect them from destruction,
Blast of mildew, blight of insect,
Wagemin, the thief of cornfields,
Primosaid, who steals the maize ear!
In the night when all is silent,
When the spirit of sleep, Nepahwin,
Shuts the doors of all the wigwams,
So that not an ear can hear you,
So that not an eye can see you,
Rise up from your bed in silence,
Lay aside your garments wholly,
Walk around the field you planted,
Round the borders of the cornfields
Covered by your tresses only,
Robed with darkness as a garment,
Thus the fields shall be more beautiful."

This strange ceremony, it is said, is not the mere figment of the poet's imagination, for a writer in the "Journal of American Folk Lore" tells that such was, in fact, the custom of both the Sioux and the Ojibway Indians. Among the North American Indians the sowing and cultivation of the crops was almost invariably done by the women and this probably is based upon the idea which Father Gumilla met with among the Orinokos of South America mentioned by Burdick. Noticing that the women alone did the planting and cultivating of the crops, Father Gumilla asked why the men did not assist and was informed that the women possessed—and could till the grain—the secret of productiveness and the men did not know it.

Corn planting among the Cherokees was attended with much ceremony. Seven grains, the sacred number, were put in each hill and these were not afterward thinned out. A curious ceremony, of which even the memory is now almost forgotten, was enacted after the first working of the corn, when the owner or priest stood in succession at the four corners of the field and wept and wailed loudly, presumably for the death of the corn spirit, which these rites were to bring to life again in the new corn.

In Iroquois legend, the corn plant sprang originally from the bosom of the Mother of the Great Spirit after her burial, and the spirits of corn, bean and squash are represented as three sisters. The Pawnee Indians moistened their seed corn with the blood of a woman and selected a prisoner to supply it.

In the Punjab (India), the next morning after sowing, a woman puts on a necklace and walks around the field winding thread on a spindle, a ceremony intended to promote the prosperity of the crop.

The ceremonials instituted for the purpose of appeasing the gods, driving away evil spirits and securing a plentiful crop are both curious and numerous.

The Roman festival, called Paganalia or feriae sementiae, held in the last days of January, was especially connected with the sowing of the grain. The time for it was selected by the magistrates or priests and announced by proclamation. The fall seeding was over and spring seeding not yet begun. It may have referred to the seed already in the ground and that yet to be sown, or there may have been two ceremonials, as some think, one before the fall sowing and one before the spring sowing. The object was to protect the seed from harmful things and bring the crop to maturity. The gods were invoked, rain was prayed for and it was earnestly besought that the crop might escape ruin from bird, beast and disease. Swine were sacrificed and cakes made of eggs, flour, milk and oil supplied by the families of the district. Each pagus or district had its own altar for the sacrifices of its inhabitants.

The Kharwars of India at sowing time take five handfuls of grain from a sowing basket and invoke Dharti Mata, the earth goddess, to be propitious. This grain is kept and ground and offered at her annual festival. In ancient times the Kharwars had a festival held at the end of May or the beginning of June in honor of the infernal or terrestial gods, and men, hung from a pole by means of tenter hooks inserted in the flesh of their backs, were dragged over the plowed ground from one sacred grove to another, preceded by a girl with a pot of fire on her head. At the second grove the men were taken from the hooks and the girl in prophetic frenzy revealed the secret as to the fate of the corn crop.

Before the spring sowing the Pankas (India), offer five cakes (a sacred number), to the village gods through the baiga, the priest of the local deities, who eats the sacrifice himself. Whatever remains of the seed grain is given to beggars and laborers. This custom prevails throughout Northern India. The Mundas sacrifice a goat, and a cock, at rice sowing, to their ancestral shades.

In his book on "Malay Magic" the author reports numerous regulations for planting various crops, collected at Langat, in Selangor. Sugar cane is to be planted at noon. This will make it sweeter by drying up the juice and leaving the saccharine matter. Sweet potatoes are to be planted on a starry night to insure their having plenty of eyes. Cucumbers and gourds are to be planted on a dark, moonless night, which prevents them from being seen and devoured by fireflies.

When the Apache Indians plant corn the medicine men bury eagle plumes in the field, scatter that mysterious powder known as hodentin and sing.

The Tapuas of South America, at the yearly seeding, hang a bunch of ostrich feathers spread out like a wheel on the back of one of their number, symbolical of the fructifying power of heaven, from which bread falls into the tuft of feathers.

In Burmah a period of fasting, which has been called the Buddhist Lent, is observed while the plowing and sowing of the fields is attended to. During this time of fasting no marriages take place. They abstain from tobacco and remain at home. The custom is believed to be older than Buddhism. The people's maintenance the rest of the year is believed to depend upon its observance, and Mr. Frazer in the "Golden Bough" suggests that our Lent may be merely the continuation under a thin disguise of a period of temperance which was anciently observed from superstititous motives by Italian farmers long before the Christian era.

The primitive Slavs killed a goat and consumed its flesh at the time of sowing winter corn. The skin they hung upon a high pole near an oak, where it remained till harvest, when a bunch of all sorts of corn and herbs was hung over it. A peasant officiated as priest and offered a prayer and the young people joined hands and danced around it.

A curious law of the Israelites is found in Leviticus xix, 19: "Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind; thou shalt not sow thy field with two kinds of grain. Neither shalt there come upon thee a garment of two kinds of stuff mingled together."

A curious custom is said to be quite common in the vicinity of Elizabethton, Tenn. It is there believed that in order to raise gourds, a particular ceremony of throwing the seeds over the left shoulder must be observed before planting them. They must be thrown one at a time and an oath uttered as each is thrown. The direction of the movement must be opposite to that of the sun, indicating some relation to the belief that evil spirits in working their purposes go against the sun. The significance of the oath is perhaps protection to the seed from evil influences or that it serves as a charm against them. In some countries profanity is believed to bring luck to fishermen, and that cursing and swearing at sowing time makes more certain a good crop, as the Greek sower when he sowed cummin.

Lady Mary's London Letter.

LONDON, April 15.—There can be nothing but supreme joy in the heart of that unrivaled American society grande dame, Mrs. Potter Palmer, these days. For in playing the host to King Edward, as she did so recently at Biarritz, she realized the greatest ambition of her many years on the social stage. She has "arrived" and henceforth the doors to the most exclusive circles in England are open to her.

We have all watched Mrs. Palmer's efforts to capture the king. She has been at it a long time and most of us were sure that she would ultimately "win out," as Americans say. It has been generally recognized that of the many American society women in the English smart set, the Chicago social queen was the ideal entertainer. Her purse seemed to be bottomless and a dinner or a ball at Hampden house, her London residence, was sure to be the very last word in enjoyment. But try as she might she had never been able to get the king under her hospitable roof. Mrs. Potter Palmer made no bones about admitting that that was her supreme ambition. It is the ambition of every woman here who makes any pretense to social leadership.

For a long time English society has been amusing itself by watching the progress not only of Mrs. Palmer, but of her fellow countrywoman, Mrs. Bradley Martin. The latter has not yet had the pleasure of entertaining His Majesty, but you may be sure that it is not because the late New York woman has not tried. Those who know the king say that Mrs. Bradley Martin has overdone the thing—that her hospitality is much too ostentatious and gorgeous to please level headed Edward. There was considerable speculation as to whether Mrs. Palmer or Mrs. Bradley Martin would be the first to win the king's favor. It was a race between New York and Chicago with the Western city a prime favorite. It was no short distance dash of a single season, but a contest of endurance—and considerable tact—stretching over many years.

Some very silly gossip has gone the rounds of the smart set regarding Mrs. Palmer's efforts to hob-nob with His Majesty. One particularly attractive one, which nobody who knew the American widow believed, credited her with a willingness to pay the sum of $50,000 outright for the privilege of feeding the English ruler with her own hand, figuratively speaking. This sum was to be paid to Mrs. George Keppel, one of the impecunious favorites of the king, whose word is more or less law with her sovereign in matters of that kind. Curiously enough Mrs. Keppel is now at Biarritz with the king and was one of the guests at the dinner which Mrs. Palmer gave in honor of His Majesty and incidentally Mr. Asquith, the new prime minister of Great Britain.

But Mrs. Palmer is not the only American who is dancing attendance upon royalty at the little French watering place. In fact the American element just about owns the place, despite the pre-eminence of the English sovereign. The majority of the smart residences under the shadow of the Palace hotel, which, in seasons past, were occupied by wealthy English chums of the king, have this year been taken by Americans.

Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador, has aroused considerable comment in the king's set by his efforts to outshine His Majesty. The diplomat surrounded himself with all kinds of state and ceremony and the great suite of rooms he engaged on the first floor of the Palace hotel were far more luxurious than those of His Majesty on the ground floor. His one idea seemed to be to go the king one better. In the ambassador's apartments were to be found the most beautiful furniture in a house renowned for its lovely and historic furnishings. Among the priceless articles are many of those which were used by the Empress Eugenie when the hotel was a private house. Mr. Reid offered a large sum of money for the empress's bed, a beautiful example of the Louis XIV period. The deal did not come off, however, because the hotel authorities were unwilling to part with their treasures.

Jean Reid, who is a great favorite with the king, recently had the honor, with her father, of dining in the private apartments of His Majesty. That is a signal favor, for only the most intimate of his cronies are ever asked to meet him thus when he is not "on his dignity."

Edward's liking for Anthony Drexel seems to increase every day. When the latter arrived at the French resort recently, one of his first callers was His Majesty. The two are constantly seen about together and some of the gossips have gone so far as to predict that the American millionaire will be knighted in the very near future which, of course, is absurd. Just what the king sees in the American to admire so greatly is not known, but in some quarters it is said that the banker is a great help to Edward in a business way. At any rate the Philadelphian is a royal spender and is never tired of putting his hand in his copious pocket to assist the "hard-ups" of the English aristocracy.

Now that Joseph Chamberlain is getting along so nicely, and some of his most sanguine friends are predicting his return in the near future to the political arena where he is so sorely needed by his party, I understand that there is grave fear for the health of his devoted wife. This brave woman, who you will remember was Miss Endicott of Boston before her marriage to the most popular man in England, has never left the side of her stricken husband during the two years or more that his life has been despaired of. Everybody declares that the veteran politician owes his present existence to the splendid nursing of his wife, but she has broken down in the effort. She has not taken to a bath-chair for most of her waking hours and continually resorts to oxygen as a reviver. The doctors have ordered her from Cannes, where she and her husband are now stopping, to Switzerland, but Mr. Chamberlain is inconsolable at the idea of being parted from her a single day and it is not likely that his wife will leave him.

Of course the report that Mr. Chamberlain will be seen in public life again in the near future must be taken with more than the customary grain of salt. The same prediction has been made many times since he was taken ill. I saw him when he left England for Cannes and to me he appeared to be still a very sick man.

Every lover of dogs is envying Mrs. Lulu Harcourt the exquisite little Chinese dog which she has just purchased for $7,500. It is a half-brother to "Stoessel," which the empress dowager of Russia takes about in her sleeve everywhere, believing it to be her mascot. If those who are experts in dog-lore are to be believed the American woman's specimen is far more perfect of its kind than her Imperial Majesty's.

There are only about five or six of these dogs in London, but it is the ambition of every smart society woman to possess one. They are quite the latest craze.

LADY MARY.

THESE ARE REAL FIRE FLIES.

A Queer Smelter Pest That Thrives in Intense Heat.

An interesting entomological discovery has been reported recently from the copper kilns of Shasta county, California. This is a peculiar fly not unlike the common house fly in appearance, which has so much of the salamander in its composition that it thrives in the red hot furnaces and darts with perfect unconcern in and out of the flames and deadly fumes of the roasting copper.

These remarkable insects were first seen in June of last year and excited much interest among the workers in the kilns and furnaces. They at once became known as "slag flies" and their peculiar habits were watched closely. They clustered about the light from the molten metal and clung to the almost redhot smokestacks of the kilns as if the intense heat was grateful to their feet and when the roasting ore produced such clouds of sulphurous fumes that human beings could not breathe in the immediate vicinity of the kilns the flies collected in thick swarms absolutely in the smoke itself. They seemed to thrive in the densest fumes and appeared happiest when resting upon the roasting slag itself. The workmen believed they bred in the smoking ore. They have never been seen except in the neighborhood of Keswick.

These flies settle near the ground at night and swarm around the workmen in such numbers that the men are compelled to wear head nets and gloves to protect the face and hands from bites. The bite of the fly is not poisonous, but is extremely unpleasant.

The slag fly is hard to kill. The whole swarm disappeared with the first cool weather of the fall. No specimens were preserved and therefore no scientific study of the new insect can be made until the warm weather of the coming summer brings them again to the kilns. The find has been reported to the entomological bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture and an expert will be sent to Keswick this summer to study the insect.

Minnesota Trappers Get 1 Million Dollars

From the Duluth Evening Herald.

ST. PAUL—It is estimated that during this season the trappers of this state have received considerably more than 1 million dollars for the skins taken. Trappers who have been in the business for years report that there are more of the animals in the state now than ever before, a fact which is accounted for by the heavy rainfall of the last few years.

The closed season for fur bearing animals opens on November 15 and lasts until April 15, the only animals protected, however, being the muskrat and the mink. The largest increase is in the number of muskrat, although there has also been a large increase in the number of mink. The high water of the last few years has been play for the muskrat, which stray from their homes in search of food when it gets short.

For two or three years there has been plenty of rain and all the streams, lakes and pools have been kept full, affording the muskrat suitable homes, and as they multiply rapidly, the supply has increased greatly in spite of the activity of the trappers.

Reports received by Carlos Avery, executive agent of the state game and fish commission from all parts of the state indicate that the same condition exists throughout the state. As the muskrat skins bring from ten to thirty-five cents each and the mink skins $5 to $6 each, the income of the trappers has been very large.

Many cases are reported in which farmer boys have taken enough skins from the home farm to net them several hundred dollars.

Citing an Example.

"Most men," remarked the moralizer, "have a mania for doing easy things."

"Yes," replied the demoralizer. "I've often noticed how easy it is to bet on the wrong horse."

CURES ASTHMA

The Remarkable Action of a New Great Healing Force

Free Trial is Mailed to All Who Suffer

Asthmatics can now take hope and courage. There is a new and wonderful remedy called Paroxol that not only gives relief, but actually cures. Every despairing skeptic who is disgusted with the foul atmosphere of "smoke" powder, or must become a slave to opium or other poisons, can have a free trial bottle of Paroxol and know to a certainty that his long sought for asthma cure has been found. All you need do is to send name and address to The H. Matt Co., 117 Wood bldg., Syracuse, N. Y., and try this new great healing force. Give it a test. Get away from your bad smelling smoke nuisance and ruinous drugs. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to-day. Don't neglect to do this. Don't wait.

Talks on Teeth
BY
G. GORDON MARTIN
(INCORPORATED)

Serviceable and Ornamental Teeth

Prior to the discovery by G. Gordon Martin, Inc., of the Alveolar Method of restoring missing teeth without the use of plates or ordinary bridge-work, several years ago, all known substitutes were neither serviceable nor ornamental, and bore very little resemblance to natural teeth.

The one factor that has made the Alveolar Method so popular is that the Alveolar teeth resemble nature's not only in looks, but in action. We have cases that are so perfect that they have deceived dentists who are supposed to be able to tell a set of natural teeth as far as they can see them. The following testimonial from Mr. T. H. Spencer of Highland Park, Ill., bears out our contention that Alveolar teeth are both serviceable and ornamental:

Highland Park, Ill.
"G. Gordon Martin, Inc.
Gentlemen: After enduring for five years the discomforts of a bridge, painful at times, and finally giving out altogether, causing the loss of both teeth to which it was fastened and having only my front teeth left to imperfectly chew with, I decided to try your Alveolar Method of dental work. Before doing so I was told by a number of the dental profession and warned by others that your process was only an advertising scheme and without any particular merit.
This was in September, 1906, at which time you firmly placed in my mouth fine new teeth with which I can chew any kind of food with the ease and comfort of natural teeth.
I cheerfully recommend your Alveolar Method to any one needing teeth that are both serviceable and ornamental.
Yours respectfully,
(Signed) T. H. SPENCER."

You will note that Mr. Spencer endured the tortures of a bridge for about five years. If he had not been so fortunate as to read one of our advertisements, he would, in all probability, be wearing a plate to-day instead of a set of teeth which are in every way as satisfactory as though they had grown in his mouth.

It may be that you are a "bridge" victim or are trying to get along with a partial plate in lieu of good, strong, firm teeth. If such is the case, we are going to ask you if you won't take the trouble to come to the nearest one of our offices and allow us to make an examination of your mouth, and give you an estimate of the cost of a new set of Alveolar teeth. Understand, that if you accept this invitation, you are not obligating yourself to have any work done, neither are you putting us to any trouble.

There are still some who are skeptical regarding this work, and doubt our ability to make good with it. If you are a skeptic, the invitation is even more pressing than otherwise. We never fail to overcome the doubts of a skeptic.

The Alveolar Method, in order that it may be successfully performed, requires that the patient have two or more teeth left in each jaw, around which we build our structure. You may wonder how we are able to do this, but that is the great secret of the method. Come in and we will explain it in detail. The fact that we have been able to build up, in a period of five years, the largest dental business in the world, is strong enough evidence that the work is entirely satisfactory, and has the merit we claim for it.

If you can't come to have this examination made at the present time, send for our illustrated booklet, "Alveolar Dentistry," which we shall be glad to mail you free of cost, and which will give you a very clear idea of this wonder of the Twentieth century in dental science—the Alveolar Method.

CAUTION—Look out for imitators and impostors. We have NO OFFICES outside of those given below.

CYCLERS HOME FIRST

However nearly right this dealer's prophecy may prove, there is no doubt that the salaried man or woman, and the laborer of every class finds in the bicycle a whole health system and savings bank combined.

The factory worker who rides a wheel is the last man to leave his home in the morning and the first to reach it again at night. He quickly saves the price of his mount, and that once accomplished, every dime that is kept from the street car company is just as good as though he were getting the additional silver in his pay envelope.

When an American wage earner owns a bicycle, or its latest brother, a motorcycle, he is about the most independent man that this country has yet produced. And that he is not unaware of this fact may be gathered from the large number of workers who already own wheels, and the increased interest in them that has already been shown this spring.

"Who is riding all these bicycles that the papers are talking about," asked a business man of a bicycle retailer in this city.

Thousands Are Now Riding

"Well," was the reply, "if you have not noticed the riders yourself, it is probably because they 'ring in' before you get out these mornings. Watch the wheelmen who ride home from the factories in the evening, or note the riders, male and female, who leave the office buildings between 5 and 6, and you can answer your question yourself.

"The fact is," continued the dealer, "we have grown so accustomed to the bicycle that we are no longer impressed by the numbers of them we see lined up along the curbing, or when we meet them on the road. The bicycle business is pretty nearly back to the proportions of the 'fad days,' but you don't see quite so many of them used for pleasure riding.

"At that, I may tell you a different story before this season is over, for the interest that has been growing steadily for a couple or three years seems nearly up to the enthusiastic stage at present."

Home for the Noon Meal

It means, too, that he can go home for his noonday meal, many times, where such a comfort would be out of the question if he were forced to buy two street car rides for the privilege. It is worth a good deal to any man to get away from the shop atmosphere and surroundings for the noontime rest; much more than can be expressed by the mere money saving made possible.

A few minutes on a wheel, either before or after a good stretch of work, brings about the proper physical balance better than any other sort of exercise possibly can. It opens up the lungs that have been cramped over a desk or bench; it pumps more blood through the heart, and it makes one enjoy the fresh, clear air that, acting upon the circulation, revives and strengthens every part of the body. Muscles long unused get their share of the recreation, fat accumulations are reduced and good tissue built up instead.

Bicycles Better and Cheaper

There are plenty of arguments for cycling, when you come to think them over, and not one against the best and sanest exercise than any of us have ever known.

It's worth while knowing, too, that bicycles are not so expensive as they were a few years ago, and, strange as it may seem, the quality of workmanship is greatly improved.

In short, the bicycle has come back, better than ever, costing less, worth just as much in health and convenience, and as ready as ever to save its owner money, time and peace of mind. No wonder it is getting the glad hand again.

THE NEW YORK THEATER LETTER

FRANKLYN FYLES CHATS ABOUT PLAYS & THE PEOPLE APPEARING IN THEM

NEW YORK, April 24.—Humorous effrontery is the safest quality for an American dramatist to put into a native character meant to be popular. That element in human nature, as developed in the states, exists in full force in lawyers and three-card-monte men, parsons and circus flim-flammers, Wall street high financiers and low bucket shop touts; but the possession of it is put on the stage most frequently and effectually in a down grade sporting man. It has seemed to me that if Bret Harte's outcast gamblers had been humorists, too, and not merely self-contained knaves, they wouldn't have defied their creator and other experts to make them as likeable in plays as they were in books. With the single exception of "M'liss," put by Clay Greene into a fortunate play for Annie Pixley, no Harte material has been of much theatrical account. The dead and gone Stuart Robson, having failed with an acting version of "Two Men of Sandy Bar," butted his sore head against the newspaper critics, and had to apologize to one of them to save himself from legal prosecution.

George M. Cohan has in his new play, "The Yankee Prince," a humoristic sporting man, who overlays out of sight with giggles, snickers, cachinations and guffaws, all the other noises of mirth. Nothing in this nonsense show is more singular than Cohan's subordination of himself to Tom Lewis, the player of that part. In his thank you speech on the opening night, he begged his audience not to take him as a dramatist seriously, and declared there was nothing worth a moment's consideration in any song-and-dance farce. He sought to be understood as to holding his own work in contempt; yet the sophisticated New Yorkers who filled the theater were noisy with hilarity; and my pen would become envious if I were to figure with it on the addition which this extravaganza will make to his wealth. My best guess is that Cohan, having convinced himself that he can't write a drama of diynity, or else being at work secretly on one with which he hopes to amaze the public, is working now to pack his pocket rather than swell his pride. That would explain why he has given more than better humor to the role of a prize fight manager for Tom Lewis than to that of an ardent, but ordinary young lover for himself.

Tom Lewis is a droll, fat fellow, who was a bogus negro in vaudeville until Cohan saw in him a right actor to embody human congealment of cool audacity. Cohan contracted for some years of Tom's future and so in "The Yankee Prince" Tom is a tourist who takes along a letter from John L. Sullivan, whom he regards as the most justly illustrious American, to the king of Great Britain, who welcomes him cordially.

Years ago, when Cohan first got close to Broadway in his departure from the avenues, and was on his way from vaudeville towards drama, I wrote that it was "a case of too much Cohan," for there were the parental Jerry J. and Helen F., overweighting the not much else than dancing Josephine and George M.; but I didn't perceive George M.'s genius in the origination of stuff and nonsense, in which the stuff was catchy and the nonsense infectious. To-day George M. Cohan is the pace maker in musical farce and most of the other makers of amusement in that field follow him like sheep after a bellwether. Under these conditions, isn't "The Yankee Prince" more interesting to read about than the week's sedate plays? So here goes as though C-o-h-a-n spelt Shakespeare.

There is no such melodramatic plot in this Cohan show as lately he has been prone to; the theme is the time-worn yet not worn out one of a titled European wooing of an American heiress; and here we have, for the first time since Rose and Charles Coghlan were together at Wallack's, a brother and sister in the mimicry of sweethearts. And George Cohan has written his own role with a hot pen and boiling ink; for, as a Yankee millionaire, he falls with a thud in love with Josephine Cohan, as a Yankee millionairess; and when the first nighters saw him kiss her they applauded tremendously; for hadn't they read that George, having lost—or loosed—his wife, Ethel Levy, and taken a new one, was free to restore his sister to the Cohan quartet. And, oh, how Josephine did dance, to say nothing of singing and even acting, to keep the absent Ethel from being missed. I think she did. But I have been prejudiced for Josephine since a dozen years ago, in a Pittsburg vaudeville theater, when a box was full of renowned actors of an off Sunday evening, I saw the then young girl's nervous tension break half through a dance and she sobbed out: "Don't, oh, don't guy me—my feet are scared." Time not only flies, but fixifies; for here is Josephine a marvel at dancing and tolerable at acting. Papa Jerry M. has stood still, son George has not improved a whit, and it is Mamma Helen who has advanced in proficiency as an actress.

Chicago is the boomed city in "The Yankee Prince." Cohan used to put into his plays songs of New York in excelsis and of Tenderloin glorification. Now he flouts Broadway in a song's refrain with "Come on down town," instead of extolling the "gay white way;" and he doesn't let his people stop over in Gotham at all; but after one act in the tearoom of a London hotel, and a second in front of Windsor castle, he jumps them to a third at a lawn party in Michigan avenue. The programme says that "George M. Cohan and his royal family" appear in "a timely satire on titled fortune hunters." The usual sex arrangement is reversed. Jerry M. Cohan is the millionaire parent who seeks an English earl to wed his daughter, Josephine Cohan, while Helen F. Cohan is the parent who opposes such a match, and George M. Cohan is the strenuous American who, after two rounds with the earl in London, knocks him out with a wind-up in Chicago. Too much Cohan? Why, every boy in the chorus is an imitation of George, even the chorus girls behave like him, and why deplore the Cohan vogue so long as its foolery beguiles our dull cares away?

"There is nothing, less than nothing, in this play," said Cohan to the audience, "except money." But he knew better. There is spectators' money's worth of girls anyway. A spacious stage is overcrowded by them, and they are brought on in relays, criss-crossing and mixing up in the Cohan manner of frantic activity. And George himself does other dancing than his familiar head-flopping, back-humping, leg-tangling, specialty. Probably the vogue of the Viennese waltzes has roused him to fresh endeavor, for in a dance with sister Josephine he and she are more curiously limber and agile than waltzers can hope to copy, even clumsily, in next summer's hotels.

There isn't an indecency of word or motion in "The Yankee Prince." None of the girls' costumes is immodest. The finest display of femininity is in the excess of clothes that are worn at a "court," as Londoners call a reception held by the queen. Of course, as Cohan wrote this play while honeymooning in London, he knew that those royal functions are held only at Buckingham palace; yet, for the sake of introducing a military show, he locates the scene at the portals of old Windsor, and shows to us a procession of ladies going in to kiss Her Majesty's hand. There are only eight of them, but they are so slow and stately, and the court trains, held by natty pages, reach out so far behind them, that the parade seems half a mile long. And at the end of it the Chicago sport with the letter from John L. Sullivan to King Edward is escorted in triumphantly.

The wolf who gives title to the new play of "The Wolf," is a ravening beast, although a man, and the lamb he would devour is the only girl in a forest. There is another animal thereabouts, however, a good strong mastiff of a fellow, and there you have the opposed forces essential to the making of drama. The dog overtakes the wolf carrying off the lamb, kills the ferocious brute in a fierce fight, and mates with the gentle creature to live happily ever after—though the happiness is conjectural, for big dogs have been known to eat little lambs quite wolfishly. This happens away North in the wilderness of Canada. Playwrights have crossed the border lately to get characters and scenes among the goldseekers of Alaska, and the lumbermen of British Columbia; and now we are taken to the trappers of the Hudson bay territory to find a spot so wild that a girl may grow to be 21 there without having laid eyes on a person of her own sex, or learning what is love. Surely the author, Eugene Walter, has sought to get close down to nature.

This play is truly singular. It has six characters only, with all men but one, and shouldn't that mean a scantiness of feminine interest? It has but three acts in which to develop and utilize a very serious plot, and has that ever been done in less than four? The intensest episode does not make a climax for the penultimate act, and does not come until the end of the play, which is an experiment in construction. Is it any wonder, then, that Walter couldn't make any manager believe in the value of such an odd play, or that actors strove in vain to get themselves placed on the stage in it? After his "Paid in Full" struck into prosperity, though, it was easy to get stageroom for "The Wolf." So, at a time when the Bowery is t'rowin' down the melodrama of gunplay and knife juggling, Broadway takes it up with enthusiasm. There were cries of bravo from men, and a spatting of gloved hands by women, when the wolf villain, having seized the lamb girl, and about to drag her away to his den, was faced by the mastiff hero.

"I shall take her," the wolf howls.

"You shall not," the mastiff barks.

If it came to a fight then and there between the wolf and the mastiff, the lamb would be devoured; but, just as in a hundred half-dollar melodramas, so in this two dollar example, a gun is poked into the scene, the girl changes hands from villain to hero and the curtain falls.

You are not to conclude, please, that "The Wolf" would be rejected in the Bowery as obsolete and is accepted in Broadway simply because it is a novelty there; for it would take a grip on any audience anywhere, and all because it presents directly, forcibly, melodramatically but not exaggeratively, the case of a girl who will be destroyed or rescued, according as the struggle between the bad lover and the good lover shall terminate. The author was shrewd to delay the decisive fight until 10:45 o'clock. Oh, my, but it is a fight to the finish. The mastiff, having taken the lamb away from the wolf, has started with her for the safety of civilization. He has reached a portage on the Bear river when the pursuing beast is heard. The scene has the illusion of a primeval forest at night. The tired lamb is laid down to rest. The dimness increases until only faint outlines are visible, and as Walter Hale and William Courtenay, who play the wolf and the mastiff, are counterparts in size, shape and voice the spectators can't discern which is which. Their weapons are knives. They grapple and wrestle, tumble down and struggle up, thrust and parry, emit exclamations of excitement, rage and pain, and from across the footlights that don't illumine no one can perceive how the duel is going. Don't you imagine what an interest of suspense is raised? Is the dear little lamb going to be saved or lost? At length a mortal groan is heard and one of the combatants falls flat, while the other stands erect; but who is the victor? He strikes a match to be sure that the vanquished one is dead; and it shines in his own face, letting the audience see that he is the good mastiff, while the bad wolf lies slain, the tender lamb is saved and the play is ended with no trivialties to let down the effect of a rousing climax.

At the Theaters This Week

DURING six days at the Willis Wood this week Robert Mantell will present this interesting and remarable repertoire: Monday night, "King Lear;" Tuesday, "Macbeth;" Wednesday afternoon, "The Merchant of Venice;" Thursday, "Richelieu," Lord Lytton's powerful drama; Friday, "Othello;" Saturday afternoon, "Macbeth," and Saturday night, "King Richard III." Each of these plays will be adequately staged. Marie Booth Russell is Mr. Mantell's leading woman. Lillian Kingsbury has been associated with Mr. Mantell several seasons. Leila and Lorraine Frost play the historicl boys of Shakespeare's tragedies. Francis McGinn was with Mansfield and leading man with Frederick Warde, and Guy Lindsley one time was leading man with Mme. Modjeska. Others in the company are Gordon Burby, Franklin Bendtsen, Romaine Callendar, Hamilton Mott, Henry Keefer, George Stilwell, Walter Campbell, Andrew Byrne, Peter Agnew, Watts Cale, John Nathan, Gould Sears, Gilbert Sells and Allen Collier.

"Strongheart," William C. De Mille's college play, which Robert Edeson used successfully several seasons, will return to Kansas City to-morrow for a week at the Grand. Ralph Stuart has the role of the young Indian. Evelyn Vaughan of Kansas City is Mr. Stuart's leading woman. Matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"Soldiers of Fortune," an adaptation of Richard Harding Davis's novel by Augustus Thomas, will be the Barker stock company offering at the Shubert. The play is a fine example of modern romantic drama. It is full of action and incident and has an entertaining love theme. Henry Kolker will appear as Henry Clay, the young mining engineer, a part created by Robert Edeson. Aileen Flaven will be Hope Langham, Frances Neilson Mme. Alvarez, and Wallace Worsley the jovial MacWilliams.

Gus Edwards's School Boys and Girls, nine muiscal youngsters headed by Herman Timburg, will present "School Days," a bright little comic opera, at the Orpheum. The engagement will be the second for this novelty at the Orpheum this season. Elizabeth Murray, the popular comedienne, has some new negro and Irish songs and stories. Zeno, Jordan and Zeno, acrobatic comedians, bring an amusing aerial act. Blockson and Burns, black face omedians: Thomas J. Keogh and Ruth Francis in the comedy playlet, "The Ward Heeler;" Lew Wells, a saxaphone soloist and monologuist, and Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew dialect comedians, complete the programme.

"In the Bishop's Carriage," Miriam Michelson's story of a feminine Raffles, adapted for stage purposes by Channing Pollock, will be the second production in in Woodward Stock company's season at the Auditorium. Eva Lang will have the role of the girl thief, who, through the love of an honorable man, is reformed and returned to good society.

"The Cowpuncher," Hal Reid's story of the cattle ranges of New Mexico and Arizona, will be the attraction at the Gilliss.

The Cherry Blossoms burlesquers will open an engagement at the Century theater this afternoon. Two lively musical comedies and five acts of excellent vaudeville comprise the programme.

A BULLFIGHTER'S FAREWELL.

Fuentes, the Toreador, Makes His Last Appearance in Madrid.

From the New York Herald's Paris Edition.

MADRID—Nearly all Madrid society was present Sunday at the "despedida," or farewell appearance, of the toreador Fuentes. Infanta Isabel, wearing the classic Spanish mantilla, occupied the royal box with Princess Louise d'Orleans, Infante Don Carlos, Principes Raniero and Felipe de Borbon. Queen Victoria's brothers, the Princes Alexander and Leopold of Battenberg, who were also in the royal box, witnessed a bullfight for the first time.

This "corrida" was of more than ordinary importance, and while it was proceeding the streets were almost deserted.

Fuentes will take part in no more bullfights in Madrid. He expects to appear in the arenas of Sargossa, San Sebastian and Nimes, also of Mexico, where he will remain during next winter, and then he will retire to private life, content with the honors he has gained.

Fuentes retires from the Madrid bull ring at the age of 39 years. Somewhat haughty and freakish in manner, he has fallen partly into disfavor with the Spanish populace. He has many influential friends in the aristocracy, however, and he possesses valuable trophies and jewels presented to him by members of the royal family and by foreign princes who have admired his exploits as a toreador.

Fuentes, as a thorough Andalusian, born in Seville, is somewhat superstitious, and, with the idea that the people no longer like him, he will take leave of Madrid for good.

In Spain, as the saying goes, to be a "torero" is better than to be a prime minister. Fuentes was born of humble parents. He is scarcely able to sign his name to a contract, but his fortune is considerable. Besides a large bank account, Fuentes owns a country seat near Seville. He would be even wealthier but for his previous prodigality and passion for baccarat and trente-et-quarante. He expects to earn much more before he retires definitely.

Fuentes has killed 2,142 bulls during his career. He has been badly gored many times, and on three occasions he barely escaped with his life. His work in the ring Sunday was perfect.

There is much speculation as to how Fuentes will pass his time during his retirement. Will he attempt to follow the example of his comrade, Mazantini, now assistant mayor of Madrid, or will he live quietly in sunny Andalusia, like Guerrita, enjoying his annual income of 70,000 pesetas?

Copenhagen's Vogue Grows.

From the New York Press.

It has taken a long time for Copenhagen blue to make favor in spring gowns, but it is arriving day by day, and doubtless ere the end of the week the shade will be as common as Alice blue became soon after its introduction. There is no reason why it should not be popular, for it at least is a cheerful hue, which is more than can be said for many of the browns to which unimaginative women cling with unaccountable tenacity. Alice blue was a pleasing shade, too, and probably would have lasted much longer were it not that people wearied of the hundreds of thousands of columns about the young woman for whom it was named that were printed before and after her wedding. One reason why Copenhagen has not gained vogue more rapidly, perhaps, is that it practically demands uniformity of color in the entire costume. Hat and stockings must match the frock, and only black elbow gloves and patent leather shoes should be worn with it, while the boa, also, should be sable as a raven's wing. With Alice blue there was more latitude, especially in regard to gloves.

Gloomy.

From the Washington Evening Star.

"Do you believe posterity will recognize what you have done for your country?"

"I don't know," answered the gloomy stateman. "Even if it does it will probably misspell or mispronounce my name and circulate portraits which do not resemble me."

The Natural Kind.

From the Baltimore American.

"What sort of steed do you suppose was most popular during the days of chivalry?"

"I suppose it was a knight-mare."

PRINCE WHO WAS AN ARTISAN

HE PREFERRED HONORABLE POVERTY IN PARIS TO A PALACE IN BELGRADE.

Bojidar Karageorgevich of the Royal House of Servia, Who Spoke and Wrote Eleven Languages, Earned His Living by Decorative Carving.

From the New York Evening Post.

PARIS—Have the memoirs of Marie Bashkirtseff still readers? Not so long ago they upset Mr. Gladstone and the world. Through their pages flits the curious, kindly figure of Bojidar Karageorgevich. What he was then he remained to the end, for he died last week. He grew up a prince in exile, in a mediocrity of fortune that encouraged no display; and he learned to earn his living in a way that did not derogate from his rank, such as it was, even after his family remounted a throne. He spoke and wrote eleven languages, five of them, including English, with literary force. He was a consummate artist and the friend of all that came to know him. Such a Parisian figure is worth fixing before it passes.

Bojidar was the grandson of the original "Black George"—Karageorge—so called from his dark skin. The family had a tradition of French origin; but George Czerni, as he was known, was born in Belgrade as a Servian when Turkey was in full rule. Our English classic, "Anastasius," which no one seems to read, gives perhaps the truest picture of Turkish soldiers of the time, the last quarter of the Eighteenth century. At any rate, Black George grew up with a single passion, hatred of the Turk; and little by little he gathered round himself brigand bands of Croats, Slavons and Greeks who were to begin the century long downfall of Turkey in Europe. In 1800 they took Belgrade; the sublime porte had to recognize Karageorge as Hospodar of Servia. This was the beginning of all the royalty which now holds that country.

Karageorge could not let well enough alone, and, after fighting desperately, had to escape to Russia, where Czar Alexander I promptly made him prince and general. Uneasy still, he ventured back on Turkish ground, and the pasha of Belgrade—how remote a title now!—quite as promptly cut his head off, at the instigation of his Servian rival, some say.

During those years as now, Christian Europe was always interfering, not always for its own. Sometimes it was a balance of power, sometimes it it a cordial understanding from England to Russia that must be preserved, no matter what cry may go up from Macedonia or Armenia.

The next Servian to achieve royalty was the Obrenovich, whose grand nephew was Milan, the king in exile in Paris so dear to Alphonse Daudet. Alexander Karageorgevich, uncle of Bojidar, drove out the Obrenovich in 1842 and reigned until 1858, when fortune turned her wheel again and all the Karageorgevich scions took refuge in Paris.

EKED OUT A LIVING AS A DECORATOR.

There Bojidar remained to the end, taking no part in the bloody tragedy which made his cousin Pierre a king. His mother, brother and himself in no wise profited by it, but have lived on in their modest house with a single servant—a rare Slavonic example of plain living and high thinking wilfully chosen. Only in these last days it became known that outside influence had secured the placing of the aged mother on the royal civil list for 40,000 francs.

Once a friend of Bojidar insisted on taking him off for a day to meet some celebrated diplomats. "I cannot afford to lose my day's work," remonstrated Bojidar, whose one shining coat was always welcome among the highest uniforms in Paris. "How much does it amount to?" "Ten francs!" was the frank reply; "that is something to me." It was the truth; two dollars a day was the average earning of this refined artist who, growing up among the most original art of his time, gave up ambitions of high painting for the decorative carving in which he excelled—and by which he could eke out the family subsistence.

His immensely long hands and fingers, corresponding with his long, fleshless form and face, all longtitudinal with a forehead mounting up endlessly, wrought things of beauty in gold and silver, horn and leather and precious stones, etched or carved or stamped beneath his deft fingers into novel designs, full of exotic grace and without the pretense and affectation of new art. Sometimes a poet, less poor than himself, would delight his heart by an order for a single work; but too often he had to work for dealers who, in his despair, obliged him to do over and over the same art objects—"just like billiard balls," he would say. The elevation of his cousin oddly stopped short almost all the private orders. They followed Mme. Palmyre, who throned at an ultra-Parisian bar which the new king had frequented; when she heard that her customer was crowned, she observed in reverent dismay: "To think that I have said thee and thou to a majesty!"

FRIEND OF MARIE BASHKIRTSEFF.

All the more reason that Prince Bojidar should work for dealers, who paid his work cheap and sold his productions dear as creations of their house—for his name was never traden on. He took his place in the line of other artisans waiting to deliver work; and, toward the last, he did much of his work in a shop along with the other workmen. They underwent his charm as the painter Bastien Lepage had done and Marie Bashkirtseff; and they asked to come in a body to his funeral. The king of Servia was represented by his ambassador; the French government by the ambassador of marine, and art and literature by its best.

Perhaps it was the presence of his fellow workmen which would have pleased Bojidar, grandson of Black George, the most, though he was not exacting of life. He said of himself, not without honest pride: "I have a profession—I am a decorative carver. And during the Russo-Japanese war, I worked for a news agency—not in diplomacy, oh, no!—I translated the Russian dispatches. I wish to earn my living freely!"

You would Not Accept Counterfeit Money—Why Accept Counterfeit Goods?

Good money is made by the government, in which you have implicit faith and confidence. Good goods are made by manufacturers who are willing to stake their reputations on the quality of the material offered to you through the medium of their advertisements in this paper. Counterfeit goods are not advertised. The reason for it is they will not bear the close scrutiny to which genuine advertised goods are subjected. Counterfeit money pays more profit to the counterfeiter. Counterfeit goods are offered to you for the same reason.

MARKETS & MONEY

TALK OF WHEAT SCARCITY

SUPPLIES ARE EXPECTED TO BE NEARLY EXHAUSTED THIS YEAR.

Prices Advanced Last Week in the Face of Favorable Crop News—Foreign Markets Strong—Signs of a Setback in the Corn Market.

Increasingly favorable prospects for this year's crop were overshadowed in the speculative market last week by the signs that the old wheat supplies will be reduced to very small proportions before another crop becomes available. As a consequence there were advances of 3 to 5 cents in prices, the largest gain being on wheat for May delivery.

Receipts of wheat at the five Western markets last week were a little larger than in the preceding week, though they were barely a third as large as a year ago. The deficiency was chiefly in the Northwest. Compared with two years ago and three years ago, there was not much deficiency in the movement. But the firmness of the cash markets and the fact that mills are taking enough wheat daily to keep cash prices at a premium over the May quotations is accepted as evidence that the demand will continue and that holders of the remnant of the crop need be in no hurry to sell out.

The probabilities are that there will be a considerable increase in the movement from the farms this week, continuing through the month of May, and this increase may be sufficient to modify theories as to the shortage in remaining supplies, though it is plain that very small reserves of old wheat will be carried over into the new crop year.

STRONG MARKETS ABROAD.

There was more advance last week in European markets than in American. The Liverpool July price yesterday was more than twenty cents over the Chicago July price, and September wheat was about seventeen cents higher in Liverpool than in Chicago. These differences seem to indicate that there will be a large foreign demand for the first new wheat that comes to market.

The strength abroad is due to the abrupt shrinkage in the Argentine shipments, which were only 2½ million bushels last week, compared with 3¾ million bushels in the preceding week, 6,048,000 bushels two weeks ago. The falling off is just what was to be expected after the extraordinarily large shipments during the past two months, but it means that for the next three or four months importing counutries must rapidly eat into their reserves, and into the quantity on ocean passage.

LIBERAL EUROPEAN STOCKS.

Fortunately the supply of wheat in Europe and afloat for Europe is larger now than ever before at this season of the year, and it can be reduced at the rate of 3 million bushels weekly, and still be as large on August 1 as on that date of 1907. European consumption of imported wheat was at the rate of 8 million bushels weekly in March and probably will average 9 million bushels weekly during the next three months. If the world's shipments average 6 millions weekly during that period, the stocks in Europe and afloat will be little or not at all below normal on August 1. The prospect of a shortage in the world's supplies, therefore, does not seem to be alarming.

The estimate of last week's world's shipments is 6½ million bushels, compared with 11½ million bushels a year ago. The comparison is a striking one and, taken in connection with the small American movement of wheat from the farms, it is not surprising that the grain trade of the world is somewhat disturbed over the problem of supplies for the remainder of the crop year, despite the liberal available stocks in Europe and afloat.

A year ago to-morrow the visible supply of wheat reached its maximum for the year 1907, increasing 785,000 bushels to 52,776,000 bushels. The indications are that to-morrow's statement will show about a million bushels decrease, bringing the total down to less than 36 million bushels. It has been less than that at this season four times in the past ten years, and it can go on decreasing at the rate of 1½ million bushels weekly for the next three months, and still be as large as it was on that date in 1905, 1904 and 1903.

BRIGHT CROP PROSPECTS.

Nearly all reports from the new crops, both winter and spring, agree that conditions are unusually promising. Seeding in the Northwest has progressed rapidly and is nearing completion at a much earlier date than usual. Needed rains in Minnesota and the Dakotas came in the last few days and the outlook is promising. In the western part of the winter wheat belt there are some scattering complaints that recent rains were inadequate and that more will be necessary soon to make a crop. On the whole, however, the outlook is for a big crop, with the chance for a record breaking total.

But the present indications are that there will also be a record breaking demand for the first new wheat that comes to market.

INCREASED CORN RECEIPTS.

Speculative trade in corn was quiet all week. Closing prices yesterday were slightly lower than a week ago, notwithstanding the advance in wheat. Apparently the large holders of Chicago May corn have been taking profits whenever they could do so without breaking the market. The high prices keep new buyers out, leaving the market largely to the evening-up operations of the "longs" and "shorts," and of the scalping traders. Receipts of corn at Chicago last week were 1,674 cars, compared with 726 cars in the preceding week and 1,019 cars a year ago. The increased movement was chiefly from Illinois. The private elevators in Chicago are transferring corn to the public houses, apparently preparing to make deliveries on May contracts. Chicago corn receipts were 1¼ million bushels in excess of shipments last week and the total stocks are now about 7 million bushels, a liberal amount to take care of with the May price 4 cents over the July.

The range of prices for the active grain futures last week and the close Saturday, with comparisons, are here shown:

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.

Ideal Conditions Prevail in Most of the Farming Area.

A week of alternating sunshine and showers in a large part of the winter wheat area has been conducive to a strong and healthy growth of the plants and except in limited areas the crop prospect is above the average for this season of the year. Portions of Kansas and Nebraska, in which little rain fell in the preceding week, received showers. Probably ½ million acres of winter wheat in the extreme western part of Kansas still are in need of rain and the crop is suffering serious impairment. In Nebraska a considerable area need rain. Ninety-five per cent of the entire winter wheat area of the country has abundant moisture for present needs.

The precipitation in the past two weeks at weather bureau stations in Kansas is here shown: Baker, 2.32 inches; Concordia, .58 of an inch; Dodge City, 1:30; Dresden, 69; Fort Scott, .95; Macksville, 1.48; Manhattan, 1.44; McPherson, 1.76; Osage City, 1.07; Sedan, 1.76; Toronto, 1.60; Wichita, 1.60; Kansas City, 1.25.

In the Northwest states seeding of spring wheat has progressed rapidly and probably three-fourths of the planting has been done. Opportune rains have fallen in the past two days in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Manitoba, so that the spring wheat crop seems certain of a favorable start. The precipitation amounted to ½ to 2 inches in a large part of the three big spring wheat states. The present indications are that the spring wheat season will be as far advanced on May 1 this year as on June 1 last year, when the seeding and the growth of the wheat was delayed by a prolonged period of unprecedented cold.

In the principal corn growing areas planting is under way with soil conditions favorable and prospects of an increased area.

IMPORTED BREAD IN ENGLAND.

The United Kingdom Produces Only 22 Per Cent of Its Home Needs.

In a statement presented to the British parliament it appears that in 1906 the imports of wheat and wheat flour into the United Kingdom were 78 per cent of the total supply. In Germany the imports in 1905 (the latest year for which returns were available) were 35 per cent, and in France in 1906, 3 per cent of the total supply. It was stated that in the United Kingdom in 1906 imported supplies were, of meat, about 47 per cent; of butter, 57 per cent, and of cheese 61 per cent of the total consumption. For France, the latest returns relate to 1892, and in that year the imports of meat were 3 per cent and of cheese 5 per cent of the total supply. Of butter there was a surplus exported. In Germany in 1906, under the old tariff, the imports of meat were 11 per cent of the total consumption. The United States has a considerable exportation of all these commodities.

The imports of wheat and wheat flour into the United Kingdom in 1906 were: From British possessions, 58,462,000 bushels, valued at 60 million dollars, and from foreign countries 129,330,000 bushels, valued at 132 million dollars. The quantity of wheat grown in the United Kingdom in 1906 was 54,123,000 bushels, of which probably 85 to 90 per cent was directly used for food by the people.

LOCAL SECURITIES.

Champions Play on Oval Billiard Table.

From Popular Mechanics.

Although the first oval billiard table made its appearance some time ago and gained an almost instant popularity in some parts of the world, very few of them have come into general use in this country. The new arrangement of cushions made many famous billiard shots much easier, and many more much harder, necessitating a new and thorough study of angles in which the cue ball had to be played and cushioned to make a successful carom.

INVESTORS ARE BUYING

LARGE TRADE IN BONDS LAST WEEK ON WALL STREET.

Increased Interest in the Stock Market Also, With Advancing Prices—Cheap Money and Faith in the Future the Strong Factors.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Evidence of an expanding investment demand for securities has stirred the stock market out of its dullness and started prices up. There has been an average advance of over 2 points in the principal stocks this week, and a substantial increase in the volume of trade. The most significant evidence of the revived investment demand is to be found in the trade in bonds. This week's transactions amounted to over 22 million dollars compared with 8 millions in the corresponding week last year. The active buying of bonds has induced considerable speculative buying of stocks on the theory that investors will turn more and more to the stock market as prices of bonds gradually advance.

Many of the inactive stocks have been marked up this week along with the speculative favorites. Such stocks as Standard Oil and American Tobacco common have made large advances.

NEW RAILROAD BONDS COMING OUT.

The activity in the bond market, together with the abundance and cheapness of money in the banks, has encouraged the railroad companies to resume operations for permanently financing their betterments of the past year, and for providing the means for needed improvements. The Pennsylvania company put out, this week, 40 millions of 4 per cent, forty year mortgage bonds, and they have met with an active demand both in this country and in Europe. The pessimists in the stock market declare that there cannot be much of a "bull argument" in this transaction, when the Pennsylvania company found it necessary to resort to a provision of thirty-five years' standing, and issue a first mortgage bond to tempt the public. But the upward movement of the market tells the real story of the effect on speculative sentiment.

For more than a year the railroads have either borrowed money at high rates for short periods, or else have used their available surplus for betterments and improvements. The fact that this era has passed and that there is a market for bonds at normal interest rates certainly is of great benefit to the railroads.

The expectation is that Union Pacific will issue about 50 millions to put in better shape some of its temporary financing arrangements. In a period like the present, of many idle cars and locomotives, it is not to be expected that railroads will need to raise much new capital. But there are many millions of short-term notes, and large amounts diverted temporarily from surplus, that they will want to permanently capitalize.

SURPLUS RESERVES 59 MILLIONS.

There is no cessation in the accumulation of idle money in the banks. The bank statement to-day showed a gain of over 10 millions in cash, notwithstanding the exportation of 5½ million dollars in gold to Paris. The surplus reserve is now nearly 59 million dollars. The indications are that it will reach 75 millions or more unless the Secretary of the Treasury calls a large part of the government money now on deposit in the banks. Conservative bankers believe that he ought to do this, both to relieve the present plethora of funds, and to have in his possession the means for meeting the increased demands for currency next fall.

The exportation of gold is attributable entirely to the excessive supply of money in the banks and the consequent low interest rates in this city.

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE GROWING.

The belief is growing that a resumption of business activity will not be delayed much longer. The facts as to existing business conditions show no improvement. Railroad earnings, bank clearings and the reports from the large industries indicate that general trade now is no better than it was a month ago. Nevertheless, confidence in the future is growing. Crop prospects are all that could be desired in all parts of the country. The season thus far has been an unusually favorable one. With a promising agricultural outlook, money and railroad cars will not remain idle for any great length of time, especially with the prospect of continued highly remunerative prices for all that the farmers have to sell.

The rally in the stock market this week was helped by the suspension of T. A. McIntyre & Co. They have been known as a "bear house," and though opinions differ as to the amount of stocks that had to be bought for the account of the suspended concern, whether it was great or small, the mere fact of the failure of a firm that is known to have been on the bear side of the market had a sentimental influence in inducing purchases against short sales that had been made at lower prices.

The fact that there has been an extensive covering by the short interests this week leads many traders to believe that next week some setback in prices may occur, but there seems to be no mistaking the general upward trend of the market.

Eclipsed.

From the Chicago News.

The man from London was boasting about the height of some of the big buildings in the English metropolis.

"They are so tall," he related, pompously, "that cupolas are not allowed."

"Awn phoy won't they lit th'm hav cupalos?" queried Larry, the cabby.

"Because they would puncture the clouds and let all the rain out. That's one on you, me friend."

Larry stroked his hair in deep meditation.

"Shure, awn thot's nothin'," he retorted, suddenly. "Phoy, over here th' buildings are so tall they hov to file off edges av th' top roofs."

"For what reason?" queried the unsuspecting Englishman.

"Phoy, to keep from cutting the chin whiskers off th' mon in th' moon. Git up, Jerry."

Knew One of the Firm.

TO TRANSLATE MIXTECO CODICE.

Young Indians to Decipher Paintings Which a Scientist Failed to Interpret.

From the Mexican Herald.

This codice, which is known as the Codice Colombino, belonged to Sr. Dorenberg, a wealthy merchant of Puebla, who acquired it from vendors of antiquities. The codice dates from a time previous to the conquest, according to the opinion of authorities in archeological affairs. It is painted on a series of deer hides, and is folded like a screen. The figures are in black, green, blue, yellow, red and white. Beneath the figures on most of the pages inscriptions have been painted, in Mixteco, probably some time afterwards, during the Spanish regime, possibly for the purpose of preserving the painting from destruction by the Spaniards.

It is believed that the paintings represent some of the usual festivities and rites of the old Mixteca Indians, and probably also some valuable information as to the history of that people, one of the oldest tribes in this part of the hemisphere.

The paintings have been studied by a good number of archeologists, but their meaning has not been discovered yet with the exception of some isolated figures which are known to represent the year, the temple and other common monuments. The German scientist and explorer, Hugo Thof, failed to decipher the paintings, despite the careful study he made of the codice.

Dr. Zeller thinks that the words written under the figures were added some time after the conquest. Jenaro Garcia, the present director of the museum, doubts whether the inscriptions are an explanation of the paintings. Prof. Abraham Castellanos, however, is inclined to believe that they will be a valuable aid in deciphering the meaning of the paintings. For this purpose he has brought to Mexico City five Mixteco Indians of the mountains of Oaxaca, near Tlaxiaco, in order to have them translate the words written on he codice.

The chief difficulty is that the Mixteco language, as it is now spoken in the Oaxaca mountains, greatly differs from the old language spoken there at the time the words were inscribed. It has been adulterated and mixed with very bad Spanish, and it is difficult, even for the Indians, to understand the inscriptions.

The men who came for the purpose of making the translation are very clever, and acquainted with both the classic Mixteco and the Spanish, and they are progressing well with the work. They are Eulogio Martinez, Cornelio Martinez, Alejandro Martinez and Placido Jaurez. It is known that, after the first Mexican president, Benito Jaurez, who was an Indian of the Oaxaca mountains, died, many of his fellow citizens adopted his name, and that is why Jaurez is such a common name among the Oaxaca Indians.

Eulogio Martinez is a particularly clever young man. He speaks good Spanish and has learned the best Mixteco spoken in the whole mountains of that section. He knows by heart some of the masterpieces of the Mixteco poetry, which he has translated into Spanish, preserving the freshness and delicacy of all the ancient poems written in his primitive language.

WOES OF MOTORISTS IN SPAIN.

Travel Considerably Easier Since the King's Visit to Seville.

From the New York Herald's Paris Edition.

SEVILLE—The weather just now is beautiful and Seville has put on her "bridal costume" of orange blossoms.

Since the visit of the king and queen in February vast improvements have been made on the roads of Andalusia, and with a little care it is now possible to enjoy automobile excursions. Many people from the north have made auto trips to Madrid, but few have come further south. The road between Madrid and Seville by way of Estremadura and Merida is at least practicable. The hotel at Merida is clean, and if one does not expect luxuries a night can be passed there by those tourists who do not care to cover the 300 odd miles in one stretch.

The direct route from Madrid to Seville, by way of Cordoba, should be avoided at all costs. Numerous mishaps have taken place, especially near Andujar. Many tourists have consequently been obliged to accomplish the rest of the journey by train.

On the other hand, one can easily reach Cordoba from Seville by passing through such interesting places as Carmona and Ecija, and, apart from the first twenty-five or thirty miles, which are rough, the road is quite good.

The road to Cadiz and Algeciras does not offer unmitigated pleasure. It is by turns good, bad and indifferent, but one must drive with great care. The route, however, is picturesque in many places and indeed beautiful when Mount Atlas, the straits and the African coast come into view.

If only the Spanish government would bestow a little more care on the proper upkeep of the roads Spain would be a delightful country for automobilists.

RARE SPECIMENS EXHIBITED.

Work of the New England Federation of Natural History Societies.

From the Boston Transcript.

At the house of the Boston Society of Natural History the third annual meeting and exhibition of the New England Federation of Natural History societies was opened Thursday morning.

Prominent among the displays was that of the Appalachian Mountain club, which exhibited a set of Alpine plants from the White mountains. These are of great interest to botanists, since the flora of such altitudes is very different from that of the lowlands. About fifty mounts were on view from the club's herbarium, including the mountain rhododendron, bearberry, Labrador tea, alpine laurel and the graceful cassiope.

John Ritchie, jr., of the Boston Scientific society has a small exhibit from his enormous collection of shells. There are shown specimens illustrating variety of form, structure and color. Shells in their natural condition, which have a horny epidermis were shown and also the same species cleaned for collectors. The epidermis is often so thick as to obscure the colors and patterns that most of us connect with the shells. These have no value to the living creature as some have thought, either for protection or attractiveness. Some valuable shells were shown illustrating form, the right and left hand shells, for example, and the Scalaria pretiosa, the precious wentletrap of the English, which a century ago sold as high as $25. An old age shell of the Cassis group was also shown, a shell which in youth sports four broad bands of orange color, but when at maturity the pigment is no longer secreted by the creature, the bands are discontinued and for the rest of its shell building the shell is a uniform white.

The Barton Chapter of the Agassiz association, represented by Miss M. Edno Cherrington, Miss Marguerite S. Clapp, and Miss Cora H. Clarke, exhibit a splendid educational showing of mounts of the lower orders in botany. Drawings of fosil and living cryptograms—the plants having no flowers—the specimens themselves, also mosses, ferns, botrychiums, water ferns and lichens. These were some of them alive, others preserved in celluloid mounts, others still in Riker boxes and besides specimens on the conventional botanical papers. Miss Clarke's contribution to the exhibit includes many mounts of Algæ or sea weeds.

Miss Clarke, representing another society, the Science club of Boston, exhibits many specimens of the galls. These are the excrescences on trees and plants produced by insects. Most people are familiar with the galls of the oaks and other trees from which ink was formerly made, but few realize that half a dozen orders of insects produce these excrescences which may be egg cases, homes for the young insects, and the like. Hundreds of species are known, but the study is highly technical. There is little literature on the subject, so that a systematic collection is of scientific importance.

A fine showing of the ferns of New England is exhibited by C. C. Kingman of the Teachers' School of Science of about seventy-five mounts. Other exhibits from the same association will be in place this evening.

J. H. Emerton, naturalist and artist, exhibits a study collection of spiders. These are put up in handy form for transportation, the specimens in alcohol being mounted on cards together with pictures of the web and other interesting items.

From the center of the state, Worcester, the Society of Natural History has a very interesting showing. There are the publications of the society, scrapbooks, pictures of the natural history camp maintained by the organization, local lists of plants and animals, and the like. Two items are of especial interest, showing the relations of the society to the cause of education, being first a set of bird skins, such as is lent to the teachers of the public schools for the use of the pupils, and a set of mosses used by the free classes maintained by the society.

Why Waycross Has Been Dry.

From the Baltimore American.

"Down in the 'wire grass' section of my state," said K. K. Upton of Macon, Ga., "is the flourishing town of Waycross, with a population of about 10,000.

"It is not exactly a prohibition town, and yet it has not had a saloon in the last sixteen years. Many a dealer would like to open up a place there in which to dispense cocktails and other cheering drinks, but there is one difficulty that nobody has yet been able to overcome—the matter of paying the license.

"Years ago the city fathers put the license fee at $30,000 and have never seen fit to cut it. This has up to date operated to deter men from starting in the saloon business in Waycross, and it is quite apt to operate as a permanent embargo."

Pasteurized Milk in Germany.

From Daily Consular and Trade Reports.

Consul Samuel H. Shank of Manheim in a report on the good results attending introduction into Germany by Mr. Nathan Straus of New York of the system of pasteurizing milk says the importance of the work may be realized when it is known that 25 per cent of the children born in Germany die before they are one year old. The consul adds:

"The fact that 33 per cent of the cows slaughtered in one German city and 42 per cent of those slaughtered in another had tuberculosis shows the necessity for exercise of great care in the use of cow's milk as food for infants. It is hoped that through demonstrations being made by Mr. Straus pasteurization of milk may soon become universal."

THE THIRST OF STATESMEN

N OTHER DAYS THE NATION'S LEGISLATORS DEMANDED "SNIFTERS."

n Webster's Time Members of Congress Drank Freely and as a Matter of Course—The Much Patronized "Hole-in-the-Wall."

With the completion of the new office buildings for the House and Senate at Washington, the architects have not neglected the "personal gymnasiums" and the lawmakers will experience no trouble in locating their wet goods emporiums.

This is a reminder of the "good old days"—the days when Webster, Calhoun, Clay and other legislative giants made the forum ring with their eloquence, when statesmen drank as a matter of course—some of them pretty hard—and nobody thought the worse of them for it. It was the fashion then for gentlemen to absorb an amount of liquor that would be considered decidedly unbecoming at the present time, and brandy or whisky in stiff doses furnished the inspiration for many a briliant speech in the Senate and House. If, in that classic epoch, any one had suggested the idea of excluding spirituous refreshments from the Capitol, a howl of indignation would have greeted the impertinent reformers.

When the century was yet only half grown, senators applied customarily for their toddies at the so-called Hole-in-the-wall—a small circular room just off the postoffice of the upper house. The latter body then occupied what is now the Supreme court and the postoffice was across the main corridor of the building on the same floor. When a wearer of the toga found himself in need of a "snifter" he had only to cross over to the mail department and pass through it to the little circular room aforesaid, which was about the size of a pantry.

CHOICE LIQUOR FOR LAWMAKERS.

The privacy was absolute, only senators being admitted to the sacred precincts, and the amount of "good stuff" consumed in that hallowed retreat is said to have been enormous. The immortal Daniel, Henry Clay and Little Giant Douglas clinked many a glass and swapped many a story there. Brandy there was for those who preferred it, but the favorite beverage was a rare old whisky, such whisky as degenerate moderns know not—and the price of it was ten cents! Only a dime were the grave and reverend legislators of those days obliged to pay for a dose of fluid encouragement.

The Hole-in-the-wall was the first Senate restaurant, and the bill of fare for edibles was short, though to the point. There was ham, guaranteed to have been smoked for six months, a veritable sublimation of the pork product, likewise corned beef and bread and cheese. They served, as an accompaniment for the fluids, and, when the Hole was crowded, as was often the case, senators ate their sandwiches outside in the postoffice.

The barkeeper of the Hole-in-the-wall was not an employee of the Senate. He enjoyed merely the privilege of dispensing liquor and food there, the only thing demanded of him being that the "wet goods" should be of the first quality; no inferior article could be palmed off on the legislative palate in those days.

Webster, when he had a great oratorical effort to make, always used a stimulant, and on one occasion this habit of his led to a very funny incident. He was speaking on the compromise measure of 1850, and at intervals during his discourse helped himself from a small ice water pitcher and glass which had been brought by a page. When he had finished, Senator Walker of Iowa got up to reply, and, reaching over to Mr. Webster's desk, took a portion of the contents of the pitcher, and attempted to drink it, supposing it to be water. In truth, however, it was gin, and the honorable gentleman nearly had a fit, sputtering and choking, while the dignified body of which he was a member, perceiving what the trouble was, became hysterical with laughter.

AN EXCHANGE OF COURTESIES.

Immediately above the room called the Hole-in-the-wall there ran a corridor, since wiped out by alterations in the building, and there during the last three weeks of each session of Congress was spread each day a banquet at the cost of the employees of the two houses, who "chipped in" to pay for it. It was really a very elaborate feast, all sorts of luxuries, including even terrapin and champagne, being served, and it was free to all senators and members of the House. The hospitality was by no means without a substantial object, however, for, as "compensation" for it, Congress voted $200 in gold to each employee. This, in fact, was the beginning of the custom, which holds to this day, of voting an extra month's pay to the clerks and other people in the salaried service of the House and Senate.

"My, my, but Senator B—— was a wonderful man!" said an employee of forty years' standing a few days ago. "He could hold more whisky and use more beautiful language than anyone I ever knew. Why, sir, I've seen him come out of the Hole-in-the-wall loaded to such an extent that he would have to hold himself up with a hand on a desk on either side of him, and in that condition, sir, he would make a speech that nobody could answer."

It is told of a certain other bibulous senator of those days that somebody ventured to ask him if he adopted any system in the regulating of his drinks.

"Decidedly so," he replied. "When I get up in the morning I put down a layer of whisky, and to that I add a layer of water. Then I superimpose a layer of breakfast."

"But how about the rest of the day?"

"Just a series of layers of whisky. Two or three more meals interspread, but no water."

It is said that in the early days of the century a good deal of liquor was paid for out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that this is the real significance of a mysterious and oft repeatetd item of "syrup" which appears in the accounts.

When the new Senate wing of the capitol was finished provision was made in its basement for the present restaurant and postoffice. Later on the library of Congress absorbed the quarters of the old postoffice, incidentally taking in the Hole-in-the-wall, and to-day nothing is left of the little circular room which had such an interesting and refreshing history.

COCKTAILS IN COMMITTEE ROOMS.

After the abolishment of the Hole-in-the-wall arrived the epoch of the committee room sideboard. It came to be the fashion to offer something to drink in committee rooms, and the most important qualification of messenger in charge was an aptitude in compounding cocktails and juleps. Senator Thurman, famous for his bandanna handkerchiefs, was very fond of a good cocktail, and when he called for "one of those things" a first class expert furnished it instantly. Unfortunately the sideboard system was abused by legislators who found it convenient to drop in and get free drinks whenever they felt in need of such refreshments, and thus it came about that the privileges were suspended and the committee room bar became a thing of the past.

Motor Cars in Turkey.

From the Levant Herald.

The followng instructions have been issued to the Turkish custom house authorities with regard to the introduction of automobiles into Turkey. The invoice price will be converted into piastres Medjidie at 19, and 15 per cent will be added for packing and freight, if the freight is included in the invoice only 10 per cent will be added. On this total a discount of 10 per cent will be allowed and the duty will be levied on the remainder. As regards autos in transit, they will be allowed six months to pass through the country. A lead seal will be attached by the customs authorities to a prominent part of the machine, which until further orders, if unprovided with an invoice, will be estimated at a minimum of 25,000 or maximum of 40,000 piastres; on this amount 10 per cent will be taken for duty and only returned, less transit duty of 1 per cent, when the auto is leaving the country, against presentation of the original receipt given by the custom authorities, on which must figure the name of the proprietor, the builder, the numbers and any distinctive marks on the machine.

Improving Spain's Roads.

From the New York Herald.

SEVILLE—Since the recent royal visit the roads from Madrid, through the province of Estremadura and to Merida, have been greatly improved and are now possible for automobiles. The direct route via Cordova is impracticable. The latter is accessible via Carmona and Ecija now. The road to Cadiz and Algeciras is also possible.

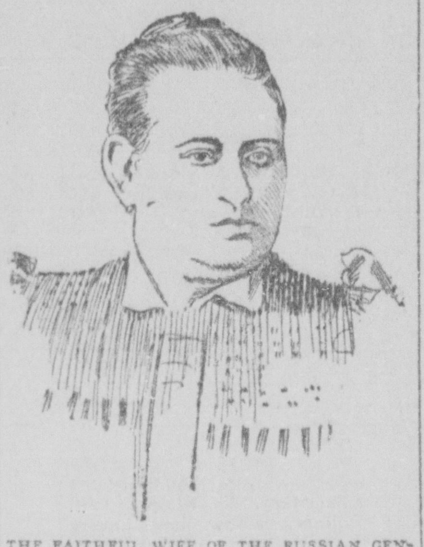
WITH STOESSEL IN PRISON

THE RUSSIAN SCAPEGOAT IS A SAD AND BROKEN MAN.

Loss of His Uniform His Greatest Humiliation—Watches From His Window the Winter Palace Where He Once Was an Honored Guest.

Two cold blue eyes examined me through a tiny wicket in the door, and a rough voice said: "What do you want?"

"I wish to see General Stoessel," I answered. "Have you permission?" said the voice. "Here is my ticket," I said, producing a card on which it was stated that the commander of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul had the honor to accord me leave to see the "nobleman Stoessel." The gate in the high stone wall was opened and a soldier appeared. He examined the ticket carefully and then showed the way to the reception room in one of the buildings in the court beyond.



THE FAITHFUL WIFE OF THE RUSSIAN GENERAL, STOESSEL, WHO VISITS HIM DAILY IN PRISON.

It was deserted, but as we passed an iron grating in a wall I saw that in the adjoining court were a number of gendarmes and jailers.

"That is where the political prisoners are kept," said the soldier, " and," he added with a malicious gleam in his eyes, "they require more care than our lot here."

The reception room was a small vaulted apartment, furnished with a table and a few chairs. On the wall hung a copy of the prison rules. Several smartly dressed women had already arrived and General Fock, who recently wounded General Smirnoff in a duel, came in, a few moments later, with several officers. We had not to wait long for Stoessel. Punctually at 1 o'clock he came into the room. He was dressed in a black frock coat. His voice was weak and he looked older and more wrinkled than when he was on trial a few months ago. He is now a broken man, who realizes that he has lost in the game of life.

FOR FORTY YEARS AN OFFICER.

"Oh, yes, one can live here, and in sufficient comfort" he replied to our inquiries about his life, "but it is a vegetable existence. More than anything I feel the loss of my uniform. For forty years I have worn the dress of an officer, and now I am not allowed to put on the coat of a common soldier or to use a military cap. The rule here, however, is not severe. The prison food is good, though simple, and the governor is most considerate."

In the fortress Stoessel has got to know his fellow prisoners, Admiral Nebogatoff, Captain Lishin and Captain Gergoreff. They generally dine together and no doubt fight again and win their lost battles.

"How do you spend the day?" was asked.

"It begins very early for St. Petersburg," he replied. "At 9 o'clock they bring the samovar and I take tea. The authorities do not provide bread and we have to buy that for ourselves. After a light breakfast I dress and go out for a walk in the little garden. At 1 o'clock I and the other officers imprisoned in the fortress dine together and after the meal I always find my wife waiting to see me. We have only the right to receive friends once a week, but the czar has accorded me the special privilege to see my dear wife every day. She remains until 3 o'clock and is not permitted to stay longer. When she is gone I stroll in the garden for a little and then I settle down to work. I am writing my memoirs and at present am engaged in describing my recollections of childhood. And I shall prove that those who declare that I am of Jewish origin are base caluminators."

Stoessel pronounced the last phrase in a voice full of anger. Then he resumed in his ordinary feeble tone: "When I arrived at the fortress no preparations had been made for my reception and I had to remain an hour in the courtyard waiting for them to take the things out of the room of another officer who is imprisoned here in order to make room for mine. The truth is that so many persons are at present incarcerated in the fortress that the authorities do not know where to put them."

"Perhaps you will allow me to see your room," I said, "I have special permission from the governor to do so."

"Certainly," replied Stoessel, "but I warn you it is not very imposing."

We crossed the courtyard together, entered another building and were soon in a vaulted apartment, finished with great simplicity. There was a little bed, a square table, two comfortable arm chairs, a cupboard and, behind a screen, a washstand. The lapping of the waters of the Neva could be heard on the stone walls, a monotonous, plaintive sound, half sad and half soothing. Through the barred windows a glorious view could be seen. Far across the broad expanse of the river stood out in the bright sunshine the Winter palace.

THE SCENE OF PAST TRIUMPHS.

"I have often been there to see the emperor. I have dined there and years ago danced at the court balls. I never expected to see it day by day from a prison window."

Stoessel sighed as he looked sadly towards the palace and then, turning to me said: "There is only one beautiful thing here, the church. I love to go there and to stand near the tombs of the czars while the choir is singing the praises of the Lord and of the Virgin. That rests and comforts me. In my heart I know that I did what I considered best for my country, but a scapegoat had to be found for the sins of the army during the war and I suffered for many."

The heavy door was suddenly thrown open and a harsh voice said: "Your guest must go."

"Come and see me again," said my unhappy host. And I left him still gazing at the palace across the Neva.

ARE A TERROR TO BAD MEN.

The Rangers of Texas a Band of Peacemakers.

The policy adopted two years ago by the governor of Texas in keeping a detachment of Rangers constantly stationed at Austin has proved highly satisfactory. These Rangers are always ready to respond to any call that may come in from a locality in the state where serious trouble is threatened or is actually occurring. They frequently are sent on these flying missions, and more than once they have prevented bloodshed by being able to go promptly to the scene of disturbance.

At this time there are stationed at Austin seven Rangers and their commander, Captain J. H. Rogers, who is a veteran in this branch of the state military service. Every man in the detachment is a trained fighter. They have spent years in the saddle and have hunted down outlaws from one end of the state to the other. No expedition is too hard or dangerous for them to undertake if it falls to their lot in the course of their duties. All of them have been in numerous hand to hand encounters with "bad" men.

The Texas Rangers are composed of four companies. These companies are divided into detachments and are stationed at different points in the state. One company has its headquarters in the northwestern part of the state, another in the extreme southwestern, near the upper course of the Rio Grande, another in the extreme southern part within convenient distance of the lower Rio Grande border points, and the other one makes its headquarters at Austin. The companies and detachments are moved about from station to station at intervals of about once a year. This permits a detachment to spend about one year in every four at the Austin station. At the outside stations they are kept on the go almost constantly, making long scouts after cattle thieves or other outlaws and in aiding local officers in running down desperate criminals or enforcing the law.

Before being sent to Austin a short time ago Captain Rogers and his men were stationed for a long time in the Panhandle region, and after a hard service in ridding that territory of outlaws they were transferred to the Rio Grande border, where they found plenty to do in dealing with bands of Mexican smugglers and other desperate characters who infest the frontier. Their duties while stationed at Austin are comparatively light. They report daily to the adjutant general.

Captain Rogers and his men have an established camp here. They find duty at the capital somewhat irksome. In order to keep in trim they take long rides on horseback almost every day and do a good deal of practice shooting with rifles and pistols. The Rangers are not uniformed. They are permitted to wear whatever kind of clothes that they please. But all of them wear big white sombreros that are typical of the Texas stockmen and cowboys of the West. Some of them get to be very "dressy" after being in Austin awhile, but they never shed their white sombreros nor the big spurs from the heels of their boots.

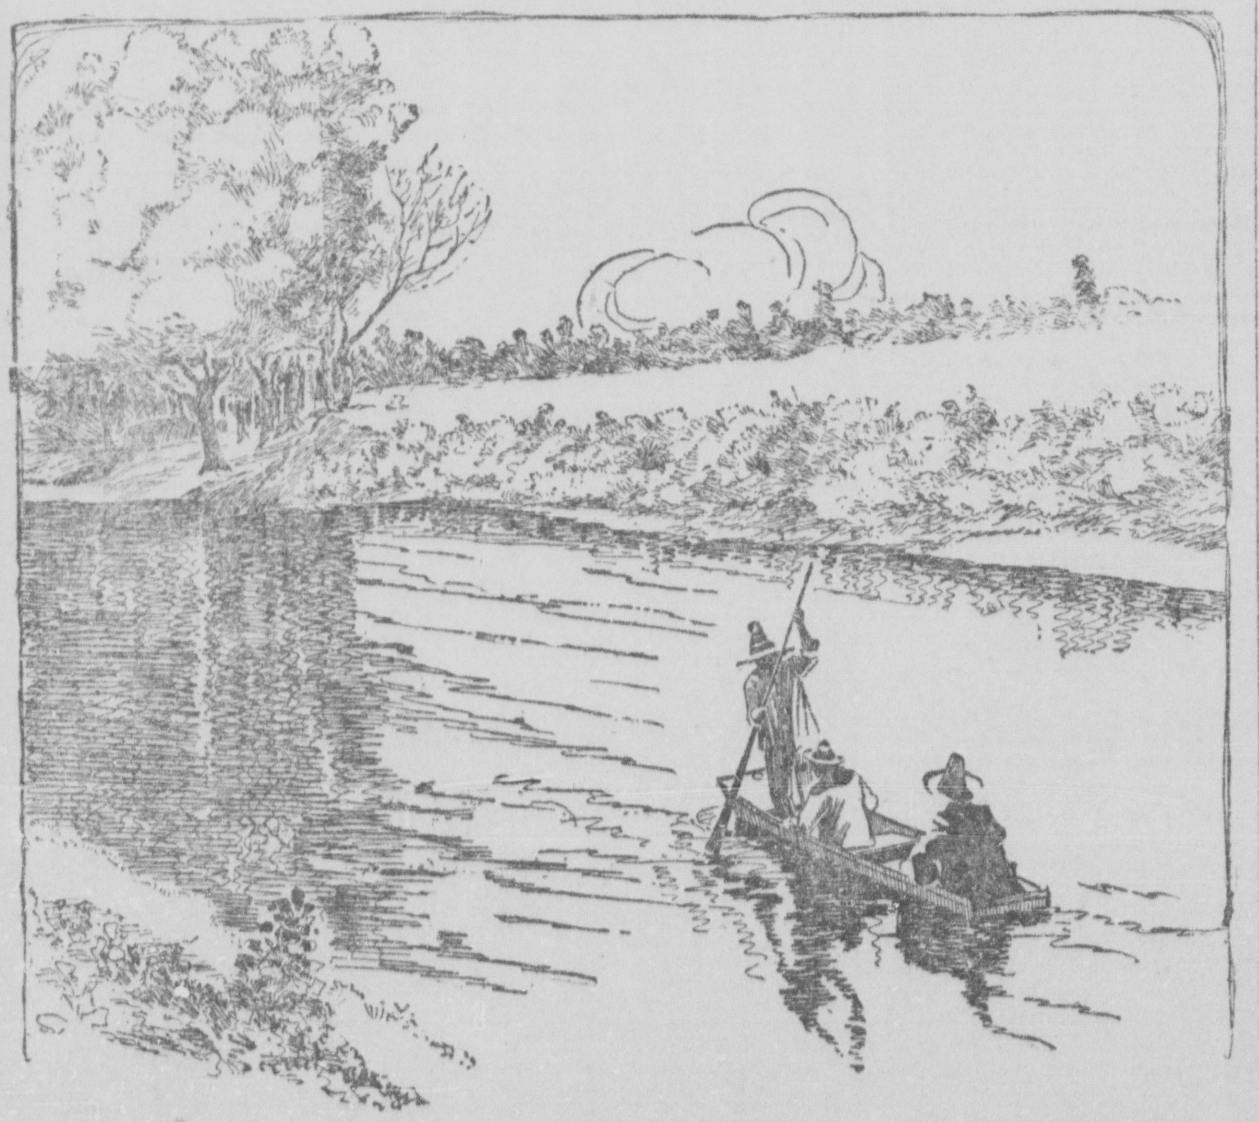
Has Her Money Laundered.

From the New York Press.

"The demand for new bills for shopping is on the increase among women," said a local bank teller, "and is getting to be a nuisance. A great many women won't handle any currency that is not absolutely fresh and crisp, and most of the banks that make a specialty of catering to women's custom keep a supply constantly on hand for that particular purpose. Sometimes the bills are hard to get, especially those of certain denominations, and gold is unpopular on account of the danger of confusing the $2.50 coin with a bright penny.

"It is not generally known, but soiled or dirty bills can be washed and ironed as easily as a pocket handkerchief. A wealthy woman of my acquaintance has all her money laundered before she uses it. She turns the notes over to her maid, who washes them thoroughly in hot water with ordinary soapsuds and spreads them out on a table to dry. The she dampens them slightly and preses them with a medium hot smoothing iron. If the bill is not frayed this process will make it as bright and crisp as when it left the treasury. It is astonishing how dirty money gets. If one could see the water in which a dozen commonly circulated bills were washed it would give them a permanent aversion to the trade of teller."

LA VIGA CANAL, WHERE MEXICO CITY, OLD MEXICO, HOLDS ITS FLOWER CARNIVAL.



The annual flower festival of the Indians along La Viga canal in the outskirts of Mexico City, Mexico, is now in progress. It began the first of holy week and will continue over a period of about three weeks. It is one of the most beautiful and picturesque of the many fiestas which are to be witnessed in Mexico. The canal of itself presents a scene of rare beauty and picturesqueness at any time of the year and it is particularly so during this festival, when the many boats which travel up and down the little waterway are loaded with flowers of bright-colored hues.

The principal point of celebration of this festival is at the Indian town of Ixtapalapa, which is situated upon the bank of the canal, and within a few minutes' ride by electric car of the city. Santa Anita is another point where the people are gathered by the thousands to enjoy the festivities. The villages are beautifully decorated with flowers. Great numbers of booths where articles and edibles are sold are massed in flowers. The boats which ply upon La Viga canal are festooned with roses, carnations, pinks, orchids, pansies and daisies and many other flowers.

It is from La Viga canal that the flower markets of Mexico City are supplied with flowers the year around. There are vast gardens kept by the Indians. The flower market situated in the zocalo, near the National palace, and which is the object of much interest to American visitors to the city, receives its daily supply of flowers from the Indians along La Viga canal.

JACKSON COUNTY'S "BURIED TREASURE."

STORIES OF HIDDEN RICHES THAT HAVE LED TO MUCH LABORIOUS SEARCHING.

BURIED treasure! At the mention of those magic words most of us are "kids" again, carried back to the credulous days when Sinbad's gold was just beginning to seem fanciful and Tom Sawyer's find of Injun Joe's cave-hidden hoard was still a stimulating reality. For a brief moment we return to the period when every lightning-riven oak marked a pirate's cache and every mound in the woods hid kegs of gold.

We used to sneak up to these mounds at night with wabbling legs and hearts thumping. Midnight was the proper time. The mound was to be appoached so no shadow fell on it and one boy was to watch for "spooks" while the other plied a spade. As "ma" used to put the digging limit at 8:30 o'clock, the charm of midnight was "busted" and we went home treasureless, wide-eyed and nervous.

> Like one who on a lonely road
> Doth walk in fear and dread,
> And having once turned round, walks on,
> And turns no more his head,
> Because he knows a frightful fiend
> Doth close behind him tread.

But all who search for buried treasure are not "kids." A hundred men in Jackson county have dug for hidden gold. The marauding of Quantrell's bushwhackers and the "Red Legs" of Kansas and the concentration of Southern sympathizers by Order No. 11 caused many families to bury money, plate and other valuables for safety until times of peace. Often the families were extinct when the war ended or those who knew the treasure's location were dead, and the valuables remained in the ground. In various parts of the county, especially near Independence, thousands in money, jewels and family papers are buried and forgotten. Hundreds of holes have been dug to find these treasures, and a new generation is now trying its hand at the old game. If anyone has found a fortune the fact has been concealed. "Matt" Gossett, an Independence grocer, is the only man who is known to have found anything, and his search, was rewarded only by a pile of guns, revolvers, clothing, shoes and other articles believed to have been taken from slain Federals by bushwhackers and buried for future use.

"The find was in the Round Grove district," said Mr. Gossett, "and I dug around the place, but never found anything else. It was commonly believed during the latter part of the war that Quantrell had buried his Lawrence plunder there."

BLISTERED HANDS AND DISAPPOINTMENT.

"There are two stories about Quantrell's treasure. One is that the money was buried near Round Grove creek, where it still remains, and the other is that it was dug up later by Charles Higbee, who helped bury it. Higbee was in Independence after the death of Quantrell in Kentucky, and then disappeared. He went to Texas, where he died. No one knows whether he got any of the money.

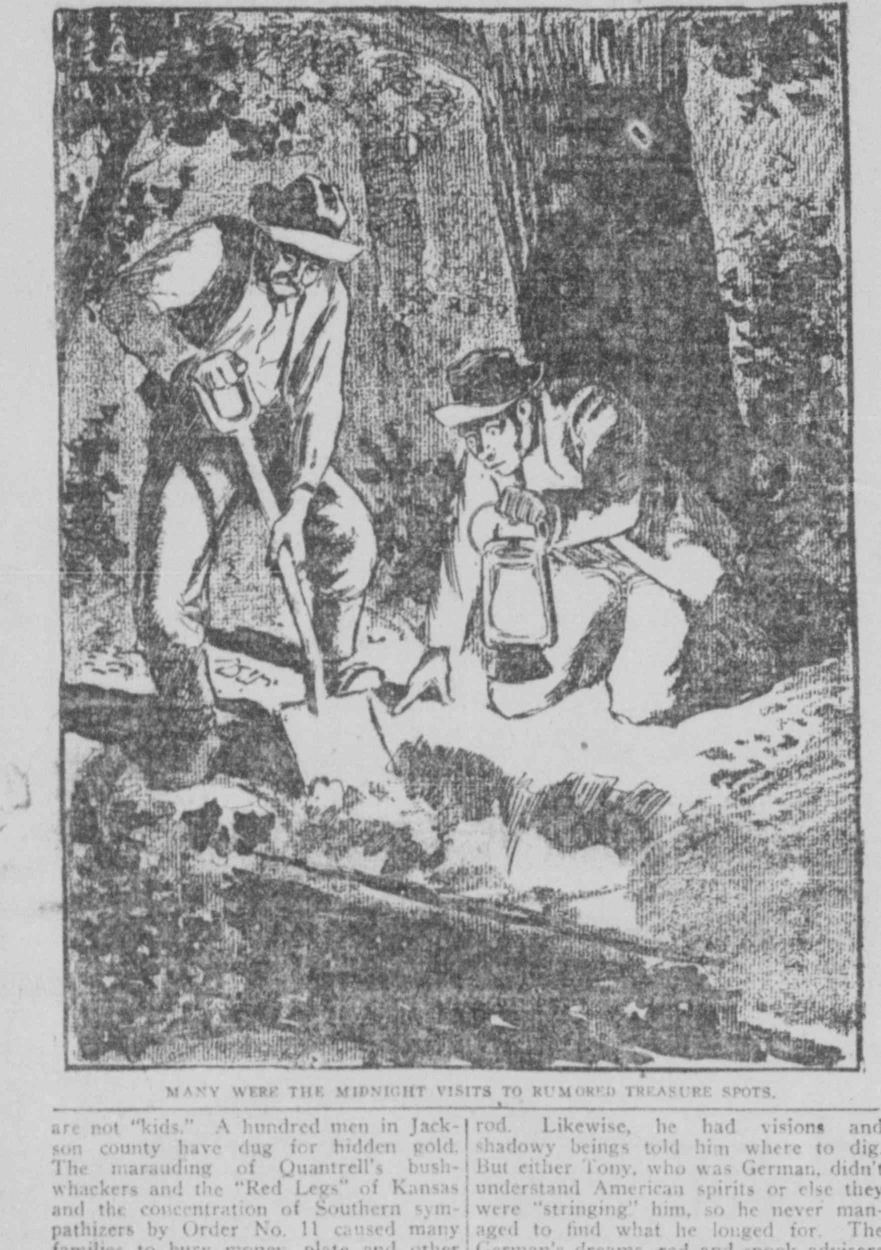
"'Hick' Stovel, a member of Quantrell's band, believed the money was still buried. He and I went to Round Grove creek a number of years ago and dug in several places that Stovel remembered as camping grounds and promising spots, but we didn't get anything except blisters on our hands."

Grain Valley has its Quantrell romance. It was either a girl or treasure that brought Martin Potts back to a spot a mile northeast of the village toward the close of the war. Potts had been a confidential adviser of Quantrell and was supposed to know where the places were that the bushwhacker had his sinews of war. Grain Valley believed that one of these caches was northeast of town and that Potts knew its location. So Potts made the mistake of visiting Grain Valley. He made the further mistake of going one mile northeast and of going alone and in the evening. Whether the bushwhacker kissed his girl the last time that night, or whether he loaded up with what pirate tales call "the yellow boys," no one knows, but he was found, assassinated and robbed, in Lafayette county, a few miles from Grain Valley, several days later. Then the Grain Valley community turned itself loose a mile northeast and made the district look like a prairie dog town, but nothing resulted beyond a changed landscape and sound sleep from healthful exercise. And when all was said and done, no one knew whether Martin Potts carried away the treasure and lost it to robbers or whether it still remains hidden.

There is $5,000 somewhere under the sod near the Spring Branch road beyond the old Johnson place, a mile southeast of Independence. At least, the family that owns it has never been able to find it and the only man who knew where it was hidden is dead. When Colonel Jennison and his Fifteenth Kansas cavalry were paying active visits to Jackson county Henry Johnson put $5,000 in gold into his saddle bags and left his home, riding southeast. "Don't follow me," he said to his sons. "I am going to bury this for safe keeping and I don't want anyone to knew where it is. No one can make me tell, but they might force one of you to talk."

He rode away and returned. Then he went to Chicago on a visit and died. Although the Johnsons and several others hunted diligently for the money it is still there in rustless gold, waiting for a turn of the spade.

Among those who had a try for the Johnson thousands, and every other "2-bit" piece believed to be hidden in Jackson county and vicinity, was Tony Blau, an old time Independence cobbler. Tony dreamed things. He also had a divining rod. Likewise, he had visions and shadowy beings told him where to dig. But either Tony, who was German, didn't understand American spirits or else they were "stringing" him, so he never managed to find what he longed for. The German's dreams, rod and spook advisers told him to dig along the line of the old Wayne City road. So Blau prospected the line nearly to the river and raised splendid biceps and a great deal of dust, but no cash.



MANY WERE THE MIDNIGHT VISITS TO RUMORED TREASURE SPOTS.

WANTED TO WRECK A HOUSE.

There is another man in Independence who had dreams, but he wouldn't tell his name. Several years ago, Edwin Irving, publisher of a Kansas City trade paper, got off the electric car about 11 o'clock at night at his home on the line just out of Independence and found a whitet man and a negro sitting on the ground in his yard. They had an ax, a saw, a hammer and a spade. As Irving opened the gate the white man arose and bowed profoundly.

"I'm suhly sawry, suh, to approach you with such an extraw'd'nary request," he said, "but I've had a dream, suh, that bur'rd treasure is concealed in you'h res'dence and I've brought a niggah to do the work of gettin' at it. I don't suppose, suh, you object."

Mr. Irving did object to having the lining torn out of his home, and the gentleman with the language and manner of the old South took his "niggah" and departed.

During one of the war raids, Dr. Waldo, cashier of a bank at Independence, dropped $20,000 in gold into a cistern on the old Waldo place, near the western limits of the town. It remained there until the raiders left, when the doctor fished out the package and carried it back to the bank. It was his custom to hide the bank's cash whenever it was in danger. Benjamin Wallace, another officer of the bank, would take half of the gold and Dr. Waldo half and they would leave the bank by different ways with the money in pockets and fastened about their clothing. At some place in the nearby woods they would meet and bury the money. On one of these trips they were to meet at a large fallen tree. Dr. Waldo arrived first, and, to conceal himself from view, lay down under the curve of the tree. In a few minutes he heard a man approaching. Was it Wallace? The footsteps neared the opposite side of the log——

Who-o-o-o-o!

A hoot owl swooped down from nowhere—"And," said a relative of Mr. Wallace several days ago, "no one knows how far those two bank officers ran."

All Independence has heard of the Abston treasure. Tradition says that $20,000 was buried about ten miles southwest of town by the head of the Abston family, and the location lost. Little searching was done for this money, as even the approximate location of the hoard is not known.

"I was a boy at the time," he said recently. "My mother had $350 in gold which she wanted to save until the very last extremity. So she buried it in the yard near the line of the adjoining premises. The neighbor, of course, knew nothing of it, and started to build a fence. An Irish workman began digging the post holes and when a few yards from the gold, it was apparent that the next hole would be exactly over the money. Fortunately he knocked off work for noon and I took his spade and dug a hole as near as possible like those he had dug. Just as I had slipped out the money, he came back to work.

"'It's a fine bhoy ye are, he said, delighted at the apparent aid. 'Sure, ye dug almost as good a posht hole as I cud meself.'

HIS SLAVES WERE WATCHING.

John Braden had worse luck with $200 he buried in his yard. He hid it at night to prevent his two slaves, "Dan" and "Liz," from seeing him. The next morning "Dan," "Liz" and the $200 had vanished and Mr. Braden never saw them again. He said afterward he would give another $200 to know how they saw him bury the money.

Tales of treasure go back to the days of the Mormons. About two and a half miles east of Independence on the Spring Branch road are several mounds which tradition points out as relics of Brigham Young's people. During the Civil war Federal soldiers dug into them and around them, but there is no record that anyone ever found anything. At that time the mounds were several feet in height.

The Jackson county buried treasure germ is still alive. It is dormant at times, but grows active periodically. Judge James Peacock tells an amusing instance of its rapid awakening when the new electric car loop was put in at Independence last year. On Maple avenue the excavators suddenly came upon iron, wheels, cut timber and planks.

"In about half an hour," laughed the judge, "there were twenty people there with spades, hoes and other tools—just happened to be passing, you know. They were mighty disappointed to discover that the find was only the old turntable of the Wayne City road, which was abandoned and covered over about 1849."

"Did you ever hunt for treasure, judge?" was asked.

"Oh, my, no," answered the aged oracle of Independence, but his eyes twinkled.

"PASTE" JEWELS WERE REAL.

This Woman Bought a $50,000 Necklace for $20.

The joy of a woman who, through the blunder of a clerk in a jewelry store, is able to buy a $50,000 pearl necklace for $20, must be intense. But it is only a circumstance to the sorrow of the employer of the clerk whose innocence made the mistake possible. Luckily for the jeweler (and the clerk) the woman who purchased the string of precious stones was honest when put to this severe test and returned them when she discovered that a most amazing mistake had been made.

A story like this deserves to take its place side by side with the one that tells of the buying of Manhattan island for a paltry $14. It is more incredible to present day readers. Yet it is just as true, for this comedy, which came very near being a tragedy, involving as it did the possible ruin of the jeweler, has just been enacted in Paris.

Mme. Rochelle, the wife of a prosperous lawyer, wishing to purchase a high class imitation pearl necklace for herself, repaired to a well-known establishment in the Rue du Louvre. Now it so happens that this same store is patronized by the rich and titled who wish clever imitations of their famous jewels made for public wear.

Among the customers of the store was a famous Russian princess, whose pearls are the talk of Paris, where she resides, and the envy of her less fortunate friends. Some days previous to the visit of Mme. Rochelle to the store the titled customer had left to be imitated a string of rare pearls, valued at $50,000.

The proprietor of the store, into whose hands the Russian princess had delivered this valuable necklace, placed it in one of the safes along with several imitation strings, but on a separate shelf. He did not, however, speak to any of the assistants about its presence there. So when Mme. Rochelle entered and asked to see a number of necklaces, among the other strings brought from the safe for her inspection was the one of the real pearls belonging to the Russian.

Now this wife of a French lawyer was no judge of pearls. It is safe to say that she would not be able to tell the difference between a real jewel and the imitations sold by this excellent store in the Rue du Louvre. Yet it did not take her very long to decide that she wanted the real pearls in preference to the imitations. Imitations are all very well when compared with the ordinary pearls that reach the open market, but the man who can creditably reproduce the pearls that find their way into a $50,000 necklace has yet to see the light of day.

With her "imitation" pearls under her arm, Mme. Rochelle paid spot cash and departed, leaving behind no clew to her identity.

A few days later, at a dinner party, she wore the necklace for the first time. Several of the guests admired it, but most of them concluded, knowing Mrs. Rochelle's circumstances in life, that it was a very clever imitation of the real article. Finally, one who knew more about jewels than the ordinary man in the street, remarked upon its beauty, saying: "It must be worth at least 200,000 francs."

"Oh, no," replied Mme. Rochelle, laughing at the idea. "As a matter of fact, I bought it not many days ago and only paid 100 francs for it."

"But I assure you," the man persisted, "that it is worth much more than that. I know something about stones myself and am certain I am right. However, I have a friend here who is a connoisseur of pearls and he will know at once."

He accordingly fetched his friend who, after examining the necklace, confirmed his friend's opinion that the pearls were real ones, and of great value.

Meanwhile, in the Rue du Louvre, the proprietor and his unfortunate assistant were having fifty-seven varieties of convulsions. They never expected to see Mme. Rochelle again and the proprietor was making preparations for putting up the shutters and closing the business out, for if he was compelled to pay the Russian princess for her lost necklace he not only would be ruined financially for the time being, but he would lose all his titled customers. He determined, however, to keep the matter a secret until the princess demanded her necklace back, and he hardly took his eyes off the door dreading as he did a call from that individual.

The day following Mme. Rochelle's dinner party, with many sighs and regrets, that estimable woman packed up the beautiful pearls and repaired to the store in the Rue du Louvre. Immediately she stepped inside the door, the proprietor and several of the assistants rushed excitedly towards her. Imagine their surprise and joy when she held out the package towards them and announced that she had brought the pearls back.

An Awful Strain.

From the Chicago News.

The big auto was standing in front of a down town clubhouse.

"It must be a good deal of a strain to run a machine like that," remarked the man on the sidewalk.

"You bet it is," replied the chauffeur. "Why, when I go for two or three weeks without running over anybody I get so nervous I can't sleep."

A DAM TO COST 8 MILLIONS

This Government Project at Engle, N. M., Will Supply Water for Irrigation to 200,000 Acres of Land—To Be Paid for by Farmers.

The reservoir which will be formed by the construction of the Elephant Butte dam across the Rio Grande river at Engle, New Mexico, the construction of which was begun a few days ago by the federal government, will be twice as large as any other artificial water reservoir in the world. This distinction is now held by the reservoir which is formed by the great Assuan dam in the Nile river.

The Elephant Butte reservoir will be forty miles long and, in places, six miles wide. It will have a storage capacity of 2 million acre feet to the level of the spillway, or approximately 100 billion cubic feet, or 650 billion gallons of water.

This is one of the reclamation projects of the government, and its consummation will mean more in the matter of the development of the Southwest than any industrial enterprise ever undertaken in this region.

TO COST 8 MILLIONS.

The estimated cost of the dam is 6 million dollars. In addition to this sum, not less than 2 millions will be expended in constructing the system of canals and ditches for the great irrigation project. The site of the proposed dam is at the mouth of a long and deep canyon, and its width will be only 400 feet at river level. Its length at its crest will be 1,200 feet. Its height from bedrock foundation to the crest will be 275 feet. The width of the dam on top will be twenty feet, and this space will be occupied by a driveway which will afford a convenient means for crossing the river.

An enormous amount of material will enter into the construction of the dam. It will include more than 300,000 barrels of cement and a great amount of sand and gravel. Involved in the construction are 44,400 cubic yards of soft rock and earth excavation and 335,000 cubic yards of sand excavation. The construction of coffer dams, each to be 400 feet long, will be necessary. The excavations in bedrock for dam anchorages will amount to 5,000 cubic yards. The concrete in the dam above the river bed will aggregate 300,000 cubic yards and below the river bed 114,000 yards. The excavation of more than 120,000 cubic yards for the spillway will be necessary.

One of the important preliminary pieces of work to be done in connection with the construction is the building of a tunnel through the mountain which borders one side of the dam site. This tunnel will enter the mountain just above the dam and will make its exit into the river some distance below the dam. It will be used to divert the flow of the river while the construction of the dam is in progress. In view of the fact that there are occasional floods in this stream, when a large outlet is required to take care of the flow, the tunnel will be of ample size and its construction of a permnanent nature. It will serve the purpose of an irrigation canal or flume when the dam is finished. This tunnel will run through solid rock for most of its length.

WILL IRRIGATE 200,000 ACRES.

The initial acreage to be placed under irrigation in the valley of the Rio Grande from this reservoir is about 200,000 and to water this number of acres only about 600,000 acre feet of water will be required. In order, however, to provide for a series of dry seasons that may occur the reservoir is to have a capacity for an enormous amount of surplus water. It also is expected that a big quantity of silt will be brought into the reservoir, and, while sluices will be provided for ridding the basin of as much of this accumulation as possible, it is not expected that all of it can be taken out.

Workmen are now excavating for the eastern abutment of the dam. When the preliminary work is finished several thousand men will be employed in the construction work. A site for a town to be made up of these federal workmen has been laid off and it will be a lively place when the work is in full progress. It is stated that the government will construct its own cement plant. A fine deposit of cement material has been found adjacent to the site of the dam and no difficulty will be experienced in obtaining plenty of the raw product. The site of the proposed dam is located some distance off of a railroad, but it is stated that a branch line will be built to the place in order to haul in the construction material and supplies that will be needed for the work.

The stretch of valley land that is to be brought under irrigation and cultivation by the building of the Elephant Butte dam extends from the site of the proposed dam to old Fort Quitman, Texas, a distance of 185 miles. The valley is narrow in most parts and it takes a long stretch of territory to make up the 200,000 acres that are to be reclaimed. It is estimated that at this time not more than 35,000 acres of this valley are under cultivation.

LAND OWNERS TO PAY COST.

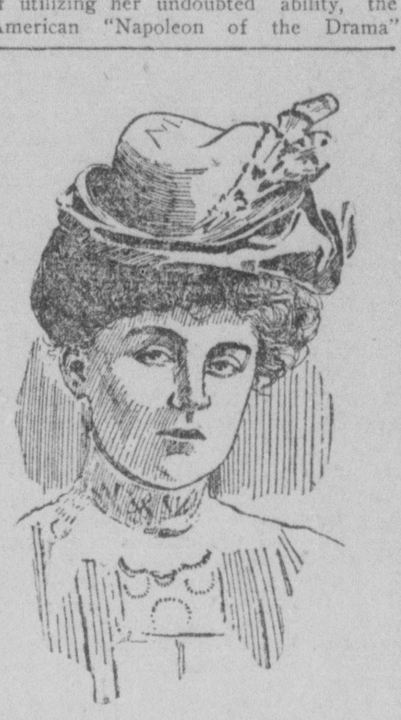
In addition to this 200,000 acres that are to be brought under the system of canals and ditches on the United States side of the river, a considerable part of the water from the big reservoir will be delivered to the land owners on the Mexican side of the river. This apportionment to Mexico of a certain part of the impounded water is provided for in the international treaty which permits the construction of the dam. The United States government has appropriated 1 million dollars towards the cost of the Mexican side of the big project.

While the government bears the original cost of establishing this great reclamation enterprise, the land owners who are to receive the direct benefits from the irrigation system will repay the government at the rate of $4 per acre per year for ten years. At the expiration of that period the big enterprise passes into the hands of the land owners themselves, with free water in perpetuity.

AN ENGLISH BEAUTY COMING.

A London Theatrical Favorite Will Star in America.

Charles Frohman at least has the courage of his convictions. The news that he has engaged Miss Alexandra Carlisle, the young and beautiful English actress, for a joint starring tour in the United States with Joseph Coyne no doubt caused a whole lot of heart-burning and regret among the London managerial corps. While the London managers fooled about, hesitated and delayed for an "opportunity" of utilizing her undoubted ability, the American "Napoleon of the Drama" stepped in and carried her off before their very eyes.



ALEXANDRA CARLISLE, A BEAUTIFUL ENGLISH ACTRESS WHO IS TO STAR IN AMERICA.

Those who are blessed with a good memory will recall Miss Carlisle, for she has made a previous but unsuccessful attempt to exhibit her talents in the United States. It seems that her first acquaintance with fame was obtained as leading lady, in London, for Nat Goodwin. He took her from a small part in "The Voysey Inheritance," one of the Vedrenne-Barker productions at the Court theater. So well did Miss Carlisle stand the test of this sudden jump into prominence, supporting the American comedian in "A Gilded Fool" and "An American Citizen" at the Shaftesbury, that he decided to take her to America as his leading lady.

When he came to this decision Mr. Goodwin wrote to the United States telling about his "find," expanding on her beauty and talents. The photographs that reached New York certainly demonstrated that the young actress merited the reputation which she had gained during her short career of being one of the most beautiful women on the English stage.

So everybody was on the tiptoe of expectancy awaiting Goodwin's return and Miss Carlisle's appearance behind the American footlights. Goodwin came and so did Miss Carlisle and those who saw the young English girl went into raptures—at so much per column. The papers were full of her and everybody was happy. Then something happened. Some one who had a whole lot of influence with Nat Goodwin interfered—perhaps Maxine Elliott—and it was announced that Miss Carlisle would not appear with him. In striking contrast to the blowing of trumpets which accompanied her arrival was the quietude of her departure. It was a case of "she came right in, she turned right around and she walked right out again."

When it is considered that Miss Carlisle began her stage career but three years ago as a member of the chorus in one of Seymour Hicks's musical plays and that her introduction to the "legitimate" dates back but a little more than two years, it will be realized how rapid her advance has been.

That Mr. Frohman thinks highly of the abilities of his two new stars is seen from the piece he has secured for their opening in New York. He has bought the American rights of Hubert Henry Davies's comedy, "the Mollusc." The play is now being produced in London at the Criterion theater and the roles in which Mr. Coyne and Miss Carlisle will be seen are thought worthy of the abilities of Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, both in the very forefront of the profession in England.

Pneumatic Clocks in Paris.

From the Washington Herald.

The city of Paris is being rapidly supplied with a system of public clocks worked by compressed air under electrical control.

The entire area of the city is divided into sections about a mile and three-quarters in radius, and in the center of each section is a substation provided with a reservoir of compressed air, from which air pipes extend to all the clocks included in the section.

By means of electro-magnets, energized every minute with currents from the comutator controlled by the master-clock at the central station, the air pipes are intermittently connected with the reservoirs, and thus the compressed air, once every minute, drives forward the hands of the clock.

Total Depravity.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Hockafus—Hiram, here's a letter that has money in it. I've been renewing my subscription for the Ladies' Household Guide. It ought to go by registered mail, I suppose.

Mr. Hockafus—Then don't send it by me, Lucinda. I'm unregistered male. I forgot to go to the polling place last Tuesday.

WHEN THE PRAIRIE DWELLERS MAKE WAR ON WOLVES.

THIS IS THE SEASON FOR THE SPORT OF "ROUNDING UP VARMINTS" IN THE PLAINS COUNTRY.

A REVIVAL of the neighborhood hunt as a social function is popular in Kansas this spring. In the county papers of the central and western portions of the state are seen each week notices like this:

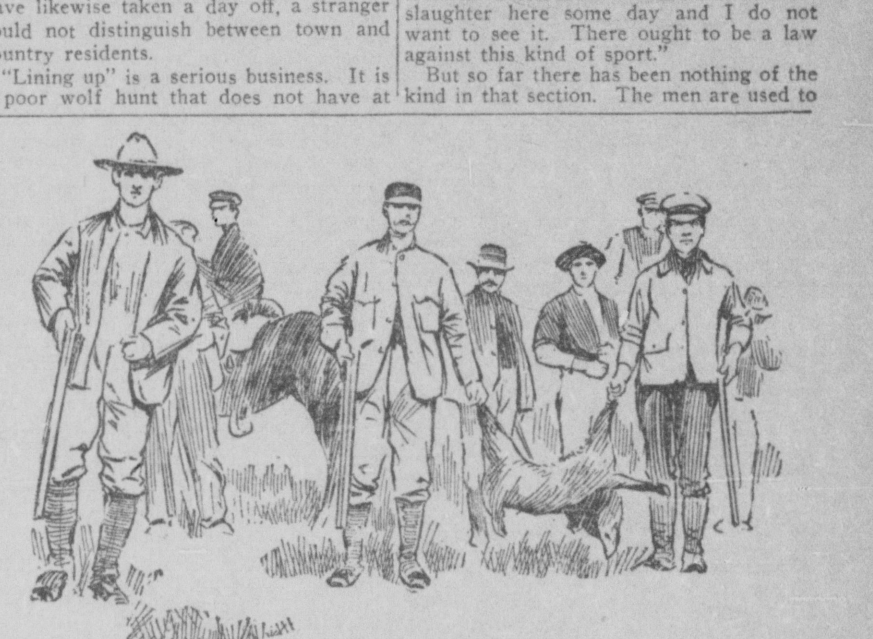
>
> There will be a wolf hunt in Back Laney township next Saturday. Lines will form at 10 o'clock; round up on Section 5. Only shotguns allowed. No dogs. Everybody come.
>
> COMMITTEE.

That is all the notice needed. Preparations are widespread, and as the weather has been fine for the past few weeks the attendance has not been confined to the territory designated.

"Can't help you to-morrow," says the merchants chore man on Friday evening. "Goin' to th' wolf hunt."

With scores of others from the towns, including merchants, professional men and mechanics, who like the sort of sport certain to be enjoyed, he hikes to the country in the gray of the morning. The hunters are dressed for service and not for looks, and when at 10 o'clock they are lined up with the farmer boys who have likewise taken a day off, a stranger could not distinguish between town and country residents.

"Lining up" is a serious business. It is a poor wolf hunt that does not have at least 600 armed men in the list. Some definite order must be observed to insure proper work. Here is where the master hand of the captain comes in. He is the commander-in-chief of the wolf hunt.



A COMPANY OF KANSAS COYOTE HUNTERS.

The captain has done little all week but get ready. He has ridden to several of the neighbors' farms and has issued orders to his aides.

"I want some good men," he insists; "chaps that will make the crazy hunters come to time. If you see one shooting sidewise get off and lick him."

The agreement is made and early on the appointed morning the aides are on hand, their prancing horses showing up well along the gathering lines.

These form the "line up." They gallop here and there, holding back the eager starters and urging on those who lag. Not one must stir across the designated boundary until 10 o'clock sharp. Then at the sound of a pistol shot the march of 800 armed men begins.

They surround a territory six to eight miles square, and are to march toward the place of the announced roundup.

ONLY SHOTGUNS ARE USED.

The first order of the marshals is that all guns must be pointed toward the front, that no one shall shoot to one side. The next is that there shall be used no ammunition except shot. In taking the skin off a wolf the other day some pieces of bolt iron and the ballbearings of a farm implements were found imbedded in the flesh—some hunter was not satisfied with the deadliness of buckshot

"But they buy enough shot," commented a hardware man in one of the wolf hunting counties. "We have sold out every Saturday for weeks and have had to order every Monday as much as used to supply us for months."

Of course they use plenty. Scarcely has the long irregular string of rough clad hunters started when from the tufts of prairie grass spring up the fightened jack rabbits, and with huge ears laid close across their back, go skurrying away on their zigzag course. Right then and there the hunting fun begins.

"Bang, bang, bang," rattles down the advancing line. At first the farm boys stop to pick up the rabbits, but they soon cease that—they cannot hope to carry all their game of this sort. Some slash off a pair of ears as evidence of their prowess.

The marshals canter up and down, feeling the importance of their position.

"Here, not so fast—keep back," they order as part of a line is making too great speed. "Faster, don't let them beat you in," as another portion is laggard.

It is a swift march all the time, for everyone is eager to get to the goal with the others. Everyone knows that off there to the south is coming another line with hunters dropping rabbits and occasionally seeing a coyote as it sneaks a draw or rounds a thick hedge.

It is a very nervous time in Wolfville.

Not many coyotes are left in the well settled counties of Kansas, the bounty offers nearly having brought about extermination. But in every township is a family or two that defies the best of the hunters—until there is an organized force like this.

Brer Wolf scarcely understands the new deal. He skips out at first, care free and at ease. No dogs are allowed on the hunts, so he sees no reason for excitement. On and on he goes, wondering what the constantly thickening line behind him means. Then suddenly he hears shots ahead—and there is another line coming to meet him. This is his first alarm. He breaks into a run and turns to the right, meaning to get away from the opposing hosts.

This is the wolf's day of disaster. As the lines come closer together the noise is multiplied many fold. Like the wolf, hundreds of rabbits are hedged in the closing walls. Now it is that the wolf hunt becomes interesting.

With 800 men surrounding a section, it means that they are about twenty-five feet apart. With every forward step they come nearer. The wolf that has delayed until now has little chance of escape. The rattle of shotguns is like that of an army in action. The rabbits are falling by the score—and all the time the men are marching at double quick time toward the pole out there in the center of the pasture where flutters a red streamer.

Over by the round-up pole is a company of sightseers. Sometimes on a pleasant day there are a hundred or more. The families of the hunters are there with wagons to take the men home. Automobiles from town are lined up, a half dozen or so. The younger boys and the girls are out to see the fun and not having been allowed in line, get the best of it here.

WHEN THE SPORT GROWS DANGEROUS.

To the onlooker it is pretty reckless sport at this stage of the game. The shooting is so rapid and the men are coming so close together that it seems almost a miracle that none is hurt.

"No more wolf hunts for me," said a city man who watched the end of one from his automobile. "There will be manslaughter here some day and I do not want to see it. There ought to be a law against this kind of sport."

But so far there has been nothing of the kind in that section. The men are used to handling guns and they are under the watchfulness of the marshals who are riding up and down just behind them.

"Here you, Jim, get out of line and give up your gun," is an order that rings out occasionally—and Jim obeys. Neighborhood honor makes him obey. That is the safety of the round-up. But for it there would be a tragedy every Saturday.

It usually is about noon when the lines come together. It is inspiring to see the hundreds of sturdy hunters come in over the swells of the pasture. Two or three wolves, driven now to desperation, race around among the not less excited men. Nearer and nearer come the lines and finally Brer Wolf sees, too late, that his forlorn hope is a dash through the lines—and he tries. He gets only to the edge of the draw when a volley is directed at him and his career ends.

"We are the stuff," shouts the happy group that secured a wolf.

The prize of the hunt is held up that all may see. There are not many prizes in this game. It is a very lucky hunt when 600 or 800 men can get more than two or three wolves—though there are always stories of several coyotes that got away. Rabbits? Oh, a thousand or so—it is a poor hunter that could not get a jackrabbit in a four-mile tramp.

800 men, loss in time	$800.00
Ammunition	80.00
Total	$880.00
To two wolf bounties	$ 2.00
To fun	878.00
Total	$880.00

It is such a satisfactory investment that before the party separates the word is passed around that next Saturday there would be another round-up.

TELEPHONES ON WIRE FENCES.

In Texas They Are an Aid in Army Maneuvers.

In the West and Southwest, where there are long stretches of unbroken wire fences, they are frequently used to convey telephone messages from one point to another. In some localities the fence wires are converted into regular telephone lines with permanent equipment. These lines are often from ten to thirty miles long and are a great convenience to the people of the ranches.

The United States army signal corps is well trained in the use of wire fences for telephone purposes. In the military maneuvers that take place in the ranch region the signal corps plays an important part in directing the movement of the troops by improvised telephones. In some localities where the country is rough or heavily wooded it is impossible to convey the signals from one point to another by the usual method of flags. It is then that the telephone is brought into play. Each detachment of signal corps men is equipped with a field telephone attachment. It requires the work of but a minute or two to connect this attachment with a fence wire and to get in direct communication with headquarters.

The use of the fence wires for telephone communication obviates the necessity of constructing temporary field telephone lines by the signal corps. It sometimes happens that there is difficulty in using the wires on account of some obstruction, but it usually does not take long to discover and remove the cause of the trouble. On some of the big ranches straight lines of wire fences fifty to seventy-five miles long frequently are found and these afford a fine opportunity for good military field telephone service. As a matter of necessity all ranch fences must be kept in good repair. To do this fence riders are constantly employed.

Its Meaning.

From the Baltimore American.

"Do you believe in the new theory that colors have a moral significance?"

"I don't know but there is something in it. Red, at any rate, ought to be a cardinal virtue."

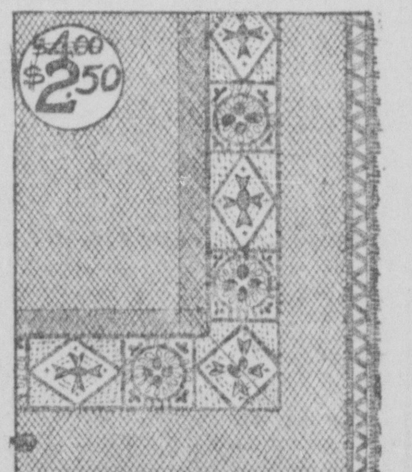
A Money-Saving Curtain Event



If you are fortunate enough to secure a few pairs of these beautiful Curtains which we offer in to-morrow's sale, you will certainly appreciate your purchase, as the net alone if bought by the yard would cost you ordinarily more than we ask for the complete curtain.

There are five other styles, all equally as handsome, to select from. All of the Curtains are mounted on a high grade French cable net, some embroidered with filet flecks, and others with a hand made Renaissance motif. Not a large quantity of these sale curtains, only about 150 pairs altogether, but every pair of curtains is beautiful and suitable for mostly any room in the house.

We secured this lot of curtains from an importer who had them made to order for a large Eastern house. The curtains did not arrive in time and the order was cancelled. The importer took the loss and it is your gain. Come early for best selection.

The style illustrated has a 14-inch flounce in a two-section effect, ornamented with three rows of shirring, a group of tucks and two bands of the silk.

Another style has a wide circular flounce; also in a two-section effect, finished with two rows of shirring and two rows of rose ruching.

A third style has a full circular flounce in a two-section effect, the ornamentation consisting of small pin tucks.

The fourth style is a handsome plaid Silk Petticoat in black and white and rich colored plaids, made with a wide circular flounce in five sections, each section finished with a strap of the silk.

These Petticoats are actually worth $7.00 and $7.50 and we give you your choice to-morrow for $5.98.

THIS TOWN'S PROSPERITY IS PRESERVED IN SALT.

WHEN A BOOM "BUSTED" IN KANSAS, HUTCHINSON DEVELOPED ITS RESOURCES.

THE value of salt as a physical preservative has long been recognized, but its properties as a preservative of prosperity is perhaps not widely known. There is one small city in Kansas, however, that is well acquainted with the importance of salt as a commercial equation. That town is Hutchinson, sometimes called the Salt city. More salt is shipped out of Hutchinson than any other city in the world, size considered. This statement would be almost true without the limitation in the closing phrase. An average of a trainload of approximately forty cars of salt leaves the little city each day. It is the chief industry of this community of 15,000 people.

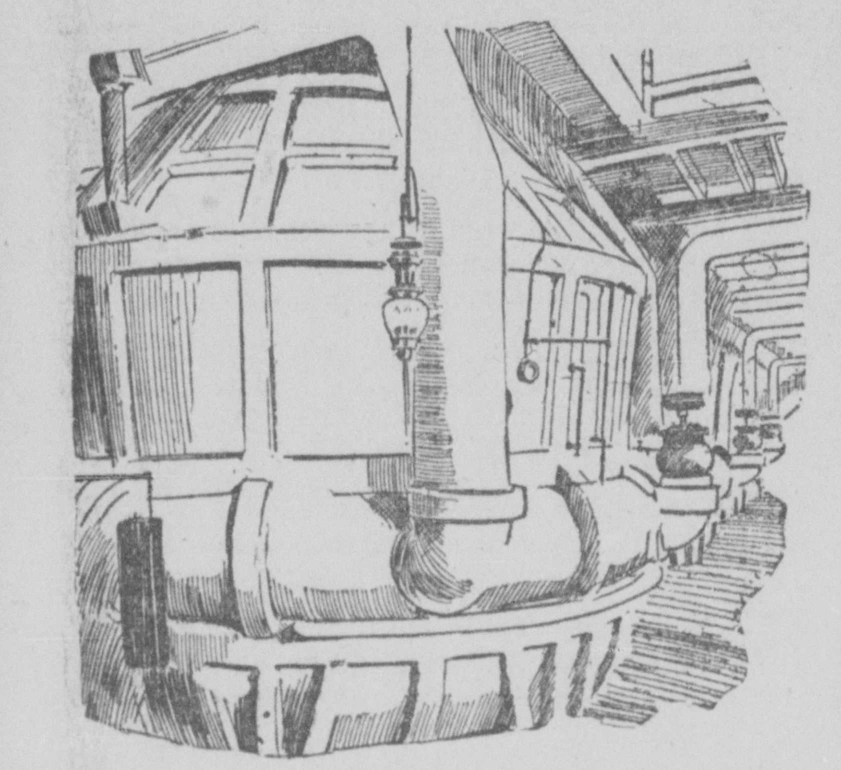
It was more than twenty years ago—in 1887, to be exact—that salt was first discovered in Hutchinson, and like many another discovery it was quite by accident. Hutchinson was a boom town, a dozen years old, and just across the Arkansas river was South Hutchinson, wholly of mushroom growth. Ben Blanchard, now of Kansas City, was the founder of South Hutchinson, and it was his dream that the real city was to be on his side of the river. He suspected the existence of oil and gas under his town and began boring in the hope of finding one or the other; he found salt instead, a deposit of hundreds of feet in thickness and easily accessible. But before the discovery became commercially valuable the "boom," to use the vernacular, "had busted," and Blanchard's city was a village of empty but handsome stone buildings. These buildings after a time were torn down and carried across the river to the older municipality, whose prosperity had some substantial basis, and Blanchard left before his discovery of salt became of commercial value.

The boom that made the mushroom city of South Hutchinson had its effect on the older and larger town of Hutchinson, and when the building wave subsided this town found itself with many vacant residences and not a few empty business houses. Property values slumped. The people were becoming dependent solely on the agriculture of the country surrounding and the ordinary retail business of the average town of 10,000 people, when men came out of the East and began to develop the salt industry. A number of salt factories, techincally termed salt blocks, were established, and soon there was a tremendous output of the product. Immediately following came the years of successive crop failures, and that is how salt came to be a commercial preservative, as well as a physical preservative, so far as this city was concerned. Without the impetus given to local business by this one productive industry the collapse of the boom would have been just as fatal in its effects to Hutchinson proper as to the mushroom city of South Hutchinson.

THE PIONEER SALT PRODUCER.

While Ben Blanchard was the discoverer of the Kansas salt deposits, L. H. Humphrey of Warsaw, N. Y., was the pioneer in its production. The erection of the Guinlock & Humphrey block, the first in 1887, was quickly followed by the establishment of other factories, for the brine from which the salt was made was easily obtainable. Every property owner of Hutchinson to-day could have his own salt well if he so desired, for all that would be necessary would be to drill a hole down some few hundred of feet, the whole townsite and a large territory round about being underlaid with the deposit. Soon after the organization of the first company, a dozen blocks were in operation, the largest number ever in operation at one time in the Hutchinson field, although their total production was no greater than the five now running with their new and improved methods.

The vast extend of this salt deposit soon became known and led to other towns prospecting, and eventually quite a number had a salt plant or town. Kingman, Anthony, Lyons and Ellsworth are among the towns that later discovered salt and began its production. At Kingman the salt is mined and brought out in blocks like coal—the rock salt of commerce. At Hutchinson and other points in the Kansas field it is pumped up in the form of brine. This is done by means of a pipe with double casing, down one tube of which water is sent by means of a force pump, while up the other comes the salt brine, which is evaporated, leaving the salt in a form ready for use.



GIGANTIC EVAPORATING VATS, USED IN T HE VACUUM PROCESS OF SALT MAKING.

Like every other industry, the manufacture of salt in the Kansas field has had its ups and downs, its periods of depression and prosperity. Some of the changes have been due to natural conditions and some to artificial causes. In the beginning the brine was evaporated in large open pans with fire applied directly beneath, and the deposited salt raked out by men with long rakes, who came to be known as salt jacks. Within the first decade it was recognized that this crude method was too cumbersome and new pans were built, through which steam pipes ran. By means of these pipes the brine was heated, and by a mechanical appliance the salt was raked out from the pans and carted to the packing room to dry. These very improvements in manufacturing methods forced some of the weaker companies out of business.

It was not long until the salt from the Kansas field cut in on the business of the New York and Michigan fields. Then came the salt war, when salt was sold for less than it cost to produce it, and this ruinous competition forced other companies into bankruptcy. Following this came the attempt and failure of the salt trust to capture the field and the merging of most of the companies into one that came to be dominated by Joy Morton, one of the sons of J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska, President Cleveland's Secretary of Agriculture and the father of Arbor day. During the war with the salt trust the chief obstacle with which the Kansas manufacturers had to contend was preferential rates in favor of the Michigan and New York fields. But with his brother, Paul Morton, as chief traffic official of the Santa Fe road, Joy Morton managed to keep the Kansas field from being put entirely out of business, until the day of the rebate passed and the field received the treatment from the railroads to which it was entitled, regardless of who owned the plants.

The passing of the rebate and the improvement in salt-making machinery has brought the Kansas field at last into its own. Where the great Morton block, the largest in the world, burned a year ago, a few of the uninformed feared it might prove a severe blow to the industry. But the plant was rebuilt as fast as men and money could do the work, greater and better than ever, and remains the largest salt block in the world. The bulk of the salt used in all the great live stock packing plants at Kansas City is produced by this block. So Kansas City has a very intimate connection with this great salt deposit under the soil of Central Kansas.

IMPROVED PROCESSES IN SALT MAKING.

A feature of the new Morton plant different from that of any other salt block in the Kansas field is the new triple vacuum system, for which an enormous new brick building, five stories in height, was especially erected. Only a long technical description could make plain this method of extracting the salt from the brine, but it is a product of the knowledge that by creating a vacuum above the boiling brine the steam can be made to pass off much more rapidly, thus depositing a greater amount of salt with the same amount of fuel as well as a far better quality. Just what this saving of fuel means may be surmised from the fact that this Morton plant alone, when in full operation, consumes $10,000 worth of natural gas a month at ten cents a thousand cubic feet, and gas is several per cent cheaper than oil, which a few years ago displaced coal as the fuel in this plant. There are three of these vacuum "pans" in this block, which are not pans at all, but huge lemon shaped vats, forty feet tall and eighteen and twenty feet in diameter, half full of bubbling, boiling brine. As an instance of the economy which is so marked a part of all modern manufacture, the steam rising from the first vacuum pan is used to heat the brine in the second pan, and so on to the third, which explains why there are three of these pans instead of one of thrice the size.

A book could be written about the process of salt making and its marketing, for it is a far greater industry than many persons imagine. For example, one of the secondary plants at Hutchinson produces enough salt to supply the whole state of Kansas, while this giant Morton plant, producing as much as all the blocks of the four other companies now operating at Hutchinson combined, supplies enough for several states. The installation of this new vacuum system in the latter block resulted in a great addition to the power plant.

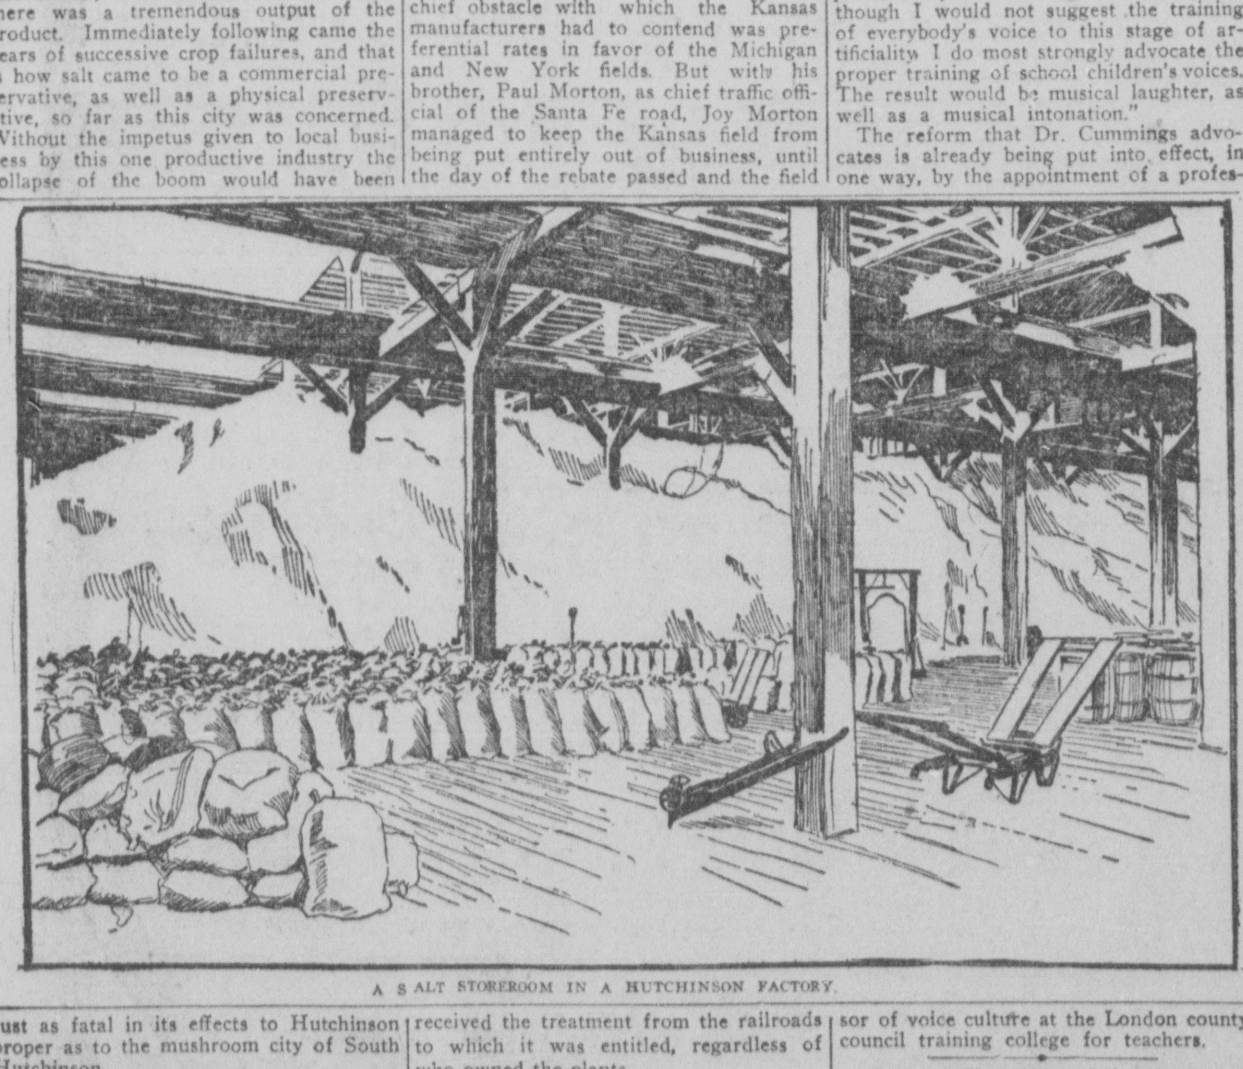
More money is paid out for the fuel with which the salt is produced than is received for all the salt sold in the state of Kansas.

The finest table salt in use anywhere, it is said, comes from the Kansas field, and it is not produced by crushing, but by bolting, just as meal or flour is bolted. Salt, when reduced to the smallest particles possible, is in the form of perfect cubes.

There probably is more than a million dollars invested in manufacturing plants in the Kansas field. The supply is inexhaustible and the outlook for the future of the industry could not be brighter.



A SALT STOREROOM IN A HUTCHINSON FACTORY.

LAUGHTER MUST BE MUSICAL.

Expert in Voice Training Says the Chromatic Laugh Should Be Cultivated.

From the Chicago Inter Ocean.

LONDON—Have you developed a chromatic laugh? The chromatic laugh is, it is claimed, the laugh of the future, and should be diligently encouraged by all those who have the welfare of the race at heart.

The chromatic laugh is the scientific development of the natural "musical laugh" now so rare.

The whole question of pleasing and unpleasing laughter is merely one of voice production, and a rigorous campaign of proper voice production is being advocated by educational authorities at present.

Commenting upon the harsh, nerve tearing sounds that do duty for laughter with 90 per cent of town dwelling people, the lower classes particularly, no less an authority than Dr. Cummings, the principal of the Guildhall School of Music, expressed his opinion that proper voice training in the schools would produce a race of musical voiced men and women.

"Voices and laughter have degenerated, even in my time," said Dr. Cummings, "and I attribute it greatly to modern surroundings.

"The voice of the street arab, more particularly the girl, is terrible. The cause of this can, I think, easily be found in the tremendous noise of the streets.

"The children spend much of their time in the streets, and are forced to shout in order to make themselves heard. The result is a race of harsh voiced people, and the harsh voice means a harsh laugh.

"If you teach a person to speak properly, you will teach him to laugh properly, and I have long advocated the training of the voice in all schools.

"Proof of the extent to which voices may be trained is to be found upon the stage, and here the experienced actor can produce any sort of laugh he wishes, and though I would not suggest the training of everybody's voice to this stage of artificiality I do most strongly advocate the proper training of school children's voices. The result would be musical laughter, as well as a musical intonation."

The reform that Dr. Cummings advocates is already being put into effect, in one way, by the appointment of a professor of voice culture at the London county council training college for teachers.

Kaiser's First-Aid-to-Injured Kits.

From Popular Mechanics.

The recent attacks upon rulers have induced the German kaiser to place in all carriages used by himself and members of his family a complete first-aid-to-the-wounded kit. This consists of two rubber bandages, a rubber tube and two antiseptic bandages. In addition to these, his adjutants and all members of the household wear suspenders that can be used at a moment's notice as bandages.

OUT WHERE THE SUN SHINES

HOW KANSAS CITY MEN OF AFFAIRS LIKE TO TAKE RECREATION.

Golf, Walking, Hunting, Gardening and Mountain Climbing a Few of the Exercises of Men Who Do Things in Business.

"I like to get out where the sun shines and where I can exercise."

A dozen busy men of big affairs said this in different ways when asked recently what they did for recreation. Simplicity distinguishes all the pastimes. There is an utter absence of extravagant sport even among those able to afford it.

Ex-Mayor H. M. Beardsley in his practice and advocacy of walking as a diversion, has set an example for the city hall men, and many are following it. Judge J. E. Guinotte of the probate court has a fondness for boats. The Rev. C. W. Moore of the Institutional church is a mountain climber. W. H. Wallace, judge of the criminal court, finds his recreation in farming.

Almost every one at the city hall is familiar with Mr. Beardsley's favorite form of recreation. Any morning, unless there is a severe storm he may be seen walking down town from his home in Westport. He is accompanied sometimes by Judge J. Johnson of the court of appeals, Frank Hagerman, Alfred Gregory or C. H. Kirshner. These men have formed an informal pedestrian club.

Judge Guinotte owns a houseboat, a gasoline launch and a flotilla of row boats on the Blue. In summer time he often stays all night in the houseboat. After he has slept in the boat he takes a plunge in the river before breakfast.

"There are thousands of persons in Kansas City who don't know what they are missing," Judge Guinotte said. "I would rather spend my vacation on the Blue and the Missouri than go to the 'swell' summer resorts. While boating on the Blue I can wear an old suit of clothes and be comfortable and easy. When I go to the fashionable watering places I have to 'dress for dinner.' At the hotels a person has to pay a lot of money for questionable food and cramped accommodations. Here on the Blue I can have what I want and the way I want it, and I don't have to spend a fortune to get it, either."

The Rev. Charles W. Moore has climbed several of the highest peaks in Europe. He remembers with especial pleasure his ascent of North Cape. While on the summit of this most northerly elevation in Europe he saw the sun shining at midnight.

"While my favorite recreation is mountain climbing," Dr. Moore said, "that exercise cannot be enjoyed every day, nor every season. I am very fond of water sports, also. I like boating and swimming. I prefer the sea bathing, but swimming isn't so bad here.

"When I can't have my mountain climbing or water sports, I enjoy golf, bowling and chess."

Judge Wallace usually manages to have no court on Saturdays so that he can go to his farm. Generally he leaves the city early in the morning and stays all day with nature in the country.

Elliott H. Jones, police commissioner, owns a motor car in which he finds much enjoyment, but his chief recreation is golf.

"There is a fascination about automobiling," says Mr. Jones, "but nothing to compare with golf, which, I believe, is the best exercise a person can take."

Frank F. Rozzelle enjoys buggy rides after business hours, and to gratify this longing he purchased a comfortable buggy and a blooded horse.

George Creel, editor of the News Book, also believes in the horse as a means for outdoor recreation, and he takes many horseback rides. A lively gallop after the confining work of the office is the best method of retaining health, Mr. Creel believes.

John Hayes, ex-chief of police, goes hunting when he desires recreation. So does Harry Kyle, police judge. A. S. Van Valkenburgh, United States district attorney, enjoys a game of billiards as a relaxation from work. When he and Judge Herman Brumback meet at a billiard table the game is sure to be a hot one and full of keen enjoyment to both.

Judge J. E. Goodrich and Judge J. G. Park of the circuit court may be found almost any afternoon at the Evanston Golf club. Other golf enthusiasts are the Rev. Dr. Talbot and the Rev. Dr. Ritchey.

"When I'm all fagged out in mind and body," Judge C. E. Moss of the county court says, "nothing is quite so restful as billiards. The game is fascinating to me and when I am in a contest with a good player worldly cares soon fade away. The sport gives me deliverance from tribulations and I go home refreshed and able to enjoy a peaceful sleep. In billiards I find both bodily exercise and keen mental enjoyment."

The executive officers of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad company and the United States and Mexican Trust company, are singularly diverse in the matter of their recreation. A. E. Stilwell is not a devotee of any kind of athletic exercise. Rather, he prefers music, and often goes to the theater. W. W. Sylvester is an enthusiastic member of the Blue River Gun club and generally is found at the weekly shoots. He is fond of walking, too, and likes a good horse.

E. Dickinson is a baseball fan. Occasionally he and Mr. Sylvester play golf at the Country club. M. V. Watson likes to hunt squirrels and to go fishing, and he, also, is fond of pitching horseshoes. E. E. Holmes finds recreation from business in farming. Once a week he goes out to his farm and often does manual labor in the field. He and Mrs. Holmes walk two miles to church on Sundays when the weather is pleasant. Bridge whist is Mr. Holmes's evening diversion.

Before H. L. Harmon became so busy with the union station negotiations he had time to play golf, but he has been compelled to give up the sport. S. W. Moore, C. J. Hubbard, S. M. Felton, formerly president of the Chicago & Alton; B. L. Winchell, president of the Rock Island, and Jarvis Hunt, architect of the station, are golf enthusiasts. Several problems in connection with the station project have been worked out on the golf links. Mr. Hunt has one of the largest and best string of show horses in the country. He keeps them at his country place at Wheaton, Ill.

Gardening is the favorite recreation of F. A. Updegraff, general baggage agent at the Union depot. He lives in Liberty, fifteen miles from Kansas City.

"It's just as convenient as living in the city," Mr. Updegraff said recently, "and it has its advantages. I have enough ground in Liberty to maintain a small truck garden during the summer months. Morning and evening I find time to do some work in the garden, and when summer is gone and the garden truck has been stored away for winter, I spend my spare moments preparing the ground for the next season. That's all the recreation I want."

Festus O. Miller, justice of the peace, thinks bowling is the best way to offset the wear and tear of work. The justice is above the average as a bowler, too.

As often as two or three times every day E. J. Sanford, president of the Union depot company, walks the full length of the platform at the depot and he calls this his daily recreation. He smiles when he says it.

HE COULDN,T "SEE" MR. JONES.

Court Etiquette Temporarily Blinded a British Judge.

In the trial of a lawsuit in English courts, the lawyers who actually try the case probably never saw their clients until they met in court, and even after the case is finished it is quite possible that they have never spoken to them except to address the formal questions in court when the clients occupied the witness box.

The dual system which still survives in English law practice is responsible for this absurdity. English lawyers are divided into two classes, barristers and solicitors. The solicitor is the man who must be approached by the clients and on whom devolves all the heavy work in the preparation of the case for trial. Yet the solicitor who has the case at his fingers' ends is not allowed to say a word in the higher courts. He must "brief" a barrister to do this, and etiquette forbids a barrister to have anything to say to the litigant who is paying his fee, except through the medium of the solicitor. If the case is an important one he must have at least one king's counsel. The king's counsel are the senior members of the bar, and they are distinguished from the juniors by the fact that their gowns are of silk, while those of the juniors are of "stuff." They are also compelled by the etiquette of the profession to charge a higher fee than the juniors, and the style of wig that they wear in court is a little different from that worn by the juniors.

Etiquette also ignores the fact that the barrister is entitled to receive a fee. In fact, the law does not allow him to sue for his fees and he solves this difficulty by insisting on a substantial "retainer" before he undertakes the case at all, and an equally substantial "refresher" each morning before he goes into court. He is not permitted, again by etiquette, to receive these fees for himself. They are paid to his clerk, and the custom of the profession requires that the fees shall all be estimated in guineas instead of pounds. A guinea is one pound one shilling, and the theory is that the clerk receives the shilling and the barrister the pound.

Etiquette also prevents the barrister from seeking cases in any way, but that is overcome by the activities of his clerk. A clerk with a large acquaintance among solicitors' managing clerks is a valuable asset to any barrister, and there are hundreds of solicitors' managing clerks in London who would think that times were very hard indeed if they had to pay for their own dinners two days in succession. Hospitality is one of the duties of the wise barrister's clerk.

Of course young barristers who are still waiting for briefs are unable to have a clerk all to themselves, but several of them usually club together and engage one clerk, who is supposed to distribute any work that comes his way equally among his employers. Many other young barristers make it a practice to attend the criminal courts, where they are liable to be called on to plead for a fee of one guinea, for any undefended prisoner. Many barristers have gained their start toward a lucrative practice by their success in winning freedom for some hardened burglar or highwayman.

One of the peculiarities of English law is that a judge cannot see a barrister in court unless he is properly gowned and wigged. A few months ago one of the judges was "on circuit," which means that he was traveling from town to town holding assizes. The barristers, of course, accompany the judge on circuit. A leading K. C. who had been dining with the judge the night before in the last town, slept late the next morning and in his haste to catch the train forgot the trunk containing his wig and gown. He had an important case on the calendar and he rushed to the court just in time to hear it called. He rose to apologize for being in mufti, but the judge stared straight ahead with unseeing eyes.

"Who is that speaking?" he asked. "It sounds like Mr. Jones's voice, but I cannot see him."

Mr. Jones tried to explain, but the judge replied with the greatest gravity, "I cannot see you, Mr. Jones."

Finally the barrister in despair had to ask a colleague in court, who was properly attired, to request the judge to grant a short adjournment while he sought a wig and gown. This was granted and when the barrister returned to court after having borrowed the necessary equipment, the judge exclaimed, "Ah, Mr. Jones, I am happy to say that my eyesight has improved very much in the last half hour. I can see you quite well now."

Absurd as this incident may seem, the judge was acting strictly in accordance with the usages of English law. He is not allowed by law to "see" a barrister who enters the court improperly attired.

MEXICO'S LUMBER INDUSTRY.

Great Output of the Greene Mill to Be Shipped to Europe—A Perpetual Supply.

From the Houston Chronicle.

EL PASO, TEX.—The first of the big lumber mills of the Sierra Madre Land and Lumber company, Colonel W. C. Greene's big enterprise in the Sierra Madre region of Mexico, has started up with a capacity of ¼ million feet a day, and this, with two smaller mills already turning out 70,000 feet a day, gives the company a capacity of 320,000 feet, which is to be doubled in a few months on the completion of the second mill, now well under way.

The company does not intend to market a foot of this timber in the United States, owing to the tariff on lumber, but will dispose of it all in Mexico or Europe. Several heavy contracts have already been made by Colonel Greene's European agents, especially in Ireland, Denmark and Belgium. Ireland alone has already contracted for 5 million feet of timber and the first shipment will be made about the first of June from Tampico, Mexico, the water transportation rate being very low.

The company owns absolutely 3 million acres of timbered land in the Sierra Madre region, averaging, it is claimed by experts, 8,000 to 10,000 feet per acre, from which it will take the company 100 years to finish the cutting. As the contract of Colonel Greene with the Mexican government requires that a young tree must be planted and kept growing for each seasoned tree cut from the land, by the time the present crop is cut off, the forest will be in its original shape and it is calculated that the supply will be perpetual.

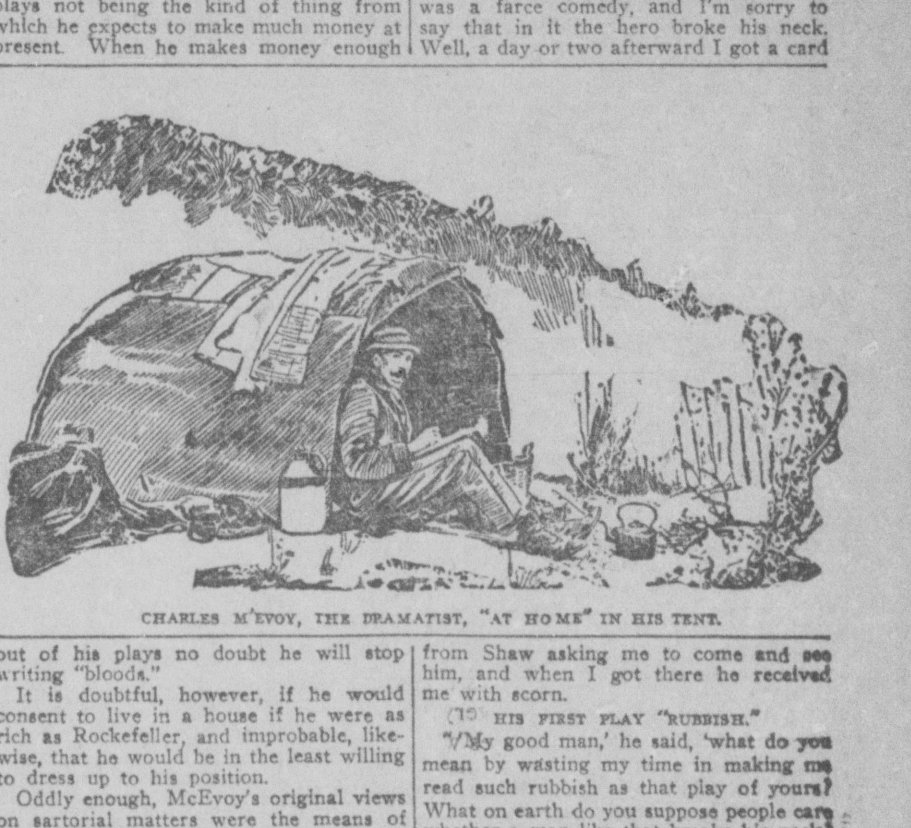
The company will not only make lumber, but will also put up a paper mill, a resin refinery, a furniture factory, a turpentine still, a plant for the manufacture of lamp black, etc., and its officials say that every foot of the timber cut is to be used in some manner and none of it wasted, and there is a market in Mexico for it all, and what cannot be disposed of there will be shipped to Europe.

A TENT IS THE ALL-THE-YEAR-ROUND HABITATION OF THIS GENIUS.

CHARLES McEVOY, "BENARD SHAW'S" SUCCESSOR" HAS NO USE FOR HOUSES.

CHARLES M'EVOY, who is looked on by George Bernard Shaw's disciples as likely to be the coming prophet of the "new drama," proves to be about the most original and unconventional young man this century has produced recently. Moreover he turns out to be a son of Ambrose McEvoy, once of Virginia, who invented the submarine mine and manufactured many of the explosives that were used by the Confederate army.

It is probable that McEvoy is the only dramatist in the world whose home is a tent. Shortly after he left London, some five years ago and moved out into Hertfordshire, he tried living in a caravan, such as gypsies use, but even this proved too "confining" for him, and so he went "back to the land" in good earnest. It may be added that McEvoy dresses with a view to comfort only, and that since he went to live in the country he has subsisted entirely by writing pseudonymous serial thrillers or "bloods," as he calls them, for publication in boys' papers—his plays not being the kind of thing from which he expects to make much money at present. When he makes money enough out of his plays no doubt he will stop writing "bloods."



CHARLES M'EVOY, THE DRAMATIST, "AT HOME" IN HIS TENT.

It is doubtful, however, if he would consent to live in a house if he were as rich as Rockefeller, and improbable, likewise, that he would be in the least willing to dress up to his position.

Oddly enough, McEvoy's original views on sartorial matters were the means of his first getting into print and eventually launching him on a literary career. For an article on "Collars," which the young dramatist wrote some five years ago, while nominally learning to be an electrician, and which he sent to the London Echo, was duly published, and followed by other articles on "Boots," "Hats" and the like, after which McEvoy was given the editorship of one of the less important departments of the paper.

McEvoy confessed that previous to the production of his own maiden effort as a playwright he had visited the theater less than twenty times, and added that most of those visits were made while acting as "sub" for the regular dramatic critic of the London Echo. It was while working on that paper, too, that he discovered that there was a market for "bloods" and a bare living to be made out of writing them if you happen to have the knack. For something like five years McEvoy has earned his bread by this means and isn't ashamed to confess it, because the same thing was done for an even more extended period by Robert Louis Stevenson.

To write plays had been McEvoy's ambition from his earliest days, and his reason for electing to produce "bloods" as his means of livelihood meanwhile proves to have been characteristic. He had found that he could make a bare living by writing boys' "serials" at a beggarly rate "per thou.," and he believed this to be the only kind of writing that he could do just to earn money and preserve the "naturalness" of his style.

MERELY A WRIST MOVEMENT.

"You see, I can do them without any effort except that of the wrist," he said earnestly, "and that would not be the case if I had to be 'literary' and clever. I am sure that to be brilliant one has to do tricks, and that in my case artificiality would result. When I read over my 'bloods,' however, I can see that, whatever else they may be, they at all events are written simply and naturally."

McEvoy declares frankly that the play which has "made" him never would have been written had it not been for Bernard Shaw, and it is like as not that the younger man never would have done as he did and sought the acquaintance of the elder had he not suddenly discovered that they were near neighbors. This discovery was made by McEvoy shortly after he had escaped from London and gone to live at his father's cottage in Hertfordshire. Shaw, who makes a point of spending as much time in the country as possible, was living at Harmer Green, close by, and McEvoy saw and recognized him at the railway station which both used for their frequent trips to town.

To the boy who was writing plays in fields and on hillsides, Shaw represented the "Master" and the temptation to try to know him was too strong to be resisted, so after much hesitation McEvoy wrote him a letter which he says he would have given much to have back as soon as it dropped into the box, and asked Shaw's permission to come to see him. That letter was posted one evening, and the next morning its author unexpectedly found himself face to face with Shaw at the railroad station.

"I supposed," said McEvoy, "that I must have looked so exceedingly guilty that he knew in a minute who I was; anyhow he came up at once and asked if it was I who had written to him. By this time I had become aghast at my own presumption, so I said so and asked him to consider the letter as unwritten, and tried to get away, but he wouldn't hear of it."

"My dear fellow," he said, "I was delighted to get your letter, and said McEvoy, "to cut a long story short, he asked me to dinner that night, and we soon got to be very good friends."

Meanwhile, both Shaw and McEvoy had moved away from Hertfordshire, the scene of their first meeting, and were neighbors again in the famous "White Horse Vale" of Berkshire, which no one who has read "Tom Brown's School Days" will need to have recalled to him. Here it is, not far from the famous "Blowing Stones" and in the center of one of the most glorious stretches of country in England, that McEvoy's famous tent stands and that the young dramatist lives his Thoreau-like existence—"except for my horse," as he says, "of which Thoreau never would have approved."

Wantage, the first home in England of Richard Croker, is the town nearest to McEvoy's camp, and here his mother lives in an old mill, that also was the young playwright's home just before he took to the simple life altogether. McEvoy discovered this picturesque old place soon after his father's death, in 1905, and went to live there forthwith, and when Bernard Shaw, in his turn, decided to leave Hatfield, he came to Wantage, at McEvoy's suggestion, and took up his abode at a vicarage close by.

"It was while Shaw was at Wantage," said McEvoy, "that I sent him my first play and asked if he would read it. It was a farce comedy, and I'm sorry to say that in it the hero broke his neck. Well, a day or two afterward I got a card from Shaw asking me to come and see him, and when I got there he received me with scorn.

HIS FIRST PLAY "RUBBISH."

"'My good man,' he said, 'what do you mean by wasting my time in making me read such rubbish as that play of yours? What on earth do you suppose people care whether a man like that breaks his neck? Such people ought to break their necks.'

"But," said McEvoy, "all the time I saw a twinkle in his eye, so I was not wholly surprised when he said: 'But what I really sent for you was to say that this play, wretched as it is, tells me that you have power in you; so now go and write a play about people in their homes!"

So McEvoy wrote "David Ballard." He started it in his room in the mill, but soon afterward the "call of the wild" got too strong for him and it was then that he set out gypsying. For months on end a "caravan" on Dartmoor was his home, and the real "Romany" folk of the road were his companions. Of course he could not succeed in passing himself off as one of them; he is too fair, but he told them that he was "minding" the van for a "gent" and they took him at his own valuation, and let him share their life and help them with their shows.

Thus McEvoy spent practically the entire summer of 1906, and in this way he also gathered the material for his new play, "Gentlemen of the Road," of which you are likely to be hearing soon. When Shaw had read "David Ballard" he said, "This must be acted," and he promised to bring the piece to the notice of the Stage society at once. When produced the play attracted so much attention as a grim, powerful study of real life that the author had no difficulty in finding production for the most of what he has since written. His latest four-act drama is an unconventional study, a contest between the call of the blood and the power of conventionality—with convention victorious, for, of course, McEvoy would do the unexpected thing. It is to be produced presently at the Manchester Repertory theater, which is making a specialty of McEvoy plays.

McEvoy declares that he doesn't "deliberately seek discomfort," and remarked that if he finds a well-cooked meal on his mother's table when he visits her cottage—which is once or twice a week—he does not disdain it; but for the rest his existence is a truly Spartan one. The tent he occupies is not even an "A" one, but just a framework with covering enough to shield its occupant from the elements, yet the young dramatist occupies it from one week's end to another and without regard to the state of the weather.

His diet hardly deserves to be called that.

An Alpine Incident.

From the Chicago News.

Alpine smugglers have their share of adventures. Not long ago an Italian smuggler named Predoni, accompanied by hi sdaughter, Rose, aged 18, after having completed purchases in Switzerland of contraband goods, set out to cross the Fraele pass, 290 feet high, into Italy. The two were approaching the summit of the pass when they were overtaken by a thick mist, in which they lost their way. They roped themselves together. Suddenly Predoni, who was leading, fell over a precipice, jerking his daughter off her feet. By means of her ice ax, however, Rose stopped herself from being dragged over the precipice, where her father was dangling, suspended in midair.

Predoni could not reach the precipitous sides of the slope to lessen the strain on the rope, and as their cries for help remained unanswered for an hour be begged his daughter to cut the rope and save herself, but this she refused to do.

Another half hour passed, and as the mist cleared Rose saw three other smugglers climbing the mountain. Her cries were heard and the smugglers rescued Predoni and his brave daughter, who lost her senses on being untied.

A CAESAR OF THE STRONG ARM

WE have had our "little journeys to the homes of great heroes," "great authors," "great statesmen" and others. How would it seem to read the story of a little journey to the home of a very common man?

This story is such. The man is a plain son of the people. His back is broad, his hands calloused and his life is an epic of toil.

Common sense is the most uncommon thing in the world, and the next most uncommon is a common man.

A self important young lawyer in the early days of Kansas was introduced to one of the older citizens.

"You may have heard of me, Uncle Jack," said the attorney, clasping the old setler's hand, "although you probably never met me before."

This was too much for Uncle Jack. He decided to call the young man down hard.

"Quite the contrary," exclaimed the old man, "quite the contrary. I've met you often, but I never heard of you before!"

We have all met the common man, but we've never heard much of him.

Every life contains a story that is worth telling, said a great writer. Let us see if there is anything of interest in the short and simple annals of a poor backwoodsman. I call Jim Hupper a common man, because he possesses all those qualities which the common man should possess. Ah, the cat is out of the bag right here! If this is true of him, he is a most uncommon man. He is one of a thousand.

All men should be brave, honest, kind and industrious. But when you find a man that will stand the acid test for all these elements you will know you've traveled far, for they are few.

Jim Hupper's first love was—you've guessed right—the school teacher. Jim was 16 years old, six feet three inches tall and possessed of the strength of Hercules. He loved arithmetic and he would work sums on the blackboard with the school ma'am after school. And at such times he let his free arm slip around "teacher's" waist and teacher made no protest. Was there ever a man of such physique that a woman could resist? Especially if she were a wee bit of a little woman.

Such was the romance of a common man. Who of us has not loved the school ma'am and yearned to clasp her to his bosom? Jim Hupper did it. We are the numberless, nameless thousands, but he is the darling of the gods.

Not only had Jim the strength of a giant, but the quickness of a cat and the steady eye that never wavers. So he was a terror with the boxing gloves. No man was able to stand before him.

One day a circus came to the village and a negro showman and fighter thought to pick up some easy money. At the corner grocery they told him there was a boy in town who would fight him. At that moment Jim entered the store. "There he is now," said the loafers.

"Ah'll box you for five dollahs," said the negro, as he sat on the counter.

Jim strode forward, picked the black man up like a doll, turned him round and round and upside down, pretending to inspect him carefully. He pressed the negro's muscles, pulled his wool and again set him right side up on the counter. "It's a go," said Jim.

"Ah wont fight that man," said the negro as he faded away. "He am too big."

"If I couldn't have licked him with the gloves," said Hupper, "I'd have got a club and pounded his head into the ground. I'm for white man supremacy."

A youth from West Point, where he had made a reputation as a boxer, came over to Jim's village to surprise the "Big Un," as they called him. He said he was an amateur and wanted to learn to box. At his first chance he "pasted" Jim as hard as he could. Jim thereupon knocked him through the window, glass and all.

The boxer, with a broken jaw, then really wanted to see the Big 'Un whipped. He hunted up the man who claimed the title of "Boss bully of the state." A match was arranged between him and young Jim Hupper. They lived sixty miles apart, but were to meet half way. Backers of both posted bets.

Jim got on his bicycle and pedaled thirty miles to meet the giant. They were to fight with bare fists, rough and tumble, no time limit. Jim had little money to bet on himself, so it was not a mercenary venture on his part. It was the pure love of a fight inherent in all men until culture teaches us to dissemble. Here was a man who would undertake to wipe up the earth with big Jim Hupper and if he could do it the operation would be worth watching and the operator notable. Jim wanted to see the color of his hair.

Te two strong men stood face to face at the halfway house. The bully looked at Jim and said "no fight." For this same bruiser had ridden by a neck of woods where Jim, stripped to the waist, was hewing ties. He had seen the play of those giant muscles and had learned his lesson. "Gentlemen," said the bully, "this man is too young for me. He would wear me out. I wont fight him."

Jim Hupper was a "hired man" "back in Indiany." He married the "hired girl" at the place he worked, bought a team of mules and tried his fortune in Arkansas. His father-in-law's family followed him. If a mother-in-law can be odious, trouble only really begins when your father-in-law follows you in a covered wagon.

Jim came to a place where a cyclone had uprooted a portion of the forest. The fallen trees would soon rot and the owner was willing to sell them cheap. Jim bought these oak trees for what cash he had on hand and began logging. He made the logs into a great raft on the river to run them to a sawmill and a market. When the water was at a stage really too high for rafting they cut loose. There were seven men on the raft and it had gone but half a mile in the racing flood when it struck upon a rock and the timbers flew like toothpicks in a whirlwind. Jim Hupper swam ashore, helping a man he overtook in the struggle. Some of the others had gained the bank. One of the rafters, a one-armed fellow, had been unable to reach the shore. He clung to a sapling in the flood water, and momentarily the current immersed him. He went up and down like the pendulum of a clock and his fate was a matter of seconds.

"We must reach that man quick!" cried Hupper.

The other man on the shore was in a panic. "Let him go. We can't save him," he said, and began to run.

"Come back here or I'll kill you," yelled Hupper, seizing him by the throat. Hupper hurriedly cut two sapling poles. One he placed in the hand of the coward and said, "Hold tight." Grasping the other end, he swung into the stream and poked the other pole in the face of the drowning man. With his one arm he released his grip on the bush and seized the pole. In another moment he was safely on shore.

Two men were yet unaccounted for. Later one of them, Jim's father-in-law, was located in a tree top where the waters had swept him. They reported to the wife of the missing man that he was drowned.

"No," she said, "Bill isn't drowned. He may have been killed by the logs, but he wasn't drowned." Sure enough he wasn't Bill returned next day. They worked all night and lost many boats trying to rescue the father-in-law in the tree. Before noon they got him out.

"Jim," said the shivering man, scarcely able to speak, "I've been hectoring and pestering you all I could of late, but this has been a lesson to me. I'm not going to be so cussed mean no more." And he was as good as an angel for about three months, when he had a relapse and his meanness broke out on him worse than before.

Jim took other timber contracts and became just such a river boss as Stewart Edward White has capitalized in the fiction market. He was the only man in the woods who could pick up a green oak tie, toss it on his shoulders and walk away with it. He never had trouble with his men, for they knew his fists could break bones like egg shells. They called him "The Old Man," although he was but 22 years old. It is a fine thing to have a giant's strength, but a cowardly thing to use it like a giant. Jim Hupper never picked a quarrel and has never fought except when set upon.

"The Old Man" dearly loved to dance, as does any country youth of 22. One night at a "shindig" Jim sought the open air. One of the fiddlers off duty lay on the porch before the door so that Jim had to step over his body in passing out. A youth, one of Jim's timber hands, followed him. When the young man stepped over the body of the fiddler the latter rose and talked fight over the indignity.

Jim Hupper's sense of fair play was insulted. "When a boy steps over you you make a big fuss, but when I stepped over you you never murmured. If I hear another word out of you I'll walk over you so much that they'll have to pick you up with blotting paper."

The fiddler was offended. He went inside and demanded his fiddle. It being the only one, this action would have ended the dance.

Big Jim stepped up and took hold of the instrument. "Let go that fiddle," he said, "or I'll bust it over your head." The owner relinquished it. "Now," said Jim, to the other Orpheus, "take this fiddle and make her squeal till I give you the wink to stop."

Other men began to grumble at the timber boss's Caesarism. Jim picked out the biggest grumbler, seized him by the throat and shook his like an earthquake. In the heat of anger self-pride spoke.

"You are," hiccoughed the victim.

"I paid my money to dance here tonight," went on Jim, "and if you want to stop me, come on, two at a time." No one accepted the challenge and the merry dance went on.

After Jim's strong arm had supported his own family and that of his father-in-law for six years Jim began to seem selfish. His fatherin-law quarreled with him, and finally, with melodramatic effect, challenged him to a duel. This duel was to be fought at sunrise in a clearing on the old man's homestead and both were to appear without seconds. The old man waited at the appointed hour, and his son lay hid in the timber to shoot Jim from ambush as he approached.

But Jim was too wise. He didn't approach. "Why," he laughed afterwards, "it was just a scheme to get me over on their land, shoot me and plead self-defense."

But the father-in-law has passed to that land where there are no duels, and Jim Hupper's troubles are over. He has settled down to farming and stock raising. He is making money; for everything the big fellow does, he does extremely well.

So here ends the story of a common man. The world will never know him, fame weaves no laurels for him, acclaim will not come near. But all who know him will love him because he is strong and handsome, noble, brave, gentle, tender and true.

LETTERETTES A NEW FAD.

Dainty Stationery Which Does Away With the Bother of Envelopes.

From the New York Tribune.

"My stationery is my joy," said a certain well known woman. She had just received a supply from a popular dealer in such matters and was sorting it and putting it away in neat little piles in a spacious drawer of her desk.

"Once I hated writing letters, sending cards and all that, but by cultivating an honest pride in my stationery I've contrived to turn an irksome task into a pleasant one. See this new letter paper," she went on, "rough cheviot in two-toned grays and buffs. That is one of the latest styles and one of the prettiest they've sent me, I think. But this onyx effect," picking up another pile of paper, "is a trifle loud, and I don't believe I shall use it much. Here is some white paper in large plaid markings. I do approve of this thoroughly, and it's so pleasant to write on. But this," picking up a fascinating little box, "is what I enjoy most of all. What's in the box? Why, letterettes. It is so easy to scribble off a little note on one of these, and there's no bother of an envelope; you just seal up the sheet of paper and off it goes. For the busy woman they certainly fill a long felt want.

"You must use envelopes sometimes, though, and here are some that show the latest style in marking," she went on, picking up a bunch. "See, three little, inconspicuous letters on the side of the point of the envelope's flap. This color scheme —dark blue and gold—is the one now for general use; morning correspondence, to use the language of the stationer. Fashions are absurd, aren't they?" she broke off, laughing. "All the same, I do enjoy having my writing materials of the very best."

There were several neat little piles of large, oblong engraved cards in the collection. "Dinner and luncheon cards," explained the owner, "all ready to fill in and send. I flatter myself that my place cards this time show some variety." They certainly did, and were charming as well. There were square cards and round ones, long cards, oval cards, thick cards and thin cards. All were prettily marked with the owner's monogram in various dainty colors, combined with gilt, bronze, silver and mother of pearl. They were really exquisite bits of color. "And no matter what my color scheme of decoration for a dinner," said the owner, "I can match it with some of my monogrammed place cards."

Motor Cars and Motorists

THE committee of the Automobile club having in charge the matter of selecting a site for a country clubhouse will announce a site at a meeting of the club Tuesday night at the Hotel Kupper. W. W. Cowan, president of the club, mailed notices of this meeting to the members last night. The committee is composed of Dr. E. M. Hetherington, chairman; J. A. Davis, Ferd Heim, H. C. Fowler and Amos Martin. With Mr. Cowan, the president, the committee expects to visit five country places, lying south of the city, to-day and make a choice of one of the five.

At the meeting Tuesday night definite announcement will be made of the plans, date and rules of the endurance run. Mr. Cowan said yesterday the date probably will be either May 15 or 16, depending on which best suits the convenience of the club members. The moon is full on those dates, insuring a pleasant return trip.

The runs and tours committee has determined upon two routes, one of ninety miles the round trip, and the other of 135 miles. The shorter route is from Kansas City to Lawrence, Kas., the longer to Ottawa, Kas., by way of Lawrence. Two routes were chosen because some of the members did not care to undertake the longer trip.

The Lawrence flight of motorists will take dinner there and wait for the cars that went on to Ottawa so that all may return to Kansas City together from Lawrence.

The good roads committee of the club will make a report at the meeting Tuesday night of what it has accomplished this spring and what plans it has for the future. There are a dozen applications for membership to be acted upon at the meeting.

According to E. P. Moriarty, the fastest time ever made by a motor car in Jackson county was made a few days ago by a 1908 Packard "30" runabout. On a good stretch of level macadam road the speedometer showed a speed at the rate of seventy miles per hour. The car was fitted with a speedometer having a maximum speed hand which registers the highest speed attained at any time and remains set until the maximum hand is released by pressing a button. The car was driven back to town with the maximum speed hand showing the speed named. This is at the rate of a mile in 51½ seconds. The best mile made by Barney Oldfield on the Elm Ridge track was 1:03. The best mile made at the Elm Ridge races last fall, in which the speeds averaged faster than in any race meet held here previously, was one mile in 1:05, made by a light six-cylinder Stevens-Duryea.

By going farthest on the original route, the big Thomas flyer, America's entry in the New York to Paris race, claims the race, according to the original articles, and a formal application has been made for the cup by Edwin Ross Thomas. No withdrawal from the race will be made, but the cup is claimed now on the rules laid down by Le Matin at the outset of the contest.

Twenty carloads of Buick motor cars arrived here one day last week in a special train from the Buick factory in Flint, Mich. This was the first train load of motor cars that ever came to Kansas City and one of the first train loads ever sent to the West. R. H. Collins, manager of the Buick branch here, said every one of the sixty-five motor cars in the train was delivered within three days to customers in Kansas City and its contiguous territory. This is the third season of the Buick concern. The factory at Flint has a total floor space of nearly fourteen acres. Seventy finished cars are turned out every day in the week except Sunday. The Kansas City branch has delivered about 100 cars a month so far this season. The deliveries this month will exceed that number, Mr. Collins said. This is a distributing point for the Buicks. The local offices and showrooms are to be moved shortly to the corner of Admiral boulevard and McGee street, where a building to cost $48,000 now is building.

It is remarkable how many different motor car makers claim to have won the Fort George hill climb in New York recently. There were sixteen different classes and the maker whose car won in any one class figures it out ingeniously that his car received highest honors at the hill climb. The maker who won with a light high powered runabout lords it over the maker who won in the touring car class with full equipment on, although a runabout is supposed to be built to go faster than a touring car, its light weight and less wind resisting surface permitting a higher gear and consequently faster time. The conflicting claims made in regard to this contest shows how unreliable are the advertising statements based upon it, unless the investigator has all the facts before him and analyzes them carefully.

The firm of E. P. Moriarty & Co., has been checking up the total sales on 1908 Packards to date and find that it figures up to the nice sum of $75,200. The average selling price of this car with the touring body is $4,700 and with the limousine body $5,800. It certainly shows that Kansas City is buying an excellent grade of cars.

Facts in regard to gasoline consumption always are interesting to the motorists. W. G. Whitcomb, who drives a light 6-cylinder Stevens-Duryea, made a run of sixty-six miles last Sunday with a consumption of four gallons of gasoline by actual measurement. This is an average of sixteen and one-half miles to the gallon. Mr. Whitcomb has kept accurate account of the gasoline used since he purchased this car last summer and it figures at an average of thirteen and nine-tenth miles to each gallon of gasoline. This is a most remarkable showing in hilly country such as that in the vicinity of Kansas City.

The Central Auto & Livery company delivered yesterday a 60-horse power Thomas flyer to Chester Jones, son of Lawrence M. Jones of the Jones Dry Goods company. This is the fifth Thomas motor sold to the Jones family. Thomas flyers were also delivered to P. D. Karshner and L. C. Biggs of Topeka.

H. H. McConaughey of Concordia, Kas., was in the city yesterday and was talking about the use of the automobile in Central Kansas for livery purposes. He bought a four-cylinder Stevens-Duryea car from Moriarty & Co. recently and says that this has earned him over $200 since he put it into service. Like many Kansans, he delights in figuring profits on a pro-capita basis. He gets twenty cents per mile per passenger for this service with a maximum charge of $2 a trip.

There is a natural reversion to lower priced cars, according to Henry Ford, designer of the Ford cars. Automobiles are no longer considered a luxury—they are now a necessity, he says. As a luxury, moneyed men indulged in them—as a necessity, men with less money must have them. When regarded as a luxury, enough men were able to afford the luxury to create a demand larger than the supply. This kept up the price. As a necessity, this demand came from the people not able to pay fancy prices, yet insisting that they be supplied. The "low-priced car" was the result, and the sale is enormous.

The Studebaker branch here delivered a thirty-horse power gasoline car to J. H. Atwood of Leavenworth last week and an electric victoria to Hal Whitehead.

Of what use in automobile racing—what good purpose do hill-climbing contests serve—of what practical value are records made in economy, reliability, sealed-bonnet and other stunts? These questions arise as regularly every spring as do those other world-old queries. "Why can't we live on plain fare, sleep in the open and go barefoot as nature intended we should and save the difference?"

"Participation in these contests is expensive," says Benjamin Briscoe, who has had more experience in this line than perhaps any other man in the automobile industry and should therefore be an authority, "but I believe they are worth all they cost. Of course if the maker could sell his product, unsight-and-unseen, save the money he expends in advertising in various forms, eliminate the agent and realize a lot of other weird dreams, it would be fine—for the maker. But it has been ordained that nothing may be had without effort or cost, and to this the automobile buying public has added the further condition. 'You'll have to show me.' Contests do show them."

Extensive experiments have been carried on with the alcohol motor in the laboratories at the Franklin automobile factory. The results obtained equal the results obtained in France and also the results obtained by Prof. Lucks at Columbia university. The Franklin people, however, conclude that the results do not warrant the belief that there will be an immediate demand for the alcohol motor. But the Franklin people do not consider that they have finished the work and are continuing the experiments. Results to date show that even if alcohol and gasoline could be purchased at the same price per gallon, the gasoline motor would be the more economical. This is because there is a great deal more energy in a given amount of gasoline than there is in a given amount of alcohol, and up to date there is no way known by which the handicap of an alcohol motor can be overcome.

A resume of the motor car industry for the last ten years, which has been compiled by Charles C. Clifton of the George N. Pierce Co., reads like a fairy tale and shows that ten years ago the capital involved was only about 1 million dollars, while to-day it reaches into the vast sum of 170 million dollars. Aside from the financial increase the improvement in the motor car has been equally rapid. The figures given below in the table given by Mr. Clifton tell the story:

Motor car makers........	17	175
Cars produced in year....	239	50,000
Persons employed	638	60,000
Value of product........	$219,600	$105,700,000

Motor car agencies	40	2,150
Agency employees	100	21,000
Agency capital	...	$57,500,000
Allied industries employed	...	29,000
Allied industries' capital..	...	$37,000,000

When a cylinder misses fire it may be due to a broken spark plug or to the plug or induction coil being out of order. A broken wire from the coil to the timer will, of course, cut out the cylinder connected with that coil unit. Providing the plugs, coil and connections seem to be in perfect condition and the carburetter working satisfactorily, the cylinder still continues to miss fire, it would be wise to have an experienced mechanic take up the matter.

PUNCH AND JUDY IN PARIS.

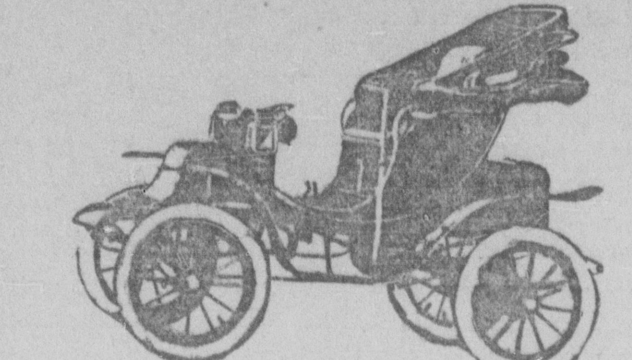
From the American Register, London.

PARIS—The opening of the Guignol at the Avenue Marigny, Champs Elysees, may not be an important event from a theatrical point of view, but it is a sort of a precursor and sign of good weather to the thousands of pedestrians who saunter along the famous boulevard in the springtime. It is also an historic occasion so far as the Guignol itself is concerned, for this year is the ninetieth of its existence in the same place, and during all that time it has always rested in possession of the same family. Also the little theater is intact, without the slightest retouch, just as it was when it was inaugurated by the grandfather of the present owner, M. Guentleur, in 1818, when a gala performance was given for the children of the Duc d'Orleans, the future King Louis Philippe. Since that time the merry show has delighted the hearts of thousands of children of many generations, and among these many little princes and infants of high degree. The prince imperial in his small days is said never to have missed a premiere at the Guignol, and on these occasions he was often accompanied by his august father, the emperor. The little theater is said to possess many curious and valuable archives, preserved as precious relics by the director. Among these are the registers, containing the names of subscribers, little tots who have since become celebrated men and historical personages.



STUDEBAKER ELECTRICS carry with them the charm of comfort and elegance which are prime essentials in modern vehicles—

THEIR beauty of design and richness of equipment are the results of fifty years of knowing how—

USEFUL at all hours of the day or night; ready at hand when desired for shopping, social calls, theater or pleasure drives—

DEVOID of complicated mechanism free from dirt and in all things highly ideal for women's use—

EASY to learn and easy to operate, even in the most crowded thoroughfare of a busy city—even grandma and the little one may run one—

BEST of STUDEBAKER material used in their construction, each vehicle revealing the highest type of the coach-builder's art—

ALWAYS reliable—an item whose importance will not escape those persons whose cars have been never-ending sources of expense and annoyance—

KNOWLEDGE of electric vehicle construction will invariably lead the purchaser to the STUDEBAKER—

ELEGANCE of body equipment and appointment characterize these cars—you'll find them in the possession of America's aristocratic circles—

REMEMBER always that STUDEBAKER ELECTRICS carry with them the charm and reputation of a name known throughout the universe as the standard of QUALITY, BEAUTY, STYLE and ELEGANCE.

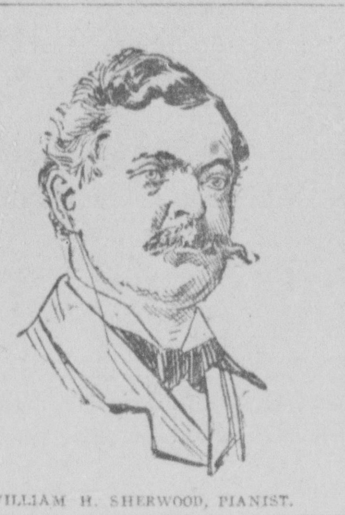
Music and Musicians

William H. Sherwood's Recital.

THERE are many persons in Kansas City who look forward to William H. Sherwood's piano recital in the Willis Wood theater next Friday afternoon with more than common interest. Mr. Sherwood, by his several visits in the past, established a following here which has remained loyal to him during the intervening years. Mr. Sherwood is justly entitled to a place among the leading pianists of this day. Dispensing with the usual sonata, his programme for next Friday boldly includes some of the lighter and purely melodic forms of music. This should be pleasing to those averse to music strictly orthodox and severe. This is the programme in full:



WILLIAM H. SHERWOOD, PIANIST.

Rhapsody in G minor, op. 79, No. 2	Brahms
Prelude in B flat minor, from "The Well Tempered Choir Chord"	Bach
Turkish march	Beethoven-Rubinstein
"Traumerei" (Dreams)	Schumann
"Soirree de Vienne"	Schubert-Liszt
Marche Militaire	Schubert-Tausig
Ballade in G minor, op. 24	Grieg
Bourree Fantasque	Chabrier
Barcarolle in A minor, No. 5	Rubinstein
Waltz, "Man lebt nur Emmal"	Strauss-Tausig
Scherzo in E minor	Mendelssohn
Nocturne in D flat, op. 27, No. 2	Chopin
"Aeolian" Etude in A flat, op. 25, No. 1	Chopin
Polonaise in C minor, op. 40, No. 2	Chopin
Grand Polonaise in A flat, op. 53	Chopin
Valse Caprice (dedicated to William H. Sherwood)	Herman P. Chelins
"Exhilaration," op. 14, No. 3	William H. Sherwood
"To a Water Lily"	Edward MacDowell
"Hexentanz" (witches' dance)	Edward MacDowell
"Isolde's Liebes-Tod"	Wagner-Liszt
"Faust" Waltz	Gounod-Liszt

Mr. Sherwood's visit to Kansas City is due to Miss Josephine Rea, his pupil, resident here.

Fifth May Festival in Lawrence, Kas.

May 8 and 9 are the dates fixed for the fifth music festival to be given in Lawrence, Kas., under the direction of Charles S. Skillon. This year's concerts will be held within the new auditorium of the Robinson gymnasium of the State university. The opening programme will be given by David Bispham, baritone, whose fame is of two hemispheres and whose services have been in wide demand for grand opera, oratorio and regular concerts. The Chicago Symphony orchestra, Adolph Rosenbecker, conductor, increased this year to sixty-five men, will furnish the second programme, for which the soloists will be Jan van Oordt, the Dutch violinist; Franz Wagner, 'cellist, and Mrs. Rose Gannon, contralto. The feature of this programme will be the first public performance of Carl Preyer's new concert piece for piano and orchestra. Mr. Preyer is the head of the piano department of the Kansas State university.

The third event will be a concert performance of Gounod's opera "Faust" by seven soloists, chorus of one hundred voices, organ and orchestra. The part of Faust will be sung by John Miller, a pupil of William Shakespere of London. Marguerite, by Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson, a soprano of national reputation, who has been heard at two former festivals; Martha, by Mrs. Rose Gannon, contralto, who has just returned from study with Jean De Rezske in Paris; Mephistopheles, by Arthur Middleton, bass, a member of the Chicago Musical college; Siebel, by Mrs. Blanche Lyons, one of the best known sopranos in Kansas; Valentine, by Prof. C. Edward Hubach, director of the voice department of the university, and Wagner, by John Ise, a senior student in the School of Fine Arts.

Lindsborg Is Disappointed.

"The Messiah" festival in Lindsborg, Kas., was a great artistic success, but the attendance was disappointing. The net proceeds this year will not exceed $1,500. Commenting on the reasons for the decreased attendance the Lindsborg Record says:

> The far famed two-cent rate, which by politicians was reported to enrich beyond conception the down-trodden citizen, caused the railroads to take a positive stand against every request for a popular rate. The railroad fare of each visitor was three times greater than the price which prevailed last year. The fare last year from Kansas City to Lindsborg and return was $3.50 as against $8.24 this season. From Hutchinson it was $1 last spring as against $2.94 this spring. In addition the guarantees were so high as against those which we have been accustomed to meet that to extend the territory through which special trains should come beyond a radius of 125 miles would have been financial suicide. The effect of the high rate within this territory is amply illustrated by a single instance. Last year 250 people came out of Hutchinson as over against thirty this season.
>
> The facts cited above give ample reason for the decrease in attendance, and we are clearly up against the proposition of bringing such pressure to bear on the railroad companies that they will either restore the rates of former years or arrange the "Messiah" festival on a basis that will make us independent of their co-operation.

A Concert by Miss Pearl Collins.

Miss Pearl Collins, soprano of the First Presbyterian church, and one of the soloists for the May festival in Hutchinson, Kas., will sing in the Casino next Friday evening. The occasion will be the introduction here for M. L. Klinck of Hutchinson, a cornetist known throughout Kansas. Gottlieb Federlein will be the pianist. Miss Collins is among the first of Kansas City singers. Friday night she will sing, in addition to two groups of lighter works, the mad scene from "Hamlet," an aria from "Samson," and "Af fors e lui," from "Traviata," all of which are popular with the prima donnas of this day. The aria from "Samson" will have cornet obligato by Mr. Klinck.

A Letter From Frederick W. Wallis.

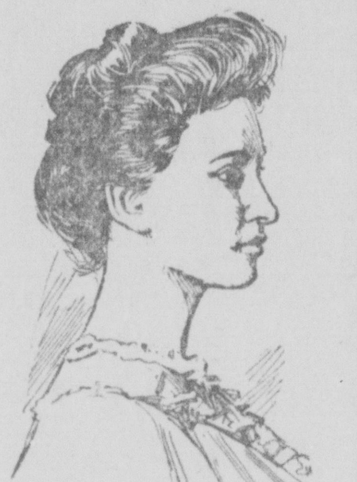
Frederick W. Wallis, baritone of this city, is enjoying opera and serious study of music in Italy. Incidentally he has been singing in select musicales, one of them being for the Princess Ruspoli in the Corsini palace. Here is part of a letter from Mr. Wallis under date of April 12:

> Everything has gone well with me in the land of spaghetti and good wine. I have been working hard and my voice is in splendid shape. I have been very happy in my work, and I am finding just what I came for.
>
> Florence is one of the poorest cities of Italy for music. The opera is very mediocre—only five or six good singers. Recently several new operas, nothing extra in quality, have been put on. To-night "Rhea" by Samara, for the first time; next week "Andrea Chenier" and "Galli," a French opera, first time here. Garbin, the principal tenor, is old, but he still sings beautifully.
>
> I heard "Salome" in Rome last week with the great Bellencioni in the title role. She is a wonderful actress. She has no voice, but her part is mostly acting, so you don't mind. Cigadi, who sang St. John, had a magnificent voice. I was not especially impressed with the music. The last part, where they cut off John's head and bring it on the stage, is a gruesome and horrible thing. Many persons of the audience got up and went out. For my part I am glad they won't countenance "Salome" in America. There are enough beautiful operas without dragging such scenes before the public. I suppose next they will be having a hospital operation on the stage set to slow music.
>
> "Madame Butterfly" was sung in Rome with splendid success. The king and queen attended and Puccini received an ovation.
>
> One of the greatest triumphs of the season in Rome has been the singing of Emma Nevada, daughter of our own famous Madame Nevada.
>
> I have been singing quite a little of late. A musicale in the Villa Sans Souci, a recital at Villa Braggiotti, a musicale at the Constantine and last week a musicale with the Baroness Baldaserossi, with Count Serghardy as pianist. Monday after Easter I am to give a recital in the Corsini palace for the Princess Ruspoli.
>
> I expect to leave Florence for Paris about May 15 and then on to London, where I will study oratorio and "coach" German lieder with Madam Nikisch, wife of the great orchestral leader. I am looking forward to an operatic feast while I am in Paris and London. I will be home early next fall.
>
> You have had all the best of the weather in Kansas City this winter. It has been miserably damp and rainy here all winter.

Second Programme by Miss Marquis.

Miss Alice Marquis, whose recital last season was one of the best by younger pianists, will play in the Casino next Saturday evening. Miss Marquis is of the "big four" now receiving instruction from Mrs. Carl Busch. To rarely good technic and sympathetic grasp of the true inwardness of melody, Miss Marquis adds remarkable memory. This year she will have within her programme the Grieg sonata, MacDowell's "The Eagle," two works by Schuett, Chopin's etude, opus 10, No. 7, the Schubert-Liszt "Soiree de Vienne" and the twelfth Liszt Hungarian rhapsody, numbers which command recognition of the greatest pianists. Miss Phœbe Brooks, violinist; Miss Ella Schutte, soprano, and Franklyn Hunt, baritone, will aid in the recital.

A new organ will add attractiveness to the special musical service to be given in Institutional church, corner of Admiral boulevard and Holmes street, this evening, under the direction of Miss Laura V. Lull. The soloists will be Mrs. D. M. Hoffman and Miss Marksbury, sopranos; F. J. Parish, tenor; Charles Schwartz, baritone; Miss Berenice Springer, organist; Miss Bessie Houser, pianist, and Peter Karsgaard, violinist, assisting a chorus choir, which will sing music appropriate to the Easter season. The public is invited to attend.



MISS ALICE MARQUIS.

Miss Minnie Merine will have the honor of playing the first organ recital in the new Grace Presbyterian church, 811 Benton boulevard, which was dedicated last Sunday. Miss Merine's concert has been fixed for the evening of May 8. Mrs. George P. Snyder, soprano, and Miss Ella Chase Perry, reader, will assist Miss Merine.

Gounod's "Redemption" will be sung tonight by the choir of Grace Episcopal church, under the direction of George B. Penny, the organist and choirmaster.

Philadelphia papers speak in complimentary terms of a piano recital in which Miss Jeanette Dimm of Kansas City assisted. Miss Dimm was a pupil of Rudolph King in this city before going to Philadelphia. May 16 she will make her second appearance in Philadelphia, playing Beethoven's sonata, opus 26; Schumann's Paganini caprice, a nocturne and a waltz by Chopin and a group of four works by modern composers.

Miss Louise Parker will entertain the Mothers' union with a musicale in the home of Mrs. L. A. Goodman, 4000 Warwick boulevard, next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Maclay Lyon, Miss Olive Wilson and Mrs. W. R. Hogsett will assist in the following programme:

(a) Gavotte	Gluck-Brahms
(b) "Liebestraume"	Liszt
Miss Parker.
(a) "Thy Beaming Eyes"	MacDowell
(b) "A Maid Sings Light"	MacDowell
Mrs. Lyon.
(a) Nocturne, op. 37	Chopin
(b) Mazurka, op. 33	Chopin
(c) Mazurka, op. —	Chopin
Miss Parker.
Children's Songs:
(a) "Little Bo-Peep"	Knowlton
(b) "Cuckoo Clock"	Scaeffer
(c) "Naughty Rabbit"	Licka-Back
Miss Wilson.
(a) Vanka's Long	Von Stulzman
(b) "My Laddie"	Phayer
Mrs. Lyon.
(a) Waltz, op. 70	Chopin
(b) Berceuse	Chopin
(c) Fantasie Impromptu, op. 66	Chopin
Miss Parker.

The Strawbridge and Clothier chorus of Philadelphia, assisted by the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, will produce Carl Busch's new cantata, "The American Flag," early next season. The work, which will be published by the Oliver Ditson company of Boston, is a setting of Drake's celebrated poem, and is scored for tenor solo, mixed chorus and orchestra.

The regular monthly recital by pupils of Miss Sarah Ellen Barnes will be given in Miss Barnes's home, 512 Olive street, next Friday evening. Miss Edith Sampson, soprano, will assist.

The Philharmonic Choral society, Carl Busch, director, will give its last concert for this season Monday, May 18, in the Academy of Music, 1221 McGee street. The soloist will be Miss Ella Schuette, soprano. Rehearsals are being held Monday evenings in Dillenbeck's hall.

Miss Allee Barbee will sing in recital Thursday evening, May 7, in the auditorium of the conservatory, corner of Eleventh and Oak streets. Tickets are on sale at the J. W. Jenkins' Sons and Hoffman music stores.

Thursday evening, May 7, Miss Myrtle Randolph will play a piano recital in the rooms of the Olney Music company, 910 Walnut street. Miss Randolph will be assisted by Crosby Hopps, tenor.

Miss Gertrude Graham announces an invitational song recital to be given by her pupil, Miss Millie Steacy, in Spalding auditorium May 4. Mrs. H. P. Guy will be the accompanist, and Miss Gladys Myers, pupil of Alfred Hubach, the solo pianist.

Mrs. L. D. Barney, Mrs. E. C. White and Miss Virginia Bradley, pianists; Miss Bessie Small, violinist; Mrs. Robert Waddell, Miss Evelyn Hartley, Miss Florence Wilson; George Curtiss and Mr. Shaw, vocalists, and Miss Ackerman, reader, will unite in giving an attractive programme Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Robert Waddell, 3212 Central street, in aid of St. George's Episcopal church.

Mrs. John W. Kyger, jr., who was Miss Louise Dose of Kansas City, has been engaged as contralto soloist for the Scotch Presbyterian church, Ninety-sixth street and Central park, West New York city. Before leaving Kansas City Mrs. Kyger was contralto for the First Presbyterian church and a pupil of Joseph A. Farrell.

Lawrence W. Robbins of this city, organist of the Second Christian Science church, has resigned as musical director of Lexington college, and hereafter will spend all of his time in Kansas City.

The Kansas City Conservatory promises an interesting programme Thursday night by pupils of Mrs. Jennie Schultz, the head of the vocal department, assisted by a male quartet composed of Glen Myers, first tenor; H. T. Wheelock, second tenor; Dr. F. C. Banta, first bass, and T. B. Cornell, second bass. Those of Mrs. Schultz's pupils who will take part are Mrs. George P. Snyder, Miss Christine McConnell, Miss Pearl Maupin, Miss Cecile Boucher, Miss Evelyn Hartley, Miss Jean Norris, Miss Hazel Kirk, Miss Jessie Hunt, Miss Florence Ensminger, Miss Hortense Bachrach and Mrs. Pearl Barrick Murphy. Tickets for the recital may be had at the office of the Conservatory free of charge.

Dr. Muck will end his engagement with the Boston Symphony orchestra at the public rehearsal concert in Boston May 1 and 2 respectively. He will take leave with the same programme he used for his first appearance in October, 1906, Beethoven's C minor symphony and "A Faust Overture," the Siegfried idyl and the prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg" of Wagner. It is an interesting coincidence that on April 29, this year, the orchestra is giving a concert in aid of the fund which is being raised for the benefit of the sufferers of the Chelsea, Mass., fire. Dr. Muck will conduct. On April 26, 1906, a similar concert was given in aid of the San Francisco sufferers. Had Symphony hall not been in use for another concert on Sunday evening, the 26th, this concert would have been given on the corresponding Sunday of the other one.

Fish Transported Alive in Water.

From the Boston Globe.

German law does not permit of freshwater fish being sold except when alive. Therefore it is common to see tanks of such fish in the restaurant windows, and they are hauled in this way considerable distances over Prussian railways, and shipments are made to Berlin from Lyons in France and from as far south as Roumania.

Under the new Erlwein system, now in operation on nearly all railways, the proportion of fish in the tanks is two tons to one ton of water. Oxygen is forced through the fish tank by means of a circulating pump, and the carbonic acid, as exhaled in breathing, is absorbed by lime plates.

An American gentleman who has investigated the matter is of opinion that fresh fish could easily be transported by this method from Boston to any one of the large cities of the Mississippi valley, and that the fish of the great lakes could be transported alive all over the great West.

Eventually.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Reporter—Do you ever contribute anything to foreign papers?

Comic Bard—Why—er—yes; on looking over the miscellany columns of the papers I find that I contribute lots of stuff to the London Tit-Bits.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear brother, George F. Hammond, who died two years ago to-day:

Dearest brother, how we've missed you, in the year that has gone by,
But we feel that you have left us for a better home on high.
MR. AND MRS. L. LEONARD.

In remembrance of loving husband, Joe, who departed this life one year ago to-day. I cannot say, and I will not say, that he is dead; he is just away. With a cheery smile and wave of the hand he has wandered into an unknown land.
MRS. JOE HUDSON.

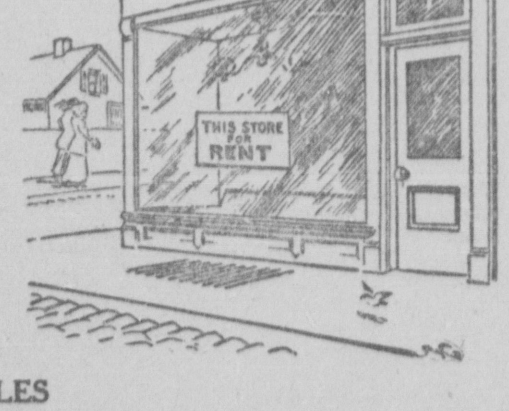
Money-Making Ways of Using Want Ads

To Find or Rent a Store or Office



If you are just opening a business and want to Find a Store or Office, it is quite an item saved to rent from the actual owner or to find the most reasonable place in price. But suppose you don't care for the expense—want the best place quick. In either case, a little Want Ad will find what you want in the quickest, quietest way possible. And for only an investment of a few pennies! You do not have to waste time and money—simply insert your "Wanted—to Rent" Ad in this paper or run down the "For Rent" column on our Classified page. Or perhaps you have a Store or Office to Rent—save the commission you would have to pay a Real Estate man. Our "To Rent" columns get results daily, weekly, year in and year out. Note the examples.

EXAMPLES

FOR RENT—A FINELY LOCATED DRUG Store location. Modern, convenient to car lines and in resident portion of city. Reasonable rent. Address K L 32, this paper.

WANTED TO RENT—A WELL-LOCATED Store suitable for Drug Store. Must be reasonable rent, modern, and in south part of city. Address F D 643, this paper.

The one big reason why Classified Want Ads are of such value is that you can use them at such a small expenditure—and get the maximum RESULTS. There is no "fuss" connected with their use, either. Simply write a few, brief words—saying what you WANT—no more. Familiarize yourself with the many ways for using Want Ads by turning to the Want Ad page NOW.

HORSES, WAGONS, CATTLE, ETC.

Advertisements under this heading, morning and evening, 3c a word; minimum charge, 40c. Sunday 2½c a word; minimum charge, 30c. Charged to ledger accounts, daily, 20c per agate line; Sunday, 15c per agate line. Minimum charge, 2 lines. All out-of-town advertisements payable in advance.

Livery Men and Autos

DON'T LET SOME NEW MAN GET YOUR business away from you by putting in automobiles. Put in one yourself and try it out. A good, high grade used car will do the business better than a cheap new one. We have them that we can recommend. Our customers on used cars will recommend us.

Stevens-Duryea Used Cars

A SECOND HAND 4-CYLINDER STEvens-Duryea, thoroughly overhauled in our shop, is a much better purchase than any new car selling under $2,000. It is high grade, hence will outwear cheap cars two to one; it is light weight, insures low tire expense and mechanical repairs; it is patented unit construction and 3-point support, makes a car capable of negotiating the roughest roads and yet retaining a perfect alignment of bearings.

Every purchaser of a used Stevens-Duryea last year is more than satisfied. Ask for names.

We have these cars, turned in by customers who have bought larger cars from us, from $1,350 to $1,800, usually equipped with top and five lamps. Write or call.

PRIESTESS OF MYSTERY!
MADAM GEYSER,
Lineal Descendant of the Druids.
Clairvoyant and Spiritual Medium.

Famous the world over for her miraculous powers. Some of the greatest men and women in America and abroad have sought her advice, and to their profit. If you are unhappy, consult Madam Geyser; if you would achieve success, consult Madam Geyser; if your heart is yearning for the love of someone who does not love you, consult Madam Geyser.

Estranged lovers reunited, even though they be at the farthest ends of the earth from each other. Many husbands and wives who had been separated have been brought together by Madam Geyser, and are now living in happiness and prosperity to call down blessings upon her head.

Her mysterious powers of divination prevent great misfortunes, and save many of her clients a world of woe.

Wise men and women seek her counsel in all matters of business, speculation, law suits and love affairs. Her knowledge is unerring; her advice in the matter of investments is golden, and many wealthy men and women owe their success to her.

She can tell you whether the heart of the one you love beats for you truly; she can tell you
HOW TO ATTAIN HAPPINESS,
HOW TO BE PROSPEROUS,
HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL.

There is nothing that you would know, whether in the past, the dim-distant future or the present, whether it concerns yourself or someone else, that she cannot tell you.

BUSINESS AND INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES.

St. Joseph is very much alive! This year will witness the completion and opening of a fireproof auditorium (8,000 capacity), a hotel, fireproof and modern in all respects, the addition of two or more extensive wholesale houses for which new buildings will be erected, the construction of several large retail store buildings, the installation of the Art Lighting system throughout the business district, the opening of a 150-acre industrial site tract, and many other important improvements—altogether promising for St. Joseph the greatest development in its history.

There's a reason: St. Joseph affords unusually attractive opportunities for manufacturing, jobbing, distributing and retail business, and for investment. The trade territory of St. Joseph is as extensive as any, and business can be conducted at lower relative expense.

Respecting resources, facilities, labor, banking, fuel, power, freight rates, trade conditions, buildings, business openings and special advantages and inducements, address Horace G. Krake, Commissioner Business Men's League, St. Joseph, Mo.

REDFERN CORSETS

Redfern Whalebone

A DEMONSTRATION

Much interest centers in these models. They are daily approved by modistes of the highest order.

The accentuated smallness of waist and extended length with any height of bust is gained from a Redfern for any form, as Redfern Models are fashionably cut for all types.

Boned with the finest selected Arctic Whalebone, rounded and tipped so that it cannot punch through the finest fabric.

The attached hose supporters, which assist in flattening the front and sloping and reducing the form at hips and back have the famous SECURITY Rubber Button tips. Choice materials and perfect workmanship characterize these corsets.

$3.50 to $10.00 Per Pair

Miss McCauley, the Redfern corsetiere, is with us for a short time for the express purpose of exploiting the merits and adaptability of Redfern shapes to this season's fashions. Her services are without charge.

16-Button Kid Gloves for $2.95

100 DOZEN JUST RECEIVED FROM GRENOBLE, FRANCE

These Gloves will be placed on sale to-morrow morning. We have them in black, tan and white. They are made of the genuine French National Skins, the best grade of glove leather.

An important feature—these Gloves are cut wide in the uppers, and have three clasps at the wrist.

With Easter but three weeks away, this Glove offering comes at a time that is most opportune, and will be the means of saving a great many dollars of Easter Glove money to Kansas City women.

Dainty Colored Wash Goods

The Wash Goods Section directs attention to one of the best displays of beautiful fabrics in its history, among which are the following weaves that are particularly desirable:

Chiffon Lisse, a fine, imported cotton voile weave, light in weave but firm in texture, in neat striped and checked styles—a yard, 29c.

Remarkable Selling of Ladies' Waists

OUR opening sale of Ladies' Waists was a decided success. Hundreds of ladies availed themselves of the unusual values. Being manufacturers (we make the Waists in our own factory), we are enabled to sell garments considerably cheaper than any retail merchant. Again this week we offer twenty-five different styles, made of sheer material, trimmed with dainty laces and embroideries, at only, each.......................... $1

Other styles at $2.50 to $12; worth double. We will make Waists from your own material if desired for 75c and up.

LEARN TO BE A MILLINER

We secure first class positions for all our pupils. Milliners earn from $10.00 to $35.00 per week. Demand greater than the supply. Short, simple, and while learning you can save the cost by trimming your own hats. Later you can start an independent business of your own. Better, easier and more profitable than being a saleslady or stenographer. Night class. Call or write to-day for explanatory catalogue.

FOR EXCHANGE BY C. D. DARNALL.
Established in Kansas City, 1884.
Headquarters for all Legitimate Real Estate Exchanges.
Write or come in and let me tell you about the new addition which I am trying to get control of; about 150 lots from one to three blocks of electric line which takes you to any part of the two Kansas Citys for one fare of 5 cents; within 25 minutes of stock yards and packing houses; within walking distance of a number of large industries; some 40 of these lots are on paved street with brick sidewalks; the land lies broken, but can be retailed at a handsome profit; I live within one block of this property; there is considerable of taxes accumulated on the property; owner is unable to swing it and has given me a very attractive price; can work in some trade; if you will go in with me on this property I am sure we can double our money inside of 12 months; a money maker is always willing to investigate, and if you will investigate you will surely try to deal.
C. D. DARNALL,
204-5 Dwight bldg, 10th and Baltimore.

Brazos Valley Land Is Always the Best Why It's the Cheapest

I OWN THE LAND AND CAN AFFORD to sell CHEAPER than others because WHEN HALF of my land is sold to men who will improve it, EVERY ACRE I have left WILL SELL for as much as I ask for TWO ACRES NOW. Don't you see the point? I CANNOT FARM SIXTY THOUSAND ACRES and must get much of it in the hands of ACTUAL SETTLERS before I can hope to sell what is left for its REAL VALUE.

If your farm would average to bring you $50 per acre per year, what would you call it worth? Many practical farmers believe that my Brazos Valley land, with good farming, will average $50 per acre per year from STAPLE CROPS, but anyone who has ever visited that section during the trucking season will swear to you that it will average OVER $100 PER ACRE when used for trucking. I realize that this seems unreasonable and preposterous, but our trucking season is now on, and we don't ask you to believe us, but ask YOU TO COME AND SEE!

MY LAND IS WITHIN FIFTY MILES of Houston, the "Chicago of the South," the best business city of its size in the United States. Houston has a SHIP CHANNEL running to the sea, and SEVENTEEN RAILROADS, affording the lowest shipping rates; it is the natural gateway to the markets of the world for that portion of the United States west of the Mississippi river and east of the Rocky mountains. My land is shown from Rosenberg, ONLY 36 MILES WEST OF HOUSTON, and as a special inducement I am offering AS GOOD LAND as there is in Texas at $15 to $25 per acre, in tracts of 80 to 1,000 acres each, one-third cash.

Don't accept an excursion ticket unless it reads to or through Rosenberg. I DON'T CARE how much other land you see, or whose prices you get, all I ask is that you SEE MINE before you buy. No trades. Address

HILAND P. LOCKWOOD, Owner,
Rosenberg, or 500 San Antonio, Tex.

Farm Property

IS QUICKLY SOLD, RENTED OR EXCHANGED WHEN ADVERTISED IN THE KANSAS CITY WEEKLY STAR. IT REACHES MORE THAN A QUARTER OF A MILLION PROSPEROUS FARMERS AND STOCK RAISERS, AND THE ADVERTISING RATE IS ONLY 7 CENTS PER WORD OR 50 CENTS A LINE. NO ADVERTISEMENT IS ACCEPTED FOR LESS THAN $1.00. ADVERTISEMENTS IN ITS COLUMNS ALWAYS BRING THE DESIRED RESULTS.

YOUR CHANCE.

I represent the owner of 60,000 acres of selected farm, fruit and garden truck lands, of great fertility, exceptional railroad facilities and fine climatic conditions.

I am authorized to offer these lands in tracts and on terms to suit "you."

These lands are increasing in value every day and are a fine investment.

If you are not doing well on your farm, these lands are what you are looking for, and you can get a start with very little money. Why rent when you can become your own landlord?

Good colony propositions. All aboard for Texas, the coming state.

Oakwood

IS THE PLACE YOU CAN BUY A HIGH, sightly lot, 35x120 feet, for $200, or less than $6 a foot. These are not low, poor lots—they are just what we advertise, and they are the greatest bargains in town.

The Laboring Man

Never had a better opportunity to get started toward a home of his own. Put up a little house now and add to it as you go along. Others have started this way and are now living in a nice home of their own—all paid for.

Oakwood

Is one of the most beautiful additions on the market, being covered with blue grass and shade trees. Many of the streets have been graded and sidewalks are on every street. It is right on 31st st., one of the principal streets of the city, and in a neighborhood that is improving very fast.

$200 a Lot

is a low price and every day people ask us how we can do it. It's because we bought this property for less than one-half the price of adjoining property and we are giving the buyers of our lots the benefit and then we are selling it for which anyone can easily pay. Our agent is on the ground all the time. Come out to-day and look around. Go to the end of 31st st. car line and walk east to our Oakwood office.

$4 a Month

WONDERFUL TRANSFORMATION ROCKHILL PARK DISTRICT

All the naturally beautiful, high, rolling and wooded land just southwest of and adjoining Colonel W. R. Nelson's estates and extending from Oak to Broadway, has been completely transformed into a most finished, most artistic, best restricted and immutably established residential section around Kansas City; lies in the very center of the 1,000 acres recently brought under one control and uniform high class restriction, making the largest attractive home district ever under one control in this part of the country.

Over 100 men and 50 teams have been working daily for the entire last year on building winding macadamized driveways bordered with little stone fences, shelters, parkways, rustic bridges and other pleasing features.

5,000 Crimson Ramblers, Honeysuckles, Virginia Creepers, Lilacs and Rosa Rugosas are now being planted over the grounds.

Dozens of artistic homes being planned by the best architects of the city and several already built and under construction.

One-half distance of many other additions.

COUNTRY SIDE AND ROCKHILL PARK

Are surrounded by at least five times more wealth, progress and protection than any other suburban property. Approached by the new Mill Creek Parkway, already ordered, making direct connection to Penn Valley Park, as well as Gillham Road.

City water, electric light, near the new E. C. White's school and only one block south of the end of the Country Club line, which is to be extended soon directly through the property.

Take Country Club car to our little white colonial office at end of line. Salesmen there every day and all day Sunday.

WITH SULTAN OF MOROCCO

ABD-EL-AZIZ DISCUSSES THE WAR IN HIS DOMAINS.

He Welcomes a French Journalist at His Tumble-Down Palace and "Pumps" Him for Information About French Military Methods—Likes d'Amade.

From Le Figaro.

RABAT—For the third time of late years, I have just had the honor and the pleasure of being received in private audience by the sultan of Morocco. I say the honor because Abd-el-Aziz, despite the doings of usurpers, pretenders and roquis, remains the comander of the faithful, descendant of the great Mahomet, the man of the divine Baraka, the sultan of an empire that is falling, but whose shattered ruins attest its splendor.

You know the rustic simplicity of the imperial palace, the informal though dignified etiquette of the Moroccan court. The sultan had learned of my arrival through Si-Kaddour-ban-Gabrit, having been informed of my wanderings in the Chaouia by that zealous servant of France, so I had no need to solicit an interview.

"Tell him to come to-morrow at 11 o'clock," he had said to Si-Kaddour. "I shall await him with impatience."

Next day at the appointed hour Si-Kaddour and I climbed the sandy road that leads up from Rabat to the Dar-Maghzen. How grim and dilapidated the appearance of that palace, despite its first coat of whitewash! A fine black horseman hastened forth to meet us and told us the sultan would receive us in his private garden. We passed through two rickety gates and entered an inclosure where a single fig tree was bright with springtime leafage. But already the sultan was coming toward me and, by a gesture, seeking to abridge the threefold salutations with which I, a traditionist, prepared to recognize in him a traditionist still.

With Si-Kaddour acting as interpreter, we stood talking in the solitary garden; the sultan began by reproaching me for having forgotten my promises to send him some photographs; then, taking from my hand an army map of the Casablanca region, he hastily unfolded it as I explained that it showed the marches of our forces and the various fields of combat, all marked in colors.

As it threatened to rain and the wind made it hard to manage the map, we went into a little building something like a toolhouse. A small table was its only furniture. I suspected it had been put there for just this purpose. Then I began a lively and captivating conversation, which was to last an hour and a quarter. In a perfect torrent of questions it was the sultan, rather than myself, who did the interviewing. I shall first report enough of it to make clear my interlocutor's thirst for knowledge and comprehension, after which I shall give a verbatim transcription of the sultan's views regarding what France has been doing in Morocco.

"You come from Dar-el-Beida," said the sultan. "How long were you there?"

"Ever since General d'Amade's arrival."

"And you followed all the operations?"

"All of them, and they are marked on the map; the attack on Settat, from January 11 to 16; then those upon Bon-Znika, the Ziainas, the Medakras, etc."

I saw the sultan's eyes trace the itinerary and heard him read aloud the names of the places, spelling out the French nomenclature. He had made progress since my last visit and I was greatly amused.

But the questions began again. "Where did you keep yourself while a battle was in progress?"

"At the beginning of an engagement I kept close to the general, so as to go forward wherever the fight was hottest and where, consequently, reinforcements were required. That was my way on the 18th and 29th of February, the 8th of March, etc. Otherwise, given the great extent of our front, I should have run the risk of going where the conflict was less lively."

This called out more questions. "Where did the general stay? How did the infantry march? And the artillery?" So I was compelled to outline the plan of a battle, taking as an example that of March 8. The sultan was keenly interested; his expression changed and his face lighted up more and more.

"When your lines are so extended what is to prevent their being broken through at some point?" When I explained our system of maneuvers, he said, "Then you have never been surrounded?"

"Never, Sidna; our 'marche en carre' anticipates that eventuality and remedies it."

"And yet," added the sultan, with a sly look in his eye, "some day the general is going to get separated from his colonel. Then what?"

I was pretty well nonplussed by that question. I looked back to the 15th of January, when General d'Amade was in that position for a whole afternoon. I thought of Colonel Taupin, on the 17th of February, and of Colonel Boutegourd on the 29th, and explained the matter to the sultan, though I must confess he was not more than half satisfied.

Then we discussed the Hafidist's artillery and its marksmanship. I had to explain everything and answer a thousand questions—mostly rather childish, though prompted by uninformed common sense. Speaking of the rapid-fire guns, the sultan asked me if the cartridges were automatically ejected, and when I said they were he inquired, "There is a somewhat similar arrangement in the case of the breech-loading guns?"

Presently, when my photographer had made a series of snap shots of His Venerable Cherifian Majesty with lightning rapidity, the sultan exclaimed, "Why, this is prodigious! You must be a quick firing cannon."

But I hasten to come to the important declarations I secured from him after my indefatigable questioner at last became exhausted.

"Cher seigneur," said I, "now that you have had so many and such various answers from me, may I venture a question?"

"Yes, by all means. As many as you like."

"Then what do you think, O Sidna, of this French intervention and this series of combats?"

Thereupon the sultan's face turned grave; he is fond of Europeans and loves to talk with them; but whenever in the course of the interview the conversation touched upon political topics I had noticed that the sultan quickly checked himself; he became another man for the moment, realizing the importance his utterances might have, and weighing his words in an effort to express himself prudently. How could he be sure he wasn't talking to a newspaper correspondent? He clothed his remarks in the gorgeous raiment of Oriental diplomacy. The reader should bear this in mind in order to appreciate the full value of the following declarations.

"The Chaouias deserved the lesson the French gave them. I hope you will keep on till the last scoundrel has been punished. You did the right thing. Do you expect to see General d'Amade again?"

"Yes, cher seigneur, and soon."

"Then you may tell him for me what I am about to tell you and assure him of my regard. The same to General Lyautey. I am very grateful to the general for the way he has acted. His conduct is very noble, very courageous. You have told me that the soldiers respect women and wounded children and the dead. That is well, and all of my subjects who have any intelligence will comprehend the beauty of this conduct, and it can have no other effect than to incline them to like the French. And you may say to General d'Amade that, knowing his victories, we are amazed that he has taken no prisoners and done no looting."

"But, Sidna, looting is robbing; at least it is considered so in France, and before he could go marauding, the general would have to ask the government's opinion."

The sultan, who thinks the general should possess absolute power, cried: "What! He would have to telegraph to Paris for that? Then perhaps the general would have to telegraph to Paris when we had my rebel brother's army close to his camp? And yet they fought many times, and possibly Paris is still unaware of it. Then how can all these affairs be rightly managed?"

I declared that, nevertheless, things were going beautifully. Then the sultan resumed: "But you say that in France a marauder is called a robber. Well, in Morocco we call that making war. Reflect! Suppose the Chaouias were to go across into your beautiful country to make the cannon talk: Do you fancy they would behave as you do? Why not treat them as they would treat you? At any rate, you may say this to General d'Amade: 'For him to take prisoners would make an enormous impression upon the tribes, a much stronger impression than to strew the plains with corpses, and then let him loot and loot and keep on looting.' The Chaouias understand nothing else."

Promising to transmit this message to the general and expressing my sincere wish for the re-establishment of order in the empire, I took leave of Sidna.

"This time keep your word and send me the war photographs you promised."

"It shall be done, Sidna-in-Challah, if God so wills."

Duels.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

More duels are fought in Germany than in any other country, and Jena and Gottingen are the cities which take the lead. It is said that a duel takes place in Gottingen every day, and on one occasion some years ago, twelve combats took place in the twenty-four hours. Jena's greatest number for the day is twenty-one. The German empire has about 4,000 duels a year; France has about 1,000 combats which may be regarded as such; Italy runs to about 270 per annum. In ten years it boasted of 2,759 meetings, of which 974 originated in newspaper articles or public letters. The great majority of the duels were fought with swords: only one with revolvers.

To Be Sure.

From the Chicago Tribune.

Man with the Bulging Brow—You say he's an associate of yours? How can that be, if you and he never speak to each other?

Man with the Bulbous Nose—Huh! That has nothing to do with it. Lots of the members of the Associated Press are not on speaking terms with one another.

SOME NOTES OF THEIR SOCIAL LIFE IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, March 27.—"Are there any Christian Scientists left in Kansas City?" queried a New York woman the other day. "There are so many of them here that I don't see how there can be any left at home." Indeed, there are so many Kansas City members of the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, at Sixty-eighth street and Central Park West, that it is has been dubbed "The Kansas City church," and is known by that name all over town. William P. Voorhees has just closed a term of service as president of the church, and has been elected a trustee. The Voorhees's live in Central Park West. Mr. Voorhees is the business manager of the Smart Set, a position held at one time by Mr. Sam Ragland, who is now in Indianapolis engaged in insurance work.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stilwell, who have taken an apartment in the Vandyke, at Seventy-second street and Broadway, have not yet wholly associated themselves with this particular church, though they are so well known in it that at the recent election Mr. Stilwell was mentioned and received several votes for an important office. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rickert have an apartment in the Vandyke, where the Stilwells are to live.

Miss Mildred Langworthy, who is here studying music, is the soprano soloist at the church. Others known in Kansas City who are regular attendants are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Covington, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Slavens, Mr. Abbernathy, Miss Celia Abernathy, Mrs. Rice Miner, Miss Dorothea Warren, the Misses Georgia and Willinore Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kirk, Mrs. Emma Bicknell Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Florence. Mrs. Smith is an established Christian Science practitioner here, with offices in the Metropolitan building in Madison square.

Miss May Gardner of Lawrence is here from Wells college to spend a week with Mrs. Louis A. Springer. Mr. and Mrs. Springer have cards out for Sunday night to meet Miss Gardner and also the Baroness von Lakow of Vienna, who studied with Miss Gardner several years ago in Paris, and who has had a studio here for the past winter. The baroness does very beautiful etchings and wood prints in colors. Some of it will be shown Sunday night at the Springers' evening.

Mrs. Charles Van Fossen and her young daughter, Gladys, have gone West to spend several months with relatives in Leavenworth and Kansas City. Doctor Van Fossen's business—he is connected with a real estate firm—will take him out of town a great deal this summer and Mrs. Van Fossen seized the opportunity to pay a long visit home. Their house in Flushing is closed for the present.

Mr. G. S. Cartwright has returned to Kansas City to remain several weeks on business. Mrs. Cartwright, during his absence, has rooms with friends in West Eightieth street, but will later go to Shelter island to open their summer home at Manhansett. Mrs. Leslie Carter has occupied the Cartwright cottage for the past four seasons and it was there that she took refuge from the pursuing newspaper reporters at the time of her marriage to Louis Payne. The Cartwrights expect to rent the house again this year, but may decide to occupy it themselves.

An interesting feature of a small sculpture exhibit that has been on view at one of the Fifth avenue galleries for the past fortnight is a portrait medallion of Mrs. Jospeh Cudahy, jr., of Omaha, who was Miss Jean Morton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joy Morton, and who is known in Kansas City. The medallion is about the size of a silver dollar, and is in bronze, gilded. The original commission, of which the exhibited piece is a replica, was done in eighteen carat gold, and is owned by Mrs. Cudahy's mother. The portrait is a profile, the head bent slightly forward, and the hair gathered high on the head. The lighting is very effective, and is brought out better in the gold original than in the bronze. The sculptor is Rudolph Evans, one of the younger artists, who has only been in this country two or three years, but whose work is causing much comment. He also has in the same exhibition a portrait in marble of Miss Maude Adams, which is one of the striking things shown there, and which already has won him several important commissions. It was Mr. Evans who did the J. Sterling Morton statue at Nebraska City, which was unveiled by Grover Cleveland.

Mrs. C. E. Finley recently gave a tea at her home in Englewood in honor of Miss Dorothea Warren. Mr. and Mrs. Finley's younger daughter, Neva, is a pupil at the Dwight school in Englewood, while the older girl, Julia, is at the National Park seminary in Washington. Mr. Finley is in the real estate business and is also president of the Aetna National bank.

Miss Warren has made a brilliant success in her work in china painting since she came to New York. She has a charming studio in West Twenty-fourth street, and has so many orders for work that she does not expect to be able to leave town at all this summer. She is a member of the Arts and Crafts club and of the Ceramic club, and in addition to her other work is herself studying and teaching the decoration and tooling of leather.

Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan is a friend and patron of Miss Warren, and has given her several large orders. One of these was for a set of game plates meant for a gift to Mrs. Morgan's son-in-law, Mr. Satterlee. For these plates Mrs. Morgan chose a design of wild geese, arranged as a border, and done in tones of gray and buff. Her selection of the design was particularly gratifying to Miss Warren, as it was that particular one that won her a prize at the Royal College of Art exhibit in London. Another commission, on which Miss Warren is now engaged, is a set of entree plates for which she will receive the sum of $400.

Not content with her purely artistic enterprises, Miss Warren has launched a business venture which promises good things. While in London she made an especial study of color and the manufacture of color, visiting the factories, at Stoke-on-Trent, and going into the whole matter very thoroughly. On her return to America she interested Mrs. Herbert Knapp of Bridgeport, Conn., the president of the Ceramic club there, and secured her financial backing. She then launched the Dorothea Warren Mineral Color company, with its factory in Bridgeport, where she goes one day every week for general oversight of the work done.

IN SOCIETY.

Doherty, Ottie Johnson, Bernhardt and Edith Peirsol, Mrs. B. F. Treat of Little Rock, Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Peirsol, Mr. James W. Alquie of Arkansas, Mr. J. D. and Mr. Tobias Piersol, Mr. Alex Rickart.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stevens, 3039 Wabash avenue, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last night, when their daughter, Nellie, and Mr. Harry Hill were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the Rev. J. N. McGinley, pastor of the Benton Boulevard church, in the presence of a few relatives and close friends. The bride wore an attractive gown of white Paris muslin. The decorations of the home were smilax, roses and palms. Mr. and Mrs. Hill will be at home after April 1 in Memphis, Tenn.

The G. G. T.'s high five card club gave a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Meals at their home, 1324 Monroe avenue, Thursday evening, March 26, in honor of their wooden anniversary. Prizes were won by Mrs. H. C. Wherritt, Mrs. S. W. Spangler and Mr. W. J. Coonrod. The evening was spent in playing games. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Coonrod, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Brain, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Spangler, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Meals, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wherritt, Miss Nina McKee, Miss Anna Hess, Mr. W. L. Hudson, Mr. W. H. Ashley, Mr. Thomas Lee and Mr. Marshall Lee.

Tuesday evening, March 24, a farewell reception was given at the home of Mr. J. W. Burkett in Kansas City, Kas., in honor of his father, Mr. G. W. Burkett, who will leave soon for the East. The evening was spent in cards and other games. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Nance, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Laurie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mulbey, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Eoff, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Walter, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. John Ismert, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Loosemore, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Burkett, Miss Ruth Eoff, Miss Bernice Nance, Mr. Reginald Loosemore, Mr. Louis Burkett, Mr. Ray Nance.

Miss Gertrude Haug, 2418 East Fourteenth street, entertained at cards Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. James Duncan of Salida, Col. The house was prettily decorated in jonquils and carnations. MAKE BETTER
COFFEE

Coffee can be made a clear, delicious, healthful beverage if prepared in a Coffee Percolator. In making Coffee in a Percolator the water is filtered through the Coffee, extracting the flavor and leaving the tannic acid and the bitter grounds. A Percolator saves one-third as it uses all the grounds. We have a large stock ranging in price up from $6.75

Extensive Showings of Exclusive Apparel for Easter

The outline is the most important item to be studied in this season's styles. The satin Empire costume in the cut aptly illustrates the pronounced change of outline in the fashionable woman's figure, such as the high waist, long tapering lines, and hipless effect. It is certainly a more youthful and natural looking figure than fashion has ever decreed before, and it is pleasing to know that this graceful effect is achieved with additional comfort to the wearer, as it depends no more upon reducing the hips than allowing extra ease around the waist, together with a slight lift in the waist line to give a gradual slope, instead of the abrupt curve. The gowns are cut very snugly fitting just below and above the waist line.

We have paid particular attention to the outline of our costumes and suits, all having been designed with the end in view of bringing out these particular points, which will be the distinctive features of the season's coming styles. Here you will find the smartest creations brought out by the leading Parisian and American designers.

Novelty Suits at $55, $65, $75, $85, $100 and up to $200

The fabrics are real tussor, beautiful soft tones in serges, white and black and white, and the latest colorings in stripes. The ensemble, as a whole, is one of the most artistic displays we have ever made.

Tailored Suits at $25 and $40

At $25 we show a very extensive collection of styles in tailor-made suits. These are tight-fitting and semi-fitting coat styles, in all lengths, new butterfly effects, and an almost endless showing of the latest oddities. They may be had in plain fabrics in great variety and in shadow and fancy stripes.

At $40 there is an exclusive line of fancy and plainly tailored suits, in the fine imported fabrics. These come in stripes and plain serges, in all colors. One style in particular is a copy of a model by Drecoll. It has one of the new hipless effect coats, made very long in the back, where it falls in a soft ripple. It is made of panaja cloth and is extremely graceful and becoming.

Silk Dresses at $25. We have a special collection of Silk Dresses at this price. There are plain and fancy styles, some smartly trimmed with newest designs in hand work. They are made of fine taffeta silks and in styles suitable for street, house and evening wear.

Costumes at from $55 to $125. These are the artistic creations for dress occasions—made of chiffon, marquisette, chiffon voile, satin cloth and crepe de chine. Second Floor.

Correct Spring Styles in Coats

Women's Long Covert Top Coats—The most perfect lines have been given to these severely tailored coats, which are correct for driving, traveling or general wear. Made of fine cream and tan covert cloth. $20.00, $30.00 and $35.00.

Women's Spring Top Coats—in black broadcloth or covert cloth in the new striped and plain materials. These are the best semi-fitted styles, plain and well tailored, and unusually attractive values at the price, $12.50.

Auto, Rain and Traveling Coats—made of very pretty subdued silk and satin strtpes. or plain cravenette or gloria in solid colors. Semi-fitted and loose models. $16.50, $18.50, $22.50 and $25.00. Third Floor.

Silk Lined Voile Skirts Black and All Colors. at $10

There are four styles of these voile skirts, all plaited and made in the latest designs; they are very prettily trimmed with bands of taffeta, and have a good quality of taffeta silk drop skirts. The material is a splendid wearing quality of wiry voile. Colors black, navy, brown, tan and white. These are the most exceptional values. All sizes, $10. First Floor, South Section.

$5 Sale Silk Petticoats

Special concessions from our manufacturer enable us to offer for this sale several hundred Silk Petticoats, made from only the best grades of heavy silks. There are many styles to choose from. Every skirt is made of ample width, with great variations in the flounces. All the new colorings and black, special at $5.00. First Floor, Middle Section.

Novelty Tailor-Made Suits

Novelties are the correct fashion, say authorities on apparel styles, and the Suit Section directs attention with pardonable pride to the splendid exhibit of Novelties in Tailored Suits that has been assembled for pre-Easter selling.

Novelty Materials

The material lends as much to the beauty of the Suits as the fashioning of the style. There is combination stripe and check cloths, as shown in the illustration, pencil stripe cloths, shadow stripe Panamas, novelty stripe worsteds in the feather weights, and plain Panama in the most beautiful high shades ever brought out.

Novelty Coat Styles

The Suit designer has not been limited in any way in fashioning styles this season, and the original and different ideas that are brought out are a revelation. Especially beautiful are the new fancy braided coats in the hipless effect, the fancy braided jackets and the novelty Butterfly models.

Novelty Skirt Styles

The Suits come with skirts that are essentially new in many features. There is the baby empire skirt, the new Parisian draped skirt and the novelty flare and plaited styles.

Notice Main Street Window Showing

A special pre-Easter window showing of some of the beautiful novelties from the Suit Section. It cannot do more than give a hint of the exhibit that will be made in the Suit Section.

The Stylish Lace Braid Jackets

One is featured in the accompanying illustration. It is an exemplary style, chosen from among many to direct special attention to these beautiful, charming articles of apparel. They are very necessary for wear with princess and lingerie dresses. Descriptions and prices follow:

Lace Braid Jackets in white, champagne, Copenhagen, brown and black, silk lined, at $15.00 up to $29.50.

Imported French and Irish Lace Jackets, not lined, in white only, exclusive models, $15.00 to $65.00.

Women's Stylish Skirts

As diversified a showing of styles as we have ever been privileged to direct attention. The excellent fit, splendid tailoring, different style, quality of materials and general beauty that characterizes the Skirts now showing will readily be impressed on the minds of those who see them.

The Skirt illustrated is made of brown, gray and blue stripe material in rich, dark color tones and also of plain black, blue and brown Panama. A flare model handsomely tailored, $10.00.

Voile Skirts, full plaited, with self folds, $10.00.

Voile Skirts, especially attractive styles, $12.50 and $15.00: White Serge Skirts, $5.00, $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00.

SAMPLE SUITS
$19.50

Here is another chance to get one of these handsome suits at $19.50.

We have just received another lot of 100 suits, which means 100 styles, as each one is different.

Prominent among these are the 24 and 26-inch coat suits, cutaway and dip front effects. The Butterfly and the Fifth Avenue are also in this lot.

All are strictly tailored, neatly trimmed with silk braid and lined with taffeta silk, full pleated or gored skirt with fold, made of fine Panama, worsted and fancy suitings in all the popular shades, Copenhagen, tan, gray, navy, leather and black.

Alterations free, 2d floor.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE—CONT'D.

Brazos Valley Land Is Always the Best Why It's the Cheapest

I OWN THE LAND AND CAN AFFORD to sell CHEAPER than others because WHEN HALF of my land is sold to men who will improve it, EVERY ACRE I have left WILL SELL for as much as I ask for TWO ACRES NOW. Don't you see the point? I CANNOT FARM SIXTY THOUSAND ACRES and must get much of it in the hands of ACTUAL SETTLERS before I can hope to sell what is left for its REAL VALUE.

If your farm would average to bring you $50 per acre per year, what would you call it worth? Many practical farmers believe that my Brazos Valley land, with good farming, will average $50 per acre per year from STAPLE CROPS, but anyone who has ever visited that section during the trucking season will swear to you that it will average OVER $100 PER ACRE when used for trucking. I realize that this seems unreasonable and preposterous, but our trucking season is now on, and we don't ask you to believe us, but ask YOU TO COME AND SEE!

MY LAND IS WITHIN FIFTY MILES of Houston, the "Chicago of the South," the best business city of its size in the United States. Houston has a SHIP CHANNEL running to the sea, and SEVENTEEN RAILROADS, affording the lowest shipping rates; it is the natural gateway to the markets of the world for that portion of the United States west of the Mississippi river and east of the Rocky mountains. My land is shown from Rosenberg, ONLY 36 MILES WEST OF HOUSTON, and as a special inducement I am offering AS GOOD LAND as there is in Texas at $15 to $25 per acre, in tracts of 80 to 1,000 acres each, one-third cash.

Don't accept an excursion ticket unless it reads to or through Rosenberg. I DON'T CARE how much other land you see, or whose prices you get, all I ask is that you SEE MINE before you buy. No trades. Address

HILAND P. LOCKWOOD, Owner,
Rosenberg, or 500 San Antonio, Tex.

Farm Property

IS QUICKLY SOLD, RENTED OR EXCHANGED WHEN ADVERTISED IN THE KANSAS CITY WEEKLY STAR. IT REACHES MORE THAN A QUARTER OF A MILLION PROSPEROUS FARMERS AND STOCK RAISERS, AND THE ADVERTISING RATE IS ONLY 7 CENTS PER WORD OR 50 CENTS A LINE. NO ADVERTISEMENT IS ACCEPTED FOR LESS THAN $1.00. ADVERTISEMENTS IN ITS COLUMNS ALWAYS BRING THE DESIRED RESULTS.

YOUR CHANCE.

I represent the owner of 60,000 acres of selected farm, fruit and garden truck lands, of great fertility, exceptional railroad facilities and fine climatic conditions.

I am authorized to offer these lands in tracts and on terms to suit "you."

These lands are increasing in value every day and are a fine investment.

If you are not doing well on your farm, these lands are what you are looking for, and you can get a start with very little money. Why rent when you can become your own landlord?

Good colony propositions. All aboard for Texas, the coming state.

Oakwood

IS THE PLACE YOU CAN BUY A HIGH, sightly lot, 35x120 feet, for $200, or less than $6 a foot. These are not low, poor lots—they are just what we advertise, and they are the greatest bargains in town.

The Laboring Man

Never had a better opportunity to get started toward a home of his own. Put up a little house now and add to it as you go along. Others have started this way and are now living in a nice home of their own—all paid for.

Oakwood

Is one of the most beautiful additions on the market, being covered with blue grass and shade trees. Many of the streets have been graded and sidewalks are on every street. It is right on 31st st., one of the principal streets of the city, and in a neighborhood that is improving very fast.

$200 a Lot

is a low price and every day people ask us how we can do it. It's because we bought this property for less than one-half the price of adjoining property and we are giving the buyers of our lots the benefit and then we are selling it for which anyone can easily pay. Our agent is on the ground all the time. Come out to-day and look around. Go to the end of 31st st. car line and walk east to our Oakwood office.

$4 a Month

13 lots in one of the coming towns in the new state of Oklahoma; it is jumping to the front and values advancing rapidly.

These lots all clear; good titles; one man owns all of them; is willing to trade for a Kansas City equity. Shall we let him run at large? Ask for details.
